Forces Baker to Send All Precinct Detectives Back to Patrol Duty.

HARD BLOW TO THE SYSTEM

Step Toward Mayor's Plan to Differentiate Between Routine Duty and Central Office Detective Work.

Police Commissioner Baker dropped a bombshell into the department last night. By special order he abolished the precinct plain-clothes men who for years have been the mainstay of "the system." Every one of the 203 men assigned to plain-clothes duty in inspection districts will report to-night in uniform to precincts far removed from their old hunting grounds. Men who have not known for years what it is to patrol will be pounding the pavements to-night.

Incidentally the order last night caused such a scurrying around for uniforms as has never before been seen in the department. Gen. Greene in his term, as head of the department, abolished the plain-clothes precinct force, but as soon as he retired, on Jan. 1, 1904, the wardmen appeared again. Many of those who will now be on the street have been in plain clothes ever since that time and their uniforms have long since been thrown away.

The special order issued last night was set forth in the fewest possible words:

"The following transfers are hereby ordered, taking effect at 8 P. M. June 22":

Then followed 203 names, of which 19 came from Inspection District 1, Inspector William Hogan; 19 from District 2, Inspector John Daly; 19 from District 3, Inspector George McClusky; 11 from District 4, Inspector Richard Walsh; 13 from District 5, Inspector George F. Titus; 12 from District 6, Inspector James E. Hussey; 13 from District 7, Inspector John F. Flood; 20 from District 8, (Brooklyn Headquarters,) Inspector James E. Dillon; 16 from District 9, Inspector Patrick J. Harkins; 13 from District 10, Inspector Dennis Sweeney; 10 from District 11, Inspector James McCafferty; 20 from District 12, (Jamaica,) Inspector Thomas J. Kelly; 5 from District 13, (Staten Island,) Inspector John D. Herlihy, and 13 from District 15, (Coney Island,) Inspector John J. O'Brien.

Mayor Gaynor Inspired Order.

None of the policemen were saying much last night about this new order of the Commissioners but in it was recognized the hand of Mayor Gaynor. It was believed to be in pursuance of his policy of centralizing everything as far as possible and separating the work of the detective from that of the police force. With this general view of the case went whispers that it had been brought about in part through the treachery of some members of the department against their comrades and the betrayal to the Mayor of some of the most cherished secrets of the way in which the precinct commanders worked.

The plain-clothes men were introduced originally to fill up a gap in the department. In the days when the means of communication about the city were slow and the detective force at Mulberry Street had not been fully developed it was useful to have attached to each station house a small force of plain-clothes men, who could be got out at a moment's notice on the report of a crime. In those days to send word from uptown to Headquarters and to wait until a Central Office man could come meant the waste of precious time.

The plain-clothes man took on other functions. He was the confidential assistant of the Captain. He went with him from one precinct to another and he was known personally to all the doubtful characters of the precinct. He performed a hundred little odd jobs for the Captain and was always in close touch with the district leaders.

His downfall has really been coming for some time. Commissioner Bingham established in every borough in the city and in four outlying districts of Manhattan branch offices of the Detective Bureau. They at once took from the precinct men a number of the duties that they had heretofore performed. At this time about half the plain clothes men were ordered to don their uniforms again, and the detective work of those who were retained was cut down.

When Mayor Gaynor came into office his attention was called to the precinct plain clothes men, and about three months ago he called on Commissioner Baker to send to him a detailed report of the way in which each one of them was employed, the hours he was on duty and the results he achieved. As a result of this about eighty more plain clothes men were told they must go back to patrol.

It was the younger men who lost their soft snaps, and it was their anger at this which it was rumored in the Bronx last night had caused the absolute abolition of the system. It was said that a number of them got togeiher, and drew up and forwarded to the Mayor an account of who the plain-clothes men left to the inspection districts were, and just what things they had the reputation of having done. Mayor Gaynor a week or two ago ordered all the 203 men left out of uniform to forward to him a full report of what they were doing, and these reports are understood to have been turned in last Tuesday. It is believed that they were not satisfactory in the eyes of the Mayor, and so he ordered the total abolition of the precinct plain-clothes man.

It was also pointed out last night around Police Headquarters that the centralizing policy of the Mayor has been particularly manifest since Inspector Russell succeeded Inspector McCafferty at the head of the Detective Bureau. He has made a number of raids on gambling houses and disorderly resorts in all parts of the city, irrespective of the precinct commanders, and has shown that it is perfectly easy for him to get the evidence required by the use of Central Office men. It is supposed that his success has shown the Mayor and the Commissioner that they can safely rely on one central authority doing the work of keeping the city clean at least as thoroughly as the precinct commanders. On the other hand one Captain said last night:

One Captain's Plea.

"It just amounts to this: They can't hold us responsible any more for anything we can't see on the surface. You know how strict the Mayor is about using any kind of violence unless we have got the case absolutely clinched, and I'd like to know how we are going to get it clinched without plain-clothes men.

"Do you suppose that a saloon keeper is going to sell a drink on Sunday to a 'cop' in uniform, or that a disorderly house or poolroom will welcome him with effusion? You bet they won't. Of course, we'll be able to stop crimes committed under our noses, but that's not the way they are committed as a rule. How we are to get after anybody who takes the precaution to shut his doors and pull his window blinds down is more than I can tell."

The Mayor evidently regarded the precinct plain clothes man as the cornerstone of the graft in the department, and the natural intermediary through whom the Captain could shake down any one

STORK UPSETS THE STATION.

Anti-Race Suicide Police Platoon Reports Four Arrivals.

A little girl ran into the West 125th Street Police Station yesterday morning, handing Capt. Farrell a note.

"Can my papa stay home?" she asked.

The note read:

"Patrolman Frank Sherry, First Platoon.—Just arrived: A girl."

"He can stay home," said the Captain.

Half an hour later another little girl hurried in with another note. It read:

"Patrolman Harry Berry, First Platoon, wants leave of absence for a day. A boy."

Capt. Farrell had scarcely granted leave to the second happy father when a little boy came in with still another note from Policeman Bernard Weinkelman of the First Platoon. This time it was a girl that had come to the home at 138th Street and St. Ann's Avenue.

Finally, still later in the day, Policeman "Diamond Dick" Crossen further depleted the First Platoon by announcing the arrival of a nineteen-pound baby boy at his home at 121st Street and Sylvan Avenue. He added to his request for leave of absence that the big little fellow would surely be a "cop" some day.

"All right," said Capt. Farrell, resignedly. "But remember, you men of the First Platoon, this is positively the last."

FIRE AXE A CLUE TO ROBBERY.

Buried with the Door of the Chinatown Safe That Was Plundered in Fire

While searching the rubbish of the burned out store at 15 and 17 Doyers Street for the first time since the fire early on the morning of May 29, when the proprietor, Mee Lang, complained to the police and to the Chinese Consul that his safe had been broken open in the course of the fire and rifled of $2,500 in cash and $5,000 in bonds, Henry Hoffman, the janitor of the building, yesterday afternoon found the broken door of the safe under the débris, and beside the safe an axe of one of the truck companies of the Fire Department.

Hoffman notified Capt. Hodgins of the Elizabeth Street Police Station, who ordered the safe door and the axe removed to the station, and thence to the Detective Bureau. The number of the truck company to which the axe belonged was upon it, but the police refused to tell what it was. Inspector Russell, who has been working on the case ever since the Chinese Consul appealed to Mayor Gaynor for a thorough investigation, sent his detectives to the truck company, and was said last night to be close to the identity of the man to whom it belonged.

At the time of Lang's complaint it was maintained by some that the door had not been broken off, and that the safe had had no door at all. Since the fire the place has been watched continually by the Fire Patrol, and there was no possibility of any one else getting access to the building.

WANTS THE FINEST AIRSHIP.

Manufacturer's Son Negotiating for a Machine to Join the Aviators.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., June 21.—Howard J. Dietz, son of the late R. E. Dietz, who acquired a fortune in the manufacture of lamps, has announced himself a candidate for aeronautical honors, and is negotiating now with Tod Schreiber, mechanician for Capt. Baldwin, to get the finest aeroplane which can be bought or manufactured.

Mr. Dietz says that expense will be no consideration. He has offered Schreiber $5,000 with the promise that six or seven times this amount will be forthcoming should Schreiber find the sum necessary to fulfill Mr. Dietz's wishes.

Mr. Dietz has been a spectator at the flights of Hamilton, Baldwin, Seymour, and Harmon here for several weeks, and daily has become more interested in the sport. Schreiber is considering the offer of Mr. Dietz now, but as yet no definite terms have been arranged. It has not been decided whether Schreiber shall buy a machine for Mr. Dietz or manufacture one according to his own ideas. They are agreed, however, that the craft shall have a Curtiss engine, with which Schreiber is especially familiar.

Should Schreiber and Dietz come to terms, the mechanician will be employed as instructor, and the first flights will be made over the Hempstead Plains.

"DEAD" BROTHER REAPPEARS

Sister Had His Name Put on Tomb and Collected Insurance—Lost 35 Years.

Special to The New York Times.

WATERBURY, Conn., June 21.—Mrs. Cecilia Woodruff, aged 54, a resident of this city since Jan. 1, but recently of the Bronx and a former Brooklyn, N. Y., teacher, has met a long-lost brother whom she had not seen for thirty-five years. He is Frank C. Bates, aged 63, of Chicago, a commercial traveler for a missionary society.

They parted in New York City, and after he had not been heard of for twenty years she had his name inscribed on a tomb in Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn, and collected his insurance of $1,000 in an Ohio company. She would never have known he was living but for a woman friend, Mrs. Anna Benson, who met him in New York recently, and noting the resemblance between them at once told Mrs. Woodruff of the encounter. Then Mrs. Woodruff wrote for his itinerary and made an appointment to meet him. Since she saw him Mrs. Woodruff's heart has been affected through excessive joy and she is ill.

LEAVES CHINESE A FORTUNE.

By Will Miss Carter Gives Him a Large House and $6,000 Cash.

The will of Miss Alathia M. Carter, which was filed yesterday in the Surrogate's office in Newark, gives $6,000 in cash, her homestead and a share of its contents to Wong Hong Hoy, a Chinaman, who has long been a member of the Carter household. Miss Carter taught the Chinaman's class in the First Presbyterian Church Sunday School.

Wong, who is now 30 years old, became a member of the class at the age of eight. He was taken sick and became blind and paralyzed. He was cared for by the Carter family, and, according to Miss Carter's will, it was the wish of her dead mother that provision be made for his support after the daughter's death.

The house left to Wong is a three-story brick, and is probably worth $20,000. Miss Carter died on June 10.

BLACK HAND KIDNAPS A PHYSICIAN'S SON

SEQUEL TO MANY THREATS

Long List of Blackmailing Letters Sent to the Father—Boy's Mother Prostrated.

Dr. Mariano Scimeca of 2 Prince Street, who has lived in the neighborhood since he came from Palermo, Sicily, fifteen years ago, has received more than fifteen Black Hand letters in the last three years demanding from $500 to $1,000, each time under threats of having his home blown up and his family killed. In each case he reported the matter to the police, but the Black Handers failed to keep their appointment. He did not attach much importance to the threats, but his wife took care that her two children, Michael, 3 years old, and Gustavo, 7 months old, should not be taken out of the house without her.

Yesterday afternoon as Michael was playing in the hallway on the third floor of his home with four-year-old Vido Pagno and Maria Azaro of the same address, a man approached him, patted him on the head, and said:

"Come on, Michael, and get some candy."

Michael took the man's hand right willingly and trudged down the stairs with him, the two other children following. At the foot of the stairs, the man turned to them and waved them back.

"Go back, bad babies," he said. "Only Mike is a good baby."

The children fell back, and Michael proudly accompanied the man toward Elizabeth Street, where he picked the boy up in his arms and ran, disappearing northward.

The two children returned to their play, and thought nothing further of the incident until two hours later when Mrs. Scimeca asked them what had become of her boy. When they told her she fell fainting in the street.

The case was reported to Police Headquarters, and Detectives Carrca and Castano were assigned to the case. From the two little children, however, they could get no coherent account of what had happened, nor a trustworthy and unvarying description of the kidnapper. One time they said he was a young man, and again they said he was an elderly man. The missing boy himself is described as of light complexion, and brown eyes, weighing fifty pounds, 3 feet in height, and wearing, when last seen a Buster Brown suit, light tan shoes and stockings.

Late last night no trace had been found of the missing boy or his kidnapper. Mrs. Scimeca was prostrated by the shock. Dr. Scimeca refused to tell what had been the nature of the letters he received and said he could think of no enemies unless perhaps they were people who bore him malice for not having given money to them when he gave to others who were in need.

At the Detective Bureau four of the letters recently received by the physician were shown to reporters. It was said that Dr. Scimeca had been a close personal friend of the late Lieut. Joseph Petrosino, who was assassinated in Italy. When he showed some of his letters to Petrosino and the Italian Squad was assigned to the case the letters ceased abruptly. They began to come again after Petrosino's death.

In the four letters received by Dr. Scimeca since April 8 appointments were made for him to meet the blackmailers or their agents at the Brooklyn Bridge, the Garibaldi Statue, in Washington Park, and 118th Street and Morningside Park. The first letter, dated April 8, read:

Dear Doctor: To-day we pray you for $1,000. If you talk to the police it will be the worse for you, and for all your family. We don't give you an appointment; it would be foolish. We command you to speak to your friends. They know where they can find us. The person who presents himself is worthy, and receive him kindly. With regret to give trouble to your lady—but we have a right to live—we are ——.

The letter was signed with four daggers and a cross. The second letter, dated April 11, was mailed at Station B, and read:

Doctor: We send you this letter to show you we have education. We have waited long enough. We have done nothing for your lady's sake. Your lady is kind in the building, also benevolent to us. But we have a right to live. As a good friend you must help us. If no money is sent we will make trouble. We will have no respect for you. We entreat you. Basta, (equivalent to "enough said.")

This also was signed with daggers. The third letter, mailed on May 19 from Station A, said:

Doctor: Are you deaf or bluffing? If you do not send the money, you will die and all your family, as I told you in my first letter. Think it over. We must have money before the end of the week—or else your life; and these are what we will give you, (twenty daggers,) and drink your blood. MANO NERA.

The last letter, dated May 20, read:

We pray you send the money. We need it quickly. Send $500 or in two days your life will be gone. Jesus Christ was condemned only once. To-morrow night at 8:30 o'clock a boy will meet you at Morningside Park and 118th Street, and will say "I Runor" to you. Give him the money. If not, we will take the blood of yourself and your son and drink it. No more to say.

This letter was signed with five daggers and the words "Mano Nera."

BATONYI HIS OWN LAWYER.

Society Whip Asks Delay in Vain in Suit Against ex-Wife.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 21.—Aurel Batonyi appeared as his own counsel in the Superior Court to-day when his case against his former wife, Mrs. Burke-Roche; her father, Frank Work, and Frank K. Sturgis was called. Batonyi contends they took personal property belonging to him in September, 1907, from the Two-Mile Corner Farm in Middletown after he and his wife separated. Counsel for the defendants were willing to adjourn the case if Batonyi would release attachments against their clients, amounting to $150,000, but this Batonyi declined to do. The attorney stated the suit was brought for annoyance, whereupon Judge Lee stated if Batonyi did not take off the attachments he would have to proceed to trial on Friday.

DOESN'T RECALL GIVING DEEDS

De Graw Wants the Courts to Set Aside Property Transfers to His Wife.

John H. de Graw of Teaneck, N. J., began suit yesterday in the Supreme Court to set aside deeds he gave on March 19 to his wife, Lotta de Graw, by which he says he stripped himself of his property. He asserts that he was in ill-health and unable to resist his wife's influence, and has no recollection of signing the deeds.

The deeds conveyed real estate in Grove Street, New York, and in Teaneck, and also made over to Mrs. de Graw various bonds and mortgages. The plaintiff has a twenty-two-year-old son by a former wife, and two daughters, 16 and 10 years old, respectively, by the defendant.

SEVENTEEN HURT ON SCENIC RAILWAY

Bad Accident at Coney Island Early This Morning, of Which Three Persons Will Die.

TWO CARS LEAVE THE TRACK

Fall to the Pavement on the "Rough Rider" Coaster on Jones's Walk—Hospital Facilities Taxed.

Cars on the "Rough Rider" scenic railway on Jone's Walk, near the Bowery, in Coney Island left the tracks early this morning, throwing the occupants, nearly twenty in number, to the concrete pavement.

At 2 o'clock this morning the ambulances of the Coney Island Hospital were gathering in the injured and every doctor and nurse was working over them. It was not known then whether any were killed outright.

The "Rough Rider" is on the ocean side of the Bowery and at its most westerly end, and is the first ride which pleasure seekers from Surf Avenue encounter on reaching the Bowery. Its cars are coupled together and are hauled up to a considerable height by a traveling chain. At the top of this inclined plane the cars descend around a series of sharp curves, propelled only by gravity.

The ride becomes swifter as the cars descend, until near the end of the ride they are traveling at the speed of an express train.

A fall from any part of the structure offers innumerable chances of injury by contact with the heavy wooden beams which form a net work of supporting timbers beneath the tracks. At one point, should the car leave the track, it might almost be tossed out into the ocean.

Later information showed that a second car attached to the first followed in its descent. The police obtained the names of seventeen of the injured. None were killed outright, but three are so badly injured that they can hardly recover.

It was said that there were only seventeen persons in the two cars, and that all of these were injured. Eight were taken to the Coney Island Hospital. The rest were cared for by private physicians, who were called by telephone and hurried there in cabs by the management.

The accident occurred at 1:45 o'clock. At the top of the highest of the seven "dips" thirty feet from the ground the two cars in charge of Cyrus Pinto, motorman, of Twenty-third Street and Neptune Avenue, met with the mishap. Pinto had just turned off the power from the third rail which carries up the cars, to allow them to descend by gravity when something went wrong with the mechanism.

The first car turned turtle, the second followed a little lower down, and the two bounded down the incline, spilling the seventeen passengers on the way. Some fell on the tracks, others were caught in the structure, and still others fell clear to the ground.

It was almost closing time, and already some of the lights were being turned out, so that the accident occurred in semi-darkness. There was a panic in the place relieved only by the arrival of the ambulance and three doctors from the hospital, and of the police reserves, who were summoned by the nearest patrolman.

At 3 o'clock no attempt had been made by the police to fix the blame, and no arrests had been made.

THE INJURED:

Among the injured were:

DE COLA, MANUEL, 27 years old, 620 Sixty-second Street, Brooklyn.

ERICKSON, THERESA, 20 years old, 373 Chauncey Street, Brooklyn.

"Dave" Goodrich, Tossed at High Jinks, Said Nothing About Injury.

It leaked out last night that "Dave" Goodrich, one of the Rough Riders who came here to help welcome Roosevelt home, was severely hurt at the High Jinks on Huckleberry Island last Sunday when the fun was fast and furious and men were being tossed in blankets. "Dave" Goodrich broke two ribs. He said nothing about it at the time, but yesterday the pain became so intense that he had o go to bed.

The National Rough Riders' Association held a business meeting in the Old Guard Armory last night. In the wildest enthusiasm the meeting adopted a resolution expressing the abiding love of the members of the Rough Riders for their old Colonel, Theodore Roosevelt, and then elected these officers:

President—"Dave" Goodrich, New York; First Vice President—Lewis Mavery, Texas; Second Vice President—Eugene Waterbury, Iowa; Secretary and Treasurer—Cotton Reed, New York; Historian—Edward Marshall, New York.

The next annual meeting of the National Rough Riders' Association will take place in Arizona, definite time and place to be announced later.

THREE BLOCKS AFIRE ALONG RIVER FRONT

DAMAGE AT LEAST $250,000

Manhattan Sends Help Across the River When Yards of a Big Lumber Company Burn.

Fire wiped out the lumber yard of the Cross, Austin & Ireland Company on the bank of Newtown Creek in Williamsburg last night, burned three lumber-laden schooners to the water's edge, destroyed a fire engine, and for a while threatened to spread through the entire lumber yard section of Williamsburg.

Three whole blocks were ablaze at once. Before the fire was finally under control at least $300,000 damage was done. Practically the entire fire-fighting force of Brooklyn and Williamsburg was in action, and several engine companies were called from Manhattan to fight the blaze in addition to the four fireboats which were hustled to the scene as quickly as possible. The latter managed to save several schooners and other river craft which were tied up at the lumber company's wharfs or were anchored close by.

Fire Chief Croker took charge of the fire fighters soon after the blaze started. It had been a busy day for the Chief, for from noon to 3 o'clock in the afternoon he had his hands full quelling a stubborn blaze on Warrent Street, near the City Hall Park, Manhattan. He hadn't rested up after this—if Croker ever does rest—when the call from Brooklyn came.

The blaze was discovered about 10:45 o'clock by Peter Smith, the lumber yard watchman. Smith was making his rounds and had turned his back upon the window frame mill in the rear of 1,246 Grand Street and near the edge of Newtown Creek, when he heard a crackling sound and turned to see a fork of flame creeping up the side of the building. Apparently it had started on the floor near one of the walls and ate its way through to the outside.

Smith ran to the nearest fire box and turned in an alarm. It brought Engine 113 to the scene in a jiffy from its house, in Morgan Avenue, near by. The engine raced through the three blocks of the lumber yard, along Grand Street, between Stewart and Scott Streets and Newtown Creek, and came to a halt close to the burning building. But so quickly did the flames spread that in a few minutes the crew found retreat cut off. They had to abandon their engine, and it was consumed by the blaze.

Skipping from the window frame mill to the piles of lumber the flames rushed through the million feet of lumber piled in the yard. Under yesterday's hot sun it had dried out till it was like tinder. Also most of it was yellow pine, the resin in which was like oil upon the flames.

Soon after the arrival of Engine 113 a second alarm was turned in, and soon afterward a third. This was followed closely by still a fourth, the department's "general alarm." It means that every engine available shall report at once at the fire whence the alarm has come.

The fourth alarm brought Chief Croker to the scene. Soon twenty engines were grouped around the lumber yard, while the fireboats poured in water from the river. The flames were then shooting high in the air, and sparks were scattering over the roofs of buildings a hundred yards away. Like a giant beacon the blaze could be plainly seen in Manhattan and over in New Jersey. Police reserves from half a dozen stations hastened to the scene, and the near-by hospitals, from St. Catharine's to the Williamsburg, sent ambulances.

Along the bank of Newtown Creek and tied up to the wharves was a line of coasting vessels, most of them three-masted schooners. The work of loading them had been going on several days and the decks of most of the schooners were piled high will yellow pine boards. Before the fireboats could get there the flames had jumped from the window frame mill to the deckloads of three of these schooners and they were soon blazing unchecked.

While the firemen did all they could to check the flames inshore, groups of riverrmen and the crews of the vessels attempted to propel the schooners up or down stream. But there was not enough wind to fill the sails and the vessels were too heavy to drag along by ropes.

One of the first doomed was the schooner Herbert Fuller, a three-master, laden with yellow pine. The schooner Richard Hartley, also laden with lumber, was next to go. Another vessel, whose name was not learned, was also burned before the fireboats could get there.

The coming of the fireboats Seth Low, Boody, New Yorker, and Van Wyck saved the rest. While two of the boats trained their hose on the blazing lumber yard the others towed away the other lumber craft moored in the fire zone. They soon had the schooner Stanley H. Minor in a place of safety, and then, one by one, the other craft were pulled out of danger, their crews, armed with buckets, meantime dashing water on the sparks as they fell on decks and sails.

Besides the menace to the river and coasting craft the greatest danger which confronted Chief Croker was that the blaze would leap beyond the lumber yard inshore and spread to the other yards, where millions more feet of lumber were stored. Also there were many buildings along that part of Newtown Creek and in Grand Street. Chief Croker stationed his men on either side of the blazing lumber yard. At intervals of every few feet a hose was trained on the blaze. The heat was intense and often the engine crews were forced back, only to return again to the fight a moment later.

Shortly after midnight Chief Croker and his men had the blaze checked, but practically the entire contents of the Cross, Austin & Ireland Company's yards were destroyed. It is likely that the fire will be smoldering in places as late as noon to-day, and before returning to Manhattan Chief Croker ordered several engine crews to remain on the scene to watch for a fresh outbreak.

J. S. Davis, President of the lumber company, arrived on the scene about an hour after the fire started. He said at midnight that the loss to the yard would amount to at least $250,000, covered only in part by insurance.

MAKES PEACOCK ALLEY GASP.

Chicago Lawyer's Evening Costume Startles Waldorf Guests.

E. H. Smalley, a lawyer of Chicago, and a member of the Hamilton Club, which came here to welcome Roosevelt, startled the guests of the Waldorf-Astoria last night when he appeared in a full-dress coat and waistcoat, a silk hat, and cream-colored trousers.

Mr. Smalley, although he seemed unconscious of the fact, caused a sensation when he walked through "Peacock Alley" last night. The women gazed at the innovation through their lorgnettes, and the other men gasped, the contrast between the black coat and the trousers being severe.

Mr. Smalley is a widower, about 55 years old.

FIVE DOGS ATTACK WOMAN.

Arms and Legs Terribly Torn When All Turn on Her.

SAN MATEO, Cal., June 21.—Mrs. Bertha Spiehl-Allen, a leader in local society circles, was attacked last evening by five bull terriers belonging to her husband, Dr. P. V. A. Allen, who is one of the best-known dog fanciers in the State.

Mrs. Allen found the dogs fighting, and when she tried to separate them they turned upon her and mangled her so severely that her condition is serious.

The flesh was torn from her right shoulder, her right hand and forearms were bitten and torn, and her limbs lacerated. Mrs. Allen beat the animals with a club, and finally staggered to the doorway of the house, where she was found fainting.

LISPS ROOSEVELT FIRST.

An Up-to-Date Boy Baby Discovered at the Knickerbocker.

All the people in the hotel agree that there is a remarkable boy baby now staying at the Knickerbocker. He is only 15 months old, and the remarkable thing about him is that he can say "Teddy Roosevelt," the popular name of a well-known private citizen, although he has not yet learned to call his parents "mamma and papa."

Yesterday in his morning romp in the hotel corridor the baby pronounced the name of the ex-President at least a dozen times for the benefit of admirers and friends. Yet he is not an American. His father's name is Benjamin Aaronson, who lives in Montreal, Canada.

In the baby's behalf it is said that he picked up the name in his last few days in New York and heard it so often that he couldn't help learning it.

TWO MEN BURNED TO DEATH.

Three Slightly Injured by Leaping from Beverly Clubhouse Windows.

BEVERLY, Mass., June 21.—Two men were burned to death and three received slight injuries in a fire which destroyed the Century Club cottage and an adjoining residence at Bates Park in this city to-day.

The dead are: Henry B. Barrett, a drug clerk of Peabody, and Bert McShane of Salem.

These men, with the three others, had hired the cottage to spend their Summer vacation in. Jeremiah O'Connell, one of the party, awoke early to-day almost overcome by smoke. Shouting to his companions, he jumped through a window and was quickly followed by two of his friends. Barrett and McShane were not awakened and perished.

LIE GIVEN AT HEARING.

Uproar in State House When Witness Is Accused of Perjury.

BOSTON, June 21.—The charge that Matthew B. Lamb, a Trustee of the Lyman School for Boys, lied in his testimony before the Legislative Committee which is investigating the institution caused such an uproar at the State House to-day that the committee threatened to clear the room.

Mr. Lamb had just stated that corporal punishment was not resorted to except in extreme cases, when P. H. Kelley, an attorney for the Parents' Association, jumped to his feet and declared that the statement was false. A dozen auditors jumped up, and for a short time there was much turmoil.

Two women cried out that the committee was trying to hide evidence.

When quiet was restored Mr. Kelley was informed that if he had evidence to prove his statement he might give it as a witness, but he declined to do so.

20 PASSENGERS IN AIRSHIP.

New Zeppelin Dirigible Ready to Start on Its First Voyage.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, June 21.—The new Zeppelin dirigible airship Deutschland is all ready to-night to start on its maiden voyage to Düsseldorf.

Count Zeppelin will be at the helm, and the airship will carry twenty passengers. The course will be from Friedrichshafen to Suttgart, Mannheim, Cologne, and Düsseldorf.

The promoters of the enterprise are the Hamburg-American Steamship Company and the German Airship Stock Company, for which the Deutschland was built.

The dirigible is capable of making thirty-five miles an hour, and the passengers will travel in a great cabin which resembles a luxurious sleeping car.

BRITISH DIG AT ROOSEVELT.

Mr. Buxton Sarcastic at Congress of Chambers of Commerce.

LONDON, June 21.—The Right Hon. Sydney Charles Buxton, President of the Board of Trade, opened the International Congress of Chambers of Commerce to-day. Incidentally he gave a dig at Mr. Roosevelt.

Referring to the differences in national fiscal systems, Mr. Buxton concluded his comment with the remark:

"But, not being an ex-President of the United States, I am not going to tell you how to run your shows."

The speaker promised on behalf of the British Government every possible assistance to the delegates, realizing, as he said, that such conferences helped to counteract "the pernicious influences of certain classes of politicians and journalists who, respectively, foam at the mouth and splutter the ink in an endeavor to embitter international relations."

The congress is attended by 450 delegates. Those from Boston, U. S. A., have great hope of having the next meeting in that city.

LAYS QUEENS GRAFT TO GRESSER HIMSELF

CASE FOR THE GRAND JURY

Mayor Forwards the Report to the District Attorney for Immediate Action.

Immediately following a personal conference with Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick yesterday morning Mayor Gaynor made public a report charging President Lawrence Gresser of Queens Borough with knowingly signing fraudulent and forged vouchers for work stated to be worth nearly $4,000, which was actually never performed, and was listed for payment on the billheads of dummy contractors, whose addresses were given at either the political headquarters of President Gresser's campaign manager or at his private residence.

The report will be forwarded to the Queens County Grand Jury at once for action. It follows a series of reports from Commissioner Fosdick, which has sent two of President Gresser's official family to private life, and has resulted in the indictment of seven others.

Yesterday a new rumor was set afloat to the effect that Queens County regulars don't like the present Supreme Court Grand Jury, which has been held over from the May term at the insistence of Commissioner Fosdick after he had found it willing to bring in indictments on every matter he has placed before it.

The regulars hold, it is said, that the report on President Gresser would fare better if heard before a Queens County Grand Jury under a charge from Judge Humphreys, who was elected last November after a campaign in which he was an active stump speaker. In order to bring a county Grand Jury into the case it will be necessary for Supreme Court Justice Garretson to dismiss the Grand Jury which was specially selected with the graft hunt in view.

Hope for a New Grand Jury.

It is now under a recess order, and will convene again on Friday, when it is hoped in some circles that its foreman will ask that it be dismissed on the ground that Justice Garretson's July vacation season is approaching, and that it will be inconvenient for him to receive reports on its future deliberations.

Commissioner Fosdick, upon learning that Mayor Gaynor had decided to forward the report, announced that he had done enough investigating for the present, and would leave to-morrow on a vacation to be gone two weeks.

The report has been in the hands of Mayor Gaynor since June 13, while the data on which it is based have been under investigation since April 12, when they appeared in THE TIMES as a part of the complaint of Queens citizens who were seeking to have Gov. Hughes interfere in Queens County affairs.

So far Municipal Court Justice Alfred Denton, who was formerly Commissioner of Public Works, is the only prominent Queens official who has escaped criticism. He figures in the present report as the man who should normally have signed the fraudulent vouchers, and refused to do so even after a revolver had been pointed at him, thus forcing the papers into the office of President Gresser, where they were indorsed.

In a previous report he was the hero of an episode, in which he warned President Gresser that certain contracts were fraudulent and then found that copies of his letter had been torn from his letter press copybook.

The Full Report.

Here is the report involving President Gresser:

"OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONERS OF ACCOUNTS,
"280 Broadway.

"Hon William J. Gaynor, Mayor.

"Sir: I beg to call your attention to certain expenditures incurred in open market orders for repairs to culverts and bridges in the Bureau of Highways, office of the President of the Borough of Queens, in the months of July and August, 1909. These orders involved the rebuilding of the brick and stone work on the culverts at the Flushing Water Works, Central Avenue Bridge, Black Stump Road, Jackson Avenue, near Flushing Bridge, and Strong's Causeway.

"The specifications in each case called not only for rebuilding and pointing up the brick and stone work, but for covering the granite face of the rock with a cement wash. An exhaustive examination by the engineers of this office of the work that was actually done on these culverts shows that practically all that the city received for the money which it spent was a liberal coat of cement wash applied so tackly to the stonework as to cover any defects which might have existed. It appears that the brickwork and stone masonry were not replaced or relaid, as called for in the specifications, and the work done was not only unnecessary, but practically valueless.

"The contractors who received the open orders are as follows:

Name.	Location of Culvert.	Amount.
Louis Cohn,	Flushing Water Works	$345
Louis Cohn,	Central Avenue Bridge	852
John Kron,	Black Stump Road	873
Thomas J. Burke,	Jackson Avenue, near Flushing Bridge	883
Joseph Phillips,	Strong's Causeway	987

They Couldn't Explain.

"Our attention was first drawn to this matter by the apparent lack of qualifications for the work in question on the part of the contractors. Cohn is a truckman, Kron is an employe of the New York Telephone Company, Burke is a plasterer, and Phillips, a brother of the Under Sheriff of Queens County, is a conductor on the Long Island Railroad. In giving out these orders bids were also invited from John Dowd, a butcher, and Patrick Corcoran, an electrician.

"All of these men, with the exception of Burke, who could not be located, were subpoenaed and placed under oath. They were unable to describe the nature of the improvements in question or to state even approximately how many men they employed, how much material was used, or how much time was required in the performance of the work. They could not even designate the location of the culverts in question or recall the amounts of their respective bids. In explanation of this ignorance they stated that they had sublet the work immediately upon receiving it and that the money had been paid to the sub-contractors.

"The names of these sub-contractors they were unable with definiteness to recall. All of the contractors, including the extra bidders on the work—namely, Dowd and Corcoran—when presented with the originals of their so-called bids were forced to admit that their signatures had been forged, Corcoran testifying that he had bid on but one contract, whereas his name is attached to the bids on four of these contracts.

"An examination of the bills submitted by the contractors shows that in every case they bear, either cashed the checks at the Long Island City branch of the Corn Exchange Bank for Under Sheriff John M. Phillips, and had given the money to him. In at least two cases it is quite evident that the indorsements of the contractors on the back of the checks have been forged.

Signing of the Reports.

"Furthermore, it appears that the reports of the inspectors accompanying the vouchers forwarded to the Controller's office by the Borough President, and forming part of the certification, upon the basis of which moneys were subsequently paid, were signed at the request of the Superintendent of Highways, Mr. Leahy, after the cement wash had been applied. None of the inspectors who thus certified to the work had seen it during its prosecution, and none could tell what work was done.

"Moreover, it developed that the cement wash was applied to the culverts in part, at least, by city employes. Supt. Leahy and others testified that one of the men engaged upon the culverts was Charles Phillips, another brother of the Under Sheriff, who, during the time that he was so employed, was upon the pay rool of the Bureau of Highways.

"The names of the other laborers who actually performed the work could not be definitely ascertained. The uniformity of character and finish in the application of the cement coating is so great, however, that it is very probable that the work on the five culverts was done by the same three or four men.

"It is a pertinent fact that all of the orders and vouchers for the payment of this work were signed by Lawrence Gresser, Borough President, and not, as is customary, by the Commissioner of Public Works. Prior to this time no payments had been certified from the budgetary account entitled 'Maintenance of Highway,' by the signature of Mr. Gresser as President.

"In all other cases, hundreds in number, arising prior to this time, the Commissioner of Public Works, Alfred Denton, signed both the orders and the vouchers. Mr. Denton, who is now Justice of the Third District Municipal Court, was subpoenaed to explain this fact.

Revolver Aimed at Him.

"He testified that some time in July or August, 1909, Under Sheriff John M. Phillips requested him to sign certain orders and vouchers for the repair of bridges and culverts in the Borough of Queens; that he refused to sign the orders and vouchers for the reason that he was 'suspicious,' as he stated; that thereupon Phillips drew a pistol from his pocket with a threat at serious business unless the orders were signed; that upon his continued refusal, Phillips withdrew, leaving the unsigned orders and vouchers behind him.

"Judge Denton's testimony in regard to this episode with Phillips was corroborated by William Herdman, formerly his private secretary. Denton further testified most positively that shortly after this incident occurred, and before the orders had been signed, he called Borough President Gresser's attention to the entire matter. Nevertheless, it appars that the orders and vouchers in question were signed by President Gresser in spite of the information imparted by his Commissioner of Public Works.

"President Gresser and Sheriff Phillips were placed under oath and closely examined. Both professed to be ignorant of the entire situation, and no information could be obtained from them.

"From the records and testimony in this matter, however, it is clear that a series of fraudulent open orders, based on forged bids, were issued by the Borough President to men who acted as dummies for John M. Phillips; that the work done under these open orders was practically valueless and was performed in part at least by city employes; that the Inspectors' reports, accompanying the vouchers, were signed by men who did not see the work in the course of its prosecution, and that the money, approximately $4,000, paid by the Controller's office for this work, was diverted by false addresses and forged indorsements, to the Under Sheriff of Queens County.

"I recommend that the facts included in this report and the testimony taken during the course of the proceeding be forwarded to the District Attorney of Queens County for his immediate action before the Grand Jury.

"Respectfully submitted,

"RAYMOND B. FOSDICK,
"Commissioner of Accounts."

QUEENS RECORDS MUDDLED

And Valuable Maps Missing from County Clerk's Office.

Inquiry into the report that maps of inestimable value are missing from the office of the Clerk of Queens County in Jamaica, and also that hundreds of records which were recopied in the past year at great expense to the City of New York have been copied so inaccurately that real estate titles in that office are endangered, induced Justice Stapleton, sitting in the Queens County Supreme Court, Long Island City, yesterday to direct District Attorney Frederick G. De Witt to make a searching investigation and bring the charges to the attention of the Grand Jury.

Justice Stapleton's action was based upon a report made by William F. Wyckoff of Jamaica and Louis Hess of Far Rockaway, who were appointed a committee by Justice Kelley to examine the records of the County Clerk's office.

This report tells of the missing maps, and also of the muddle made by those employed to recopy the old records. Recently a title company sought to search a piece of property by means of the new records, and was compelled to quit until it got possession of the old records, when the title was straightened out without trouble.

TAFT USES BIG STICK AND SENATORS YIELD

Vote on Postal Banks to be Taken To-day Because of President's Insistence.

VISIT TO YALE ABANDONED

Informed of a Plot, Taft Gives Up Cherished Plan to See His Son Graduate and Fights.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—President Taft woke Washington up to-day in a fashion not employed before in his Administration. He had the good old big stick brought out of its dust-covered case, carefully removed the cotton wrappings, and began to swing it lustily around the heads of certain Senators who have been standing in the way of concurrence by the Senate in the House amendment to the Postal Savings Bank bill. At the same time he caused it to be announced that he had canceled his proposed trip to New Haven to see his son, Robert, graduate from Yale, and would stay right here in Washington, on the job every day, all Summer, if necessary. For a few hours there was an atmosphere around the White House that would have sent rough rider to horse at once.

Apparently the big stick in Taft's hands proved as effective as when swung by Roosevelt. Before the Senate adjourned to-night an agreement had been reached for a vote at 5 o'clock to-morrow afternoon on the motion of Senator Carter to accept the House bill. Senators, however, were inclined to dery that Taft had accomplished this result. They said that there had been no doubt of the ability of the Administration men to pass the Carter motion, and in proof pointed to the several roll calls that were had during the afternoon on various amendments offered, all of which showed a safe majority, averaging about seven for the Administration side.

Taft Head of a Plot.

President Taft was roused to action by reports that several of the regular Republicans in the Senate had been discovered off the reservation in the final round up on the Postal Bank bill. He was informed that while he was at New Haven to-morrow it was the intention of the Senators to amend the bill in such fashion as to kill any chance of its passage by Congress at this session. As soon as the President got this information he directed Secretary Norton to cancel his trip.

It was a great disappointment to Mr. Taft. For more than a year he had been looking forward to this trip. He said some time ago that he would permit nothing to prevent him from seeing his oldest son graduate from Yale. At first he proposed to spend three days at New Haven. The legislative situation last week was such, however, that he ordered the trip curtailed to one day. It was proposed that he leave Washington to-night and return on Thursday morning. Even that he felt he could not do.

Mr. Taft summoned a score of Senators to the White House and talked to them with a directness which left no doubt as to how he felt. He was in fighting humor all morning, and callers declared he was very forcible in his references to the Senate situation.

It is generally admitted at the Capitol that he held the whip hand. The River and Harbor bill, containing hundreds of items in which Representatives and Senators are generally interested, is still unsigned on the President's desk and subject to veto. The Public Buildings bill, affecting nearly every State in the Union, is about to pass the Senate, and then will have to receive Executive approval. Mr. Taft is said to have been not unmindful of the influence of these measures.

In one way the President seems to have accomplished a good deal. Senator Bailey, who has some reputation as a filibuster, was known to be strenuously opposed to the bill. He had announced long ago that it would never go through with his consent. Also he had announced that he would undertake a one-man filibuster, if need be, against the bill enlarging the corps of army engineers. Bailey is on friendly terms with the President, and he was one of the men summoned to the White House. When he came away he was still uttering loud threats about the engineers bill, but he was singing very small about postal savings banks. When it was made known later that the engineers bill would probably be dropped there was a shrewd suspicion that the President had made another little trade that would redound to the advantage of the Postal Banks bill.

House Bill Called Patriotic.

It was announced at the White House in the course of the afternoon that the President opposed the Senate bill on the ground that it was a vicious and unpatriotic measure, whereas the House bill was a patriotic device for strengthening the Government credit. The chief differences deal with the disposition to be made of the funds deposited in the postal banks. The Senate bill forbids the investment of postal funds in Government securities paying less than 2½ per cent. interest, thus barring the $730,000,000 of Panama and other 2 per cent. bonds.

Now about $700,000,000 of these bonds are held by National banks to secure circulation. When the time comes for the establishment of a central bank of issue the disposition of these National bank bonds, which will have to be taken care of when the National bank circulation is retired, will be one of the chief problems. If the postal bank funds could be invested in that manner, a way would lie open for a comparatively easy solution of the problem. There comes in the House bill, which permits that very thing.

It was practically conceded at the White House this afternoon that this provision would be the first step toward the central bank. In that respect what was said at the Executive offices follows fairly close the line of some of the speeches of the President last Fall. The President is very much concerned to prevent the bill from going to conference, for he is satisfied that if it does go it would emerge in a form in which he could not sign it.

There is one man in Washington who is, no doubt, viewing the situation with considerable cheerfulness. That is Speaker Cannon. He is thoroughly opposed to the postal bank idea and has yielded his personal opinion only at the insistence of the President. If now the bill should be sent to conference as a result of the Senate insurgent fight it would give the Speaker an opportunity that he would certainly use with glee to charge that Senator Cummins was the man who had beaten the Postal Bank bill.

The Senate took up the bill at the close of the morning hour and continued its consideration until adjournment, some four hours later. Most of this time was taken up by speeches on amendments offered by Bacon of Georgia and Cummins of Iowa. All amendments voted on today were killed, though on every vote the insurgents rallied in spite of the President's influence their accustomed strength of from 6 to 8 votes. These combined with the Democrats fell always some half a dozen short of victory and made it evident that when the final vote is reached to-morrow the bill will be passed in the form it passed the House, and a conference will thereby be avoided.

SENATE PASSES MOODY BILL.

Now Goes to Taft for Signature—Justice May Resign at Once.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—The House bill authorizing the retirement of Justice Moody of the Supreme Court owing to his protracted illness was passed by the Senate to-day without the formality of sending it to conference. The measure now goes to the President for his signature.

The bill as passed allows the Associate Justice his full salary for life, notwithstanding that he has not reached the requisite retirement age of 70 years nor has served the necessary time to be eligible for retirement under existing law.

To receive the benefits of the act Mr. Moody must resign within five months. It may be that he will resign at once to permit of the appointment of a successor and his confirmation before Congress adjourns, which would permit of the next Supreme Court term's beginning in October with a full bench.

KIDNAPPED TRAFFIC MEN.

Chauffeurs Dragged Policemen Into Auto and Sped Away with Them.

After a chase at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour Motorcycle Policeman James Flood of Traffic Squad B last night climbed at Sixtieth Street and Third Avenue into an automobile containing four men, who, he said, had exceeded the speed limit over the Queensboro Bridge all the way from Brooklyn. He climbed into the seat beside the chauffeur, William C. Ghizzy of 155 West End Avenue, and ordered him to drive to the station house in Sixtieth Street, between Second and Third Avenues.

Instead, he says, the chauffeur caught hold of him as they neared the station, turned on the machine full speed, and ran back to the bridge. As Flood tried to grapple with him the three men in the rear grabbed him, lifted him into the tonneau, and sat upon him to keep him quiet.

As they neared the bridge Bicycle Policeman Albert Fagan saw the policeman's plight and gave chase. He managed to overtake the car and to climb in. But the men grabbed him, too, and tried to subdue him in the tonneau. Meanwhile the automobile was going at a lively clip, and had reached the centre of the bridge, the two policemen still held in captivity. A sudden lurch tossed one of the men from his seat, and Flood managed to jump over to the front of the auto and with a sudden jerk pull out the spark plug and stop the car. Then he drew his revolver, and the men submitted to arrest.

Ghizzy, the chauffeur, was locked up on a charge of exceeding the speed limit and assaulting a policeman. He will be in the Yorkville Court to-day. The other three, likewise chauffeurs, were taken before Magistrate Kernochan in the Night Court on charges of assaulting a policeman. Both Flood and Fagan, their clothes torn and disarranged with the pummeling they had received, appeared as complainants against them.

The men said they were Emile Helters of 134 West Sixty-third Street; Frank Guff of 372 East 149th Street, and Emil A. Wilkins of 153 West End Avenue. They said they had spent the day swimming at North Beach and hired the automobile to come home. They denied assaulting the policeman, but insisted that they had merely tried to keep him away from the steering wheel for fear he would wreck the car. Nevertheless Magistrate Kernochan find them each $10.

JERSEY COMMUTERS WIN.

Pennsylvania Road Makes Concession to Trenton—Roselle Won't Protest.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 21.—George W. Boyd, passenger agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad, to-day notified the State Railroad Commission that concessions had been granted to Trenton commuters. When the company announced the raise of commutation rates, beginning July 1, it abolished the yearly tickets and fixed the price for thirty round-trip tickets from Trenton to New York at $25.50.

The Trenton commuters held a mass meeting and protested. The result is that the price was cut to $19.80, this rate to go into effect Aug. 1. The commuters who purchase yearly tickets will suffer, however, under the new scale as under the old they had to pay only $17 a month, but now will have to pay the same as monthly commutation ticket purchasers.

Special to The New York Times.

ROSELLE, N. J., June 21.—"The joys of living in the Roselles are held to be not one bit abated by the two bits raise in commutation rates," is the way in which the Executive Committee of the Board of Trade of this place and Roselle Park disposes of the proposal to fight the increase by the Central Railroad. The joys of living, coupled with its higher cost, so far as Roselle is concerned, are sufficient to warrant the increase, according to the committee.

The Roselles are the first towns of the State to refuse to join in the general protest against the action of the railroads.

WHEAT PRICES SOARING.

Lack of Rain Excites Chicago and Minneapolis—Again Over a Dollar.

CHICAGO, June 21.—There is still no rain in the Northwest, messages from the Dakotas and Minnesota to-day state, and as a result there was marked excitement in the wheat pit of the Board of Trade here. September wheat, which closed yesterday at 94¼ cents, showed opening bids to-day ranging from 95 to 97¼ cents, the latter figures being an advance of 2¾ cents. Trading coming to an end without the needed rain, sent September wheat to 98¼@98¾ cents. The close was at 97¾@98 cents.

In the Spring wheat country the temperature was said to be scorching the fields, averaging well over 90 degrees. A Minneapolis newspaper is quoted as stating that heavy general rains must fall within two days or growers will begin to plow under their crops.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 21.—In the wildest wheat market witnessed for many years the price advanced nearly 5 cents in a few minutes to-day. September wheat, which closed on Saturday at 94 cents, and had sold yesterday at 97⅛ cents, crossed the dollar line at the opening to-day in an upward rush to $1.02½.

There was no rain last night, and temperatures were high everywhere.

DWIGHT COMMENDS WORK OF CONGRESS

Accomplished More Than Any Congress Since Civil War, Republican Whip Says.

ITS WORK CONSTRUCTIVE

Legislation Urged by Taft and the Republican Party Acted on Favorably, or Soon to Be.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Representative John W. Dwight, Republican whip, gave out to-day this statement regarding the work thus far accomplished by the Sixty-first Congress:

"This has been one of the busiest and most effective legislative bodies ever assembled in Washington under the Constitution. It has done more constructive work than any Congress since the civil war.

"President W. H. Taft called the Sixty-first Congress together on March 15, 1909. After being in session four months and sixteen days Congress adjourned, having passed the Tariff and Census bills, both excellent and well-considered measures, that have worked and are working for the benefit of the people.

"After a recess of only ninety-three days the Congress reassembled on Dec. 6, 1909. Up to this time more than 27,000 public and private bills have been introduced in the House alone, with some 1,200 resolutions of a public nature. The Senate has sent the House about 1,000 bills and resolutions. The House committees to which this mass of proposed legislation was referred have been working early and late to sift the wheat from the chaff. The committees deserve much credit for their painstaking work.

"An enumeration of every good bill passed would be wearisome. I shall therefore confine myself to important bills and legislative propositions acted on favorably.

First, the legislation favored by the President and pledged in the Republican platform, and which has been made law or will be law.

The Railroad bill, extending the regulative power of the Government further over common carriers by rail.

The Postal Savings Bank bill will become law, I believe.

Creation of a commission to inquire into stock and bond issues of railroads and ascertain if they have been watered or not.

Creation of a Bureau of Mines, for which $502,200 is carried in the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill.

Granting the President authority to withdraw from entry certain classes of land in order to perfect the Administration's conservation policy.

The building of two first-class battleships and many smaller navy vessels.

The granting of separate Statehood to Arizona and New Mexico.

New Statutes Passed.

"The following legislation, recommended by the President, but not included in the platform so far, has been placed on the statute books:

The further perfection of the laws in regard to the use of safety appliances on railroads, which will make for the greater safety of railroad employes and travelers.

The creation of a commission to secure facts to enable the effecting of economies in Federal departments.

The white slave legislation.

An appropriation sufficient to meet the needs of the Tariff Board in its efforts to ascertain the difference of the cost of production at home and abroad.

The reorganization of the Lighthouse Service.

"The issue of $20,000,000 bonds to further irrigation works seems assured, and legislation not recommended by the President and not included in the Republican platform has been made effective as follows:

An act to prevent the sale of adulterated and misbranded paris green and insectides and fungicides. This legislation was asked for by farmers' organizations in all parts of the country.

An act providing regulations designed to prevent collisions between vessels.

An act to permit agricultural entries upon coal lands.

An act to compel common carriers by railroads to furnish to the Inter-State Commerce Commission full reports of accidents.

An act to permit the parole of Federal prisoners whose conduct after conviction warrants the showing of mercy.

An act authorizing States and Territories to select lands in lieu of lands included within forest reserves.

An act licensing customs brokers.

An act providing a tariff system for the Philippines.

An act amending in many important respects the act providing for the government of Hawaii.

An act fixing gold coin as the medium for paying the public debt of the United States. A piece of legislation little mentioned or noticed in passage, but one of the most important passed in recent times.

An act establishing a Commission of Fine Arts.

Provision has been made for rafsing the wreck of the Maine from Havana Harbor.

An act further to promote the efficiency of the militia.

An act to protect the seal fisheries of Alaska.

An act for the parole of juvenile prisoners in the District of Columbia.

This Congress has passed more legislation for the District of Columbia than any previous Congress.

Various important acts for the benefit of the Indian tribes and settlers on and near Indian lands.

An act further restricting and regulating the character of immigration into the United States.

An act amending the law in relation to tonnage duties on vessels entering the United States otherwise than by sea.

A New Era in Legislation.

"A bill to prevent gambling in cotton futures and an act to set apart large areas in the Appalachian Range as a National Forest Reserve will, I believe, become a law.

"The Rivers and Harbors act passed by this Congress marks a new era in such legislation, providing, as it does, a plan for co-ordinating the work of river and harbor improvement and making from year to year harmonious with past achievements and future needs.

"A large number of needed public buildings are authorized in the bill passed by the House, the erection of which will save the Government large sums now paid for rental for quarters in many cases inadequate.

"One of the most gratifying incidents of the session was the acceptance of the House's Post Office appropriation bill by the Senate without amendment, something unheard of hitherto in the history of appropriation legislation.

"President Taft's exhortation to economy has been heeded and only those appropriations were authorized which will serve good and efficient administation. The needs of the Department of Agriculture in its work for the benefit of producers and consumers of agricultural products have been well provided for, a total of $13,487,636 being allowed that arm of the Federal service. An important clause of the Agricultural bill was that setting aside $30,000 to enable the department to conduct a series of tests of plants and woods to find, if possible, a substitute for making wood pulp.

"For gauging of streams $150,000 is allowed the Coast and Geodetic Survey.

Sentimental Legislation as Well.

"The Department of Justice is given $200,000 in addition to the unexpended balance remaining from former years to provide for the strict enforcement of the Sherman Anti-Trust law.

"The sum of $75,000 is provided for carrying on the work of the joint commission which is investigating the questions arising out of disputes over the boundary waters between the United States and Canada.

"While we were so engrossed in utilitarian legislation, however, we found time to pass legislation appealing to sentiment. Thus, we have passed an act enabling the Government to take steps further to protect its holdings in the big tree region of California, and another to establish a new park, to be known as the Glacier National Park, in the Rocky Mountains, near the Canadian boundary, in Montana. Also the franking privilege has been extended to cover certain classes of reading matter for the blind. The sufferers from the Costa Rican earthquake were granted prompt relief by the United States.

"In all I have said, however, I have not mentioned in extenso the provisions of the big appropriation or supply bills, which are, after all, the great work of Congress.

"These bills were well prepared in committee, perfected in debate, and passed, as a rule, in good time. They show further proofs of the ability of the Republican Party to handle great business questions and to provide amply for the needs of good government, economically administered. With the Payne Tariff bill to provide sufficient revenue, with Republicans on guard to see that the Government receipts are distributed so as to provide for good government, the country is in good case.

"The Republican Party, as usual, goes before the country with a splendid record of achievement as its best asset, while the Democrats are destined, as usual, to trail along with a record of captious criticism and demagogic policies as their heaviest liability."

WOMEN VOTE ON BOND ISSUE.

Aged Colored Woman One of the Earliest at the Polls in Annapolis.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 21.—The women of Annapolis enjoyed to-day the right of franchise and aided materially in approving a $25,000 issue of municipal improvement bonds. The act was ratified by a majority of 110 votes.

The ballot was given only to taxpayers, including white and colored women, and the women turned out in greater proportion than did the men. Alderman R. G. Chaney, who owns a livery stable, was kept busy carrying them to the polls.

Although some of the women were embarrassed and felt a bit out of place, not a single ballot was spoiled.

Among the first at the polls was Mary Johns, an aged colored woman, whose husband's small property is in her name.

MINNESOTA INDORSES TAFT.

State Convention Refuses to Renew Allegiance to Roosevelt Policies.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 21.—An indorsement of the "wise, conciliatory" Administration of President Taft, but a refusal to reaffirm "our unalterable support of the policies promulgated by Theodore Roosevelt," marked the work of the Minnesota Republican State Convention, which met to-day and nominated a full State ticket.

Gov. A. O. Eberhart was renominated by acclamation and Senator Moses E. Clapp was unanimously indorsed for re-election. The other nominations were:

Lieutenant Governor—S. Y. GORDON, Brewns Valley.
Secretary of State—JULIUS A. SCHMAL, Redwood Falls.
State Auditor—S. G. IVERSON, Rushford.
Attorney General—GEORGE T. SIMPSON, Winona.
State Treasurer—WALTER J. SMITH, Eveleth.
Associate Justices of Supreme Court—E. A. JAGGARD, St. Paul; P. L. BROWN, Lucerne; D. F. SIMPSON, Minneapolis; CALVIN L. BROWN, Stevenstown.
Railroad and Warehouse Commissioner—C. F. STAPLES, St. Paul.
Clerk of Supreme Court—E. A. CASWELL, Anoka.

The insurgent element, led by Hugh T. Halbert, obtained the passage of a resolution in favor of the conservation of National resources "along the lines suggested by Theodore Roosevelt," but efforts to get favorable action on a resolution indorsing the "other Roosevelt policies" and a resolution denouncing the Payne-Aldrich Tariff bill as a "repudiation of the pledges of the Republican Party to the American people" were overwhelmingly defeated.

The delegates also indorsed the work of all Minnesota members in Congress "for their efforts in endeavoring to secure legislation in the interests of the people."

OHIO CONVENTION WILL BOOM HARMON

Temporary Chairman Declares Governor Is to be President After Reforming His State.

BRYAN MEN MEET DEFEAT

State Committee Against Senatorial Nomination—Bernard, Cincinnati Boss, Loses Committee Place.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, June 21.—Gov. Judson Harmon's boom for the Presidency in 1912 was officially started at the Democratic State Convention to-night by Atlee Pomerene, the temporary Chairman. His declaration that Gov. Harmon would be sent to the White House to continue his career of reform was made to prepare the way for a resolution which will be put before the convention to-morrow pledging the Ohio Democracy to his candidacy. There is no doubt of its passage. Mention of the plan to-night brought out a wild demonstration.

Gov. Harmon's friends appear to be in absolute control of the convention. While he is keeping his hands off, there is little doubt that his wishes will rule.

The Bryan wing of the party met with defeat this afternoon, when an attempt was made to commit the State Central Committee to the plan for the indorsement of a Senatorial candidate which has been urged by William J. Bryan. A resolution to amend the convention call to provide for the naming of a Democrat to oppose Senator Charles Dick was presented by Newton D. Baker of Cleveland in the name of former Mayor Tom L. Johnson of that city. The committee rejected the resolution by a vote of 14 to 6, on the ground that it was too late for such action.

The new State Committee, elected by the district caucuses, remains in the control of Harmon's friends. A feature of these elections was the defeat of Lewis C. Bernard, the Democratic boss of Cincinnati. Bernard has been accused of secret hostility to many of the Governor's reforms and was fought by his adherents. John W. O'Hara was elected as committeeman in his place by only one vote, after a tumultuous meeting of the First District delegates. Tom L. Johnson was re-elected to the committee.

In the session of the delegates from the Twelfth District, Columbus and vicinity, it was necessary to summon the police to quell the disturbance that arose when the delegates proceeded from personalities to violence.

At the meeting of the State Committee Edward W. Hanley of this city, the Harmon leader, was made Chairman for another campaign, and John O'Dwyer of Toledo Vice Chairman.

The convention held a short session this afternoon for organization, and was called together at 7:30 o'clock this evening, when Temporary Chairman Pomerene made his speech. At one point he said:

"After Gov. Harmon shall have relieved this State from graft, introduced new business methods and greater economy in the various departments of our State, and reformed our taxation system the Democracy of Ohio proposes to send him to Washington to introduce the same reforms of the affairs of the Federal Government and the same business methods."

He also attacked President Taft, saying:

"During the fight for better government and for lower and more equitable taxes, where has the President stood? It is not long ago that he held frequent meetings in the White House at Washington with his political followers for the purpose of bringing about the defeat of Gov. Harmon and the Democratic State ticket. Is it not of more importance to the country at large that the present Republican Administration should look after its present business than that it should devote its time and efforts to defeat the re-election of a Democratic Governor in Ohio?

"If Mr. Taft were less of a Republican President he would be more of an American President. If he were less eager for the success of the Republican Party at the polls, he would be more efficent in the performance of his public duty. But let us not be too severe upon the President. In the words of a Southern paper, 'I love him for the Democrats he is making.'"

Gov. Harmon's nomination for a second term and the choice of the candidates for other places on the State tcket will come to-morrow.

PENNSYLVANIA SLATE MADE.

Tener Heads It and Penrose Is Expected to Put It Through.

HARRISBURG, Penn., June 21.—The Republican State Convention, which will meet here to-morrow, will, unless there is a change in the programme agreed upon to-night by the leaders, nominate the following ticket:

Governor—Congressman JOHN K. TENER of Washington County.
Lieutenant Governor — Ex-Congressman JOHN M. REYNOLDS, Bedford.
Secretary of Internal Affairs—HENRY HOUCK, Lebanon.
State Treasurer—FRED C. WRIGHT, Susquehanna.

Aside from the opening of headquarters by Mr. Tener and the arrival of a large number of boomers from his Congressional district, the principal happening of interest to-day was the withdrawal of Robert S. Murphy of Cambria from the race for Governor. Senator Penrose kept in close touch with convention matters during the day and to-night.

GAYNOR THROWS OUT PLAIN-CLOTHES MEN

for such protection money as he would pay.

On the other hand, in the Harlem district last night the police asked in anxiety how the Mayor thought it would be possible for them to carry on the routine work of the department if every policeman must be at all times in uniform. They expressed freely the belief that as soon as the plain clothes men had provided their new outfits they would be ordered to do duty again in citizens' clothes.

They argued that in that part of the city there are a large number of complaints of robberies and burglaries from the Washington Heights district, and on the east side many attempts to run policy and other gambling games.

At the East 104th Street Station it was said there have been Italian plain clothes men who have been kept busy as they could possibly be keeping watch on the underground doings of Little Italy. On the west side, at the 125th Street Station, the four plain clothes men, it was said last night, had little time to spare from investigating the multitude of complaints from the large apartment house district, of which it is the centre. Then, too, there are countless subpoenas to serve, and that job, not easy at any time, will, it was asserted, become practically impossible if every summons must be delivered by a policeman in full regalia.

Harlem Police Fearful.

The Harlem Detective Bureau, it is said, is not strong enough to attend to all the routine matters that come up. Its hands are often full with really serious crimes, and a murder or an abduction will take every man it possesses. Consequently the ordinary work must be done from the station house, and for this the Mayor's critics maintained last night plain-clothes men are absolutely essential.

A significant point made in regard to the transfers last night was the fact that the plain-clothes men will no longer remain in the districts to which they have been accustomed. As a rule they have all been sent to report to the station houses nearest to their own homes. They have undoubtedly a peculiar and extenprolonged as they are throughout the summer, are potent causes of neurasthenic breakdown among those who are unable to escape to the country for a real vacation; the usual two weeks or succession of week ends are not sufficiently recuperative. The incessant grind continues to burn up the nervous and bodily fuel, the albumen and phosphorus that should normally be fully supplied by the ordinary meals. Those whom necessity or inclination retains within a city should add a small but regular supply of Sanatogen to their menu in the summer. By supplying the necessary albumen and phosphorus in a concentrated and easily digested form, this well-known food tonic furnishes the extra energy needed to work under adverse surroundings, and that without the reaction that follows the use of stimulants. This question of neurasthenia and how to meet it is fully and interestingly discussed in The American Disease, a booklet issued free to inquirers by The Bauer Chemical Company, 506 Everett Building, Union Square, New York. The contentions of the author as to the great value of Sanatogen are supplemented by a remarkable selection of testimonials from prominent people of both sexes, accompanied by handsome portraits, and by scientific indorsement from European physicians of world wide fame. This book is read with profound interest by overwrought people in all fields of endeavor—literary, artistic, social, professional—wherein modern civilization has imposed new burdens. Once neurasthenia was recognized as a natural phenomenon of modern life, this remedy was not long in forthcoming, for science rides abreast of human needs. A perusal of the book referred to will convince any impartial reader that Sanatogen is the absolutely logical outcome of the scientific study of Neurasthenia, apart from the conviction imposed by the impressive mass of testimony evoked by its remedial powers.

Sad Jar to Brooklyn Captains.

Brooklyn Police Captains appear to be anything but pleased with the idea of abolishing the "plain-clothes" details in their precincts and putting the so-called wardmen in uniform. Particularly is the plan looked upon with disfavor by the commanders of the outlying or suburban precincts. None of these commanders would express any views for publication last night, apparently having no disposition to appear as criticising the powers that be at Headquarters. But most of them seemed to think that the plan would handicap them in their work.

"I can't see how we are to do effective police work in certain kinds of cases without precinct detectives," said one of them, who is in command of a suburban precinct. "It means that many a scent will be cold before it is taken up. Often in cases of murder, but for the prompt appearance on the scene of detectives, clues establishing the identity of the murderer or leading to his capture would be destroyed.

"In some cases the slayer may not have had time to get clean away and may be hiding in the neighborhood. What will likely happen in such cases if we are to depend entirely upon Headquarters for detectives? The crime is discovered and word is sent to the Detective Bureau. Travel to the outlying precincts in Brooklyn is slow and it would probably be an hour or more before detectives from downtown could reach the scene of the crime. By that time, in some cases, everything would have become 'cold.'

"The guilty one would have time to escape from the neighborhood and valuable witnesses would lose themselves. This may be true, too, in cases involving other serious crimes. To my way of thinking, the precinct detective is a necessity. The man in uniform is handicapped in doing other than mere patrol duty. The very sight of his uniform closes the mouths of people. There is plenty of work for a 'plain-clothes' man to do in a precinct which cannot be done by the men from the Detective Bureau unless they are taken away from more important work. I can't see what it is expected will be gained by the change, and I think it will soon be found that the plan will not work well."

Why Musicians Revere The Great Pianos

For two centuries, men have devoted their lives to improving piano construction. Of all the thousands who have made this their work, less than a score have left behind them an important development.

One of these men was Albert Weber.

Of the hundreds of different pianos that have been, and are being, made, less than ten are today called "great." Of these few, fewer still pretend to equal the beauty of tone of the

Weber Piano

Musicians realize the colossal facts back of each great piano. They realize the years of study and the lives of work that tone-beauty represents.

The boundless beauty of Weber tone tells a really wonderful story.

It means that the Weber is one of the fine fruits of centuries of effort. It means that the whole world is laid under tribute for the rarest, most costly materials. It means such painstaking care, such patient skill, such relentless honesty in workmanship as is called for in no other craft.

Each smallest part must be perfect.

A minute shade out of alignment or balance would spoil some detail of Weber tone.

It is worth while to hear such a piano as this—and better worth while to own one.

It is because musicians know all that it means that they have always so loved the tone of the Weber. It is thus that this piano has earned and deserved the world-wide prestige that, for 60 years, it has held without one questioning word.

You are invited and urged to come to Aeolian Hall, to hear—and to play on—the Weber Piano.

BRING ROOSEVELT INTO HUGHES FIGHT

Report Reaches Albany That ex-President Is Against Primary Legislation.

BLOCKING GRAFT INQUIRY

Speaker Rules Out Two Attempts to Follow Governor's Suggestions—Grady Leads Attack on Hughes.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 21.—The Capitol corridors have been alive to-day with rumors that ex-President Roosevelt, whom most Republicans are ready to accept as the real leader of the Republican Party in this State, is taking an active interest in the direct nominations fight now in progress here, and that while he is not openly taking sides with the opponents of Gov. Hughes, word is being quietly passed to his friends that no essential party purpose could be achieved by passing a direct primary bill at the extraordinary session.

On the other hand, Senator Josiah T. Newcomb of New York, a Hughes Republican, who has made two trips to Washington recently and who has talked with President Taft, made a speech in the Senate to-day urging the legislative leaders to make caucus matters out of the Direct Nominations bill and the Governor's recommendations for the passage of a graft resolution that will vest the committee with ample powers for a full and sweeping investigation of legislative corruption.

"This is not my own idea," said Senator Newcomb. "Before I came here I had talked to those who have the right to speak for the Republican Party."

Senator Newcomb declared after the session that he had said all he intended or had a right to say on the floor of the Senate. He returned from Washington only last night.

Wherever the handful of men in the Senate and Assembly who have taken it upon them to fight the Governor's battles in the Legislature went to-day in their efforts to canvass their strength they were met by answers from men who had voted for the bill at the regular session, sometimes evasive but always indicative of an assurance on their part that Mr. Roosevelt had been showing his hand and that it was against the Governor's pet reform.

According to one of the men who has taken a leading part in the advocacy for direct primaries, the conversations he had on the subject had taken about this form:

"I suppose we can depend upon you to vote for the Direct Nominations bill, as you did at the regular session?"

"Well, old man," the reply would come, "you know that at heart I am with you, but I'm afraid we are up against it. I hear that Roosevelt is against us. Under the circumstances, I do not see how we can do anything."

The next question would be put with a view of tracing to its origin the report of Mr. Roosevelt's attitude, which is not accepted at its face value by those who have looked into the situation carefully.

The reply in every instance would be about the same—a pledge of secrecy had been imposed; they could not divulge the source of their information, but the tip came in some vague and roundabout way from a Federal officeholder in New York who is supposed to be closer to the former President than any other man in the New York State organization.

In every instance also the reason given for the attitude of the former President was the same—that it would do no good now from a party point of view to pass a Direct Primaries bill; that it would merely tend to the personal aggrandizement of Gov. Hughes, and that no good purpose could be served by "boosting the Governor's game" now, seeing that he was soon to withdraw from an active political life to the seclusion of the United States Supreme Court.

What led many legislators to accept these reports is the fact that at one time prior to 1908 there existed marked differences between Mr. Roosevelt and Gov. Hughes. However, it is also pointed out that the split was due largely to misunderstandings growing out of differences of temperament, and that the ideals and purposes in public life of both men are in all essentials identical. It is declared that what misunderstandings existed at one time were removed.

Grady Starts Attack on Hughes.

The legislative session to-day had not been in progress long before there were signs of an intention of the legislative leaders affiliated with the machine to defeat both the Direct Nominations bill and the Governor's recommendation for a new graft resolution. In the Senate Minority Leader Grady made a bitter attack on Gov. Hughes for meddling in something which Mr. Grady said was none of the Governor's business.

"I have often thought that the Governor had about gone the limit in the exercise of executive power," said Senator Grady, his voice vibrant with wrathful emotion. "I had never thought that he would dare to carry arbitrary power as far as he did in his message last night. It is the first time in the history of this State that a Governor has dared to criticise a concurrent resolution of the Senate and Assembly. A measure of that nature does not come before him for approval; he has no jurisdiction over it; he is as much a stranger to it as though he was not a citizen of this State. On the other hand, it is as binding on him as it is to the humblest citizen in this State.

"I shall not content myself with saying that it was a piece of impertinence on his part, but I shall go as far as to say that the Governor in the part of his message which had reference to the resolution failed to recognize one of the vital principles of our form of Government, which is one of checks and balances."

Senator Hinman replied to the minority leader at once, saying:

"I believe the Governor truly represented the sentiment not only in his own party, but in both parties, when he declared in his message that it is due to the people that the investigation be as broad and sweeping as it can be made. Personally I believe much that has been said about corruption in the Legislature to be untrue, but, on the other hand, it is plain to all that there are things which should be investigated, and I think the Governor in his message points out the correct way to do it."

Senator Newcomb, who was instrumental in bringing the Allds case to a head at the regular session, then took the floor. He taunted his brethren of the majority with the influence they permitted Minority Leader Grady to wield in the Senate and urged a caucus on primary legislation and graft probing.

"Prompt action is expected from the Senate in both these matters," said Senator Newcomb. "I have not the slightest doubt what this action would be if the will of the responsible majority in this Senate instead of that of the minority leader were carried out. Upon the matter of this investigation in particular it is high time that the majority declared its final determination. I have too much regard for my party to believe that the weakened resolution we now have is the responsible expression of the party will. We should instantly call the dominant majority together and reach a conclusion on these two important party questions. That is the duty of the leaders in both houses, and I hope they will have the courage to perform that duty."

Mr. Grady endured the taunts of Mr. Newcomb until the latter had finished. Then he got up to protest.

"I'm sick and tired of the frequent suggestion that I have ever been in command of the Senate," he said. "As long as I have been floor leader of the minority I have been permitted to go just so far and no further. When there has arisen the necessity to trample the minority under foot, then they have covered my poor body with bruises and scars. It is I who have been the mangled victim of the Republican oligarchy we now have."

Assembly Leaders Block Inquiry.

In the Assembly Lindon Bates, Jr., of New York tried to introduce a graft resolution shorn of all the verbiage which is said to obscure the purpose and restrict the scope of the proposed committee in the emasculated resolution passed at the regular session. He was stopped by Majority Leader Merritt and Speaker Wadsworth. The former raised the point that under the rules of the Assembly for the regular session, which have been adopted for the present extraordinary one, resolutions can be introduced only on Monday nights, and the Speaker sustained him.

Later Assemblyman Charles A. Dana of New York tried to introduce a bill providing for an investigation by a commission composed of some legislators and some outsiders. There is no standing rule against introducing bills, but the Speaker held that under the rules governing an extraordinary session no bill can be received which does not deal with a recommendation made by the Governor in his message. The Speaker held that the Dana bill did not propose to carry out any such recommendations.

Thus every attempt in the lower house to act on the suggestion for a thorough graft investigation was successfully blocked. The matter now rests solely with the Committee on Ways and Means, which can be depended upon not to go back on its action at the regular session. It was while the resolution was pending before that body that it was changed.

Primary Bills Put In.

Some progress was made in regard to the direct nominations matter. The Cobb compromise bill, which limits nominations by direct vote at the primaries to candidates for Congress, the State Legislature, and county offices, was introduced in both houses. In the Senate, where the bill was passed as a caucus measure at the regular session, the Judiciary Committee accepted responsibility for the Cobb bill. In the Assembly, where it was overwhelmingly defeated, George A. Green of Kings, one of the sponsors for the Governor's plan for a State-wide application of the system—also defeated—consented to father the compromise measure.

Senator Grady and Minority Leader Daniel D. Frisbie of the Assembly also reintroduced the Primary bill drafted by a committee of the Democratic League, which exempts New York City from the operation of the system. This bill also was defeated at the regular session.

An effort was made to prevail on Senator George A. Meade of Monroe to introduce again his Primary bill, which was passed in both houses of the Legislature at the regular session, but was vetoed by Gov. Hughes. Senator Meade, however, declined to do so on the ground that undoubtedly the Governor would veto it again.

Prior to the introduction of the bill in the Senate Mr. Grady made a red hot speech, in which he denounced the Governor for calling the Legislature back to consider a proposition which had already been thrashed out.

"The Governor," said the angry Grady, "feels justified in treating you as a lot of unruly school boys. Too long has this Legislature tamely submitted to the whip and the lash of the Chief Executive. Now that you have been called back you will have a chance to vote yourselves cowards to-day by reversing your vote or to assert your independence by standing by your former action. If the minority were better represented here to-day I should move that we adjourn until Oct. 11."

This is the date on which the Governor will be expected to assume his new duties in the United States Supreme Court. Mr. Grady took up the admission of Congressman Sibley of Pennsylvania that under the direct primary system in vogue in that State he had spent $48,000 for his nomination.

"Sibley, if I may say it, was a discredited Republican, but he got the nomination all right," said Mr. Grady. "All of which goes to show what a beautiful system this is for a poor man. Anybody can get into the field provided he has $48,000. He can get the nomination, but on election day the meat axe comes out, and as a result I venture to say that this heavily Republican district may be represented by a hated Democrat in the next Congress. Yes, the system is all right to break down party organization."

In addition to the Direct Nominations bill Assemblyman Artemus Ward, Jr., of New York introduced three of his bills looking to election reforms in New York City. One of the bills extends the signature identification law now in vogue in general elections to the primaries. Another reduced the basis of the election district in New York City from 500 to 400 voters. The third provides that watchers at the polls need not be residents of the district in which they are stationed on election day.

A majority of the legislators returned to their homes this evening. They will remain away until Thursday evening of next week, when a quorum has been ordered. In the meantime there will be daily sessions of the committees, who will prepare the various bills for final action. It is intended to adjourn sine die next week.

To Raise More Revenue.

At a conference of legislative leaders this afternoon it was decided to impose a direct tax of .2705 of a mill to reimburse the general fund of the State for contributions made to the canal and highway sinking funds, and bills were prepared for introductions at to-morrow's session of the Legislature.

Appropriations from the general fund this year to these sinking funds in lieu of a direct tax totaled $2,655,600, of which $1,601,100 was contributed to the canal debt fund and $1,054,500 to the highway funds. The tax to be imposed if the bill becomes a law will raise this amount.

OUR DEMAND ON CHINA.

America Joins England, France, and Germany in Han-Kow Railway Note.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—The State Department has received the proposition from Great Britain that America, Great Britain, France, and Germany combine in an identical note to the Chinese Government urging the issue of a decree to put into effect at once the project of a loan to finance the construction of the Han-Kow Railroad.

Secretary Knox has accepted the suggestion. If the decree is issued the result will be to place $7,500,000 of American money out of the $30,000,000 required for the line.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 21.—Willard D. Straight, representing an American financial syndicate, conferred to-day with M. Korotovitz, the Russian Minister to China, who arrived here a few days ago and who will leave St. Petersburg to-night on a vacation.

Mr. Straight has made appointments with M. Kokovtzoff, the Finance Minister, for to-morrow, and with other Cabinet members later. He expects to go over the Chinese railroad situation and other important matters in which American capital is interested.

English Warrant for Charlton.

LONDON, June 21.—A warrant was issued here to-day for the arrest of Porter Charlton, whose wife, Mary Scott Castle Charlton, was murdered in Italy, her body being thrown into Lake Como after having been placed in a trunk. The issue of the warrant followed a request made by the Italian Government, the Italian officials believing that Charlton is hiding in England.

MEXICAN BORDER IS IN REBELLION

Troops Hurried to the Disturbed Area — Citizens Pressed Into Service.

WOMEN FLEE TO ARIZONA

United States Troops Held in Readiness — Mexican Presidential Election Next Sunday.

EL PASO, June 21.—Although the expected attack on the Mexican Custom House at Naco, Sonora, was frustrated to-day by the arrival of soldiers from Cananea, the entire Mexican border from Cananea to Ciudad Porfirio Diaz, opposite Eagle Pass, Texas, is in a state of revolutionary foment, and outbreaks are feared at a dozen places.

All the available Mexican troops have been detailed along the border, with orders to suppress all disturbances with an iron hand.

The principal reliance is placed on the Rurales, organized by President Diaz himself.

Many citizens have been pressed into service and armed, to protect the Government funds at the ustom Houses along the border.

The Government funds at Naco were removed to United States territory last night for protection, but were taken back to Mexico to-day. Customs officers and women and children who fled to Arizona last night returned to their homes to-day.

The troops sent from Cananea are quartered in the warehouse of the Cananea Copper Company, and are making preparations for an extended stay. Two hundred additional troops are held in readiness at Cananea to march to Naco at a moment's notice. Commissary Cubillas has purchased all the available arms at Naco, Ariz., and has armed a body of citizens to protect Naco, Mexico.

Reinforcements have been received by Col. Kosterlitzky, in command at Cananea. He has spread details of troops along the border to intercept smuggled arms, and has ordered that houses be searched for arms in all tht northern Sonora villages. A house-to-house search is going on.

Three burros were seized by masked men on the United States side of the border on Sunday night and were loaded with ammunition, which was carried across the border into the San José mountains. A squad of Rurales is in pursuit of the party.

Serious disturbances are reported to have taken place at Ciudad, Porfirio Diaz, whence the revolutionary leaders have fled to Eagle Pass, Texas.

It is said by Mexican officers that newspapers printed in Spanish on the American side of the border have been a large factor in stirring up discontent.

The movement has been singularly free from expressions of animosity toward Americans.

Two troops of the Eighth Cavalry at Fort Huachuca, Ariz., have orders, it is said, to move at the first report of trouble.

Twenty soldiers reached Naco, Sonora, this morning from Cananea to protect the government stores on the border.

BISBEE, Ariz., June 21.—The Mexican Custom House and Postoffice at Naco, Sonora, were guarded by customs guards last night, in anticipation of an attack by revolutionists. The Mexican customs collector came across the line to Naco, Ariz., bringing the Custom House money, and went to the home of the Mexican Consul, which is guarded by American deputy sheriffs.

Yesterday afternoon Mexican Consul Torrez, at Naco, Ariz., received information that an attack was planned on Naco, Sonora. The attacking party was said to be composed of Mexican revolutionists from both sides of the line. The plan was to seize the Custom House and Postoffice. The Consul communicated with the City of Mexico and Mexican troops have been ordered to Naco.

All the rifles and ammunition in Naco, Ariz., were taken across the line last night by Mexican customs officials, and every available man was armed and ready in case of an attack.

MEREDIA, Mexico, June 21.—A detachment of the Tenth Battalion has captured Maximiliano Ramirez and Bonilla Osorio, the leaders of the insurrection near Xeneba.

Osorio is accused by the Treasurer of Valladolid of having demanded of his wife, with pistol in hand, the funds of the safe, amounting to $651.

The men were taken to Valladolid for trial.

MEXICO CITY, June 21.—The Federal elections will be held next Sunday. Both parties, Re-electionist and Anti-Re-electionist, have issued instructions to voters as to how they should cast their ballots. The elections will be for President, Vice President, members of the Supreme Court, Senators, and Deputies.

The Central Re-electionist Club has sent a circular to all its branch organizations indicating what the committees should do in furthering the candidacy of Gen. Diaz.

The Presidential candidate of the Anti-Re-electionists, Francisco Madero, is in the custody of the Federal officers on a charge of having offered insults to the Nation.

The statement made by Anti-Re-electionist newspapers that the election lists are imperfect is denied by the Re-Electionists.

TRUNK REVEALS A MURDER.

Murderer Confesses to Placing His Victim's Body in It with Woman's Aid.

PORTLAND, Ore., June 21.—Jesse B. Webb to-night confessed to the killing of W. A. Johnson, whose body was found in a trunk at Union Station last night. Webb, in a signed statement to the police, said he killed Johnson in self-defense after a brawl between the two men in Johnson's room at a hotel.

Mrs. D. W. Kersch, who was arrested with Webb, is exonerated from complicity in the crime by the confessed slayer, who charges, however, that she conspired with him in placing the body in the trunk and sending it to the station. Mrs. Kersch was supposed to be the wife of Johnson, but she admitted to-night that she was the wife of Bert Kersch, a city employe of Seattle, and that she ran away with Webb a year ago.

ROBBER IN SAILOR'S GARB.

Police Believe Prisoner Is a Faker Not Entitled to Wear the Uniform.

James Hanley of 318 West Seventy-fifth Street woke from a sleep under one of the trees in Fort George Park last evening to find a sailor in full uniform bending over him and fumbling at his pockets. He noticed, too, that his gold chain, worth $10, was missing. Then he jumped up and grappled with the sailor.

Policeman Kelleher of the West 152d Street Station found them fighting, and on complaint of Hanley arrested the sailor on a charge of grand larceny. The chain was found in his possession. He said he was Thomas Doyle, a seaman of the United States cruiser Franklin, now at the Norfolk Navy Yard, and that he had come to New York on a furlough. The police believe he is one of several fake sailors who beg in uniform for a living.

REVENUE RECEIPTS INCREASE.

Last Month They Were $2,738,697 Over May, 1909.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Internal revenue receipts for May were $22,252,922, an increase of $2,738,697 over May, 1909. For the eleven months of the present fiscal year the receipts were $20,125,361 more than for the corresponding eleven months of the last fiscal year.

The principal items showing an advance last month were $932,512 in spirits, $120,932 in cigars, $132,464 in cigarettes, $38,616 in snuff, $559,470 in manufactured tobacco, and $474,408 in beer.

May shows a greater gain in receipts than any other month of the fiscal year.

ANTI-TYPHOID VACCINE.

Prof. Vincent Tells French Academy of Medicine of Effective Method.

PARIS, June 21.—Prof. Vincent to-night announced before the Academy of Medicine the discovery of an effective anti-typhoid vaccine, which he prepared by steeping typhoid bacilli in a weak solution of water and sodium chloride (common salt) with an admixture of ether.

Prof. Vincent made a number of experiments with animals, which, after being vaccinated, withstood subsequent inoculation with typhoid germs. He also vaccinated thirteen persons, an examination of whose blood after the operation showed that it possessed to a high degree properties destructive of the typhoid bacillus.

Further experiments demonstrated the fact that the typhoid bacilli, when placed in contact with the serum of blood taken from the person vaccinated lost all vitality.

The practice of inoculation to prevent typhoid fever is general in the United States Army at the present time. Inoculation of all the soldiers in the Department of the East was made under the direction of Major Wright of the United States Medical Corps.

The British Army has reduced the percentage of typhoid cases in India by inoculating soldiers with a vaccine prepared from dead typhoid bacilli. Out of 1,400 cases of inoculation reported to a board of distinguished American physicians, including Dr. Simon Flexner and Dr. Alexander Lambert, but one case of typhoid was reported to have been contracted by an inoculated person, and the board pronounced the method a success.

HOUSE STILL EXEMPTS LABOR

Won't Consent to Money Being Used to Prosecute Labor as Senate Wants.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—The question of labor unions and the Sherman anti-trust law operated in sending the Sundry Civil bill back to conference to-day when the House refused to recede from its position that no money appropriated in the bill should be used in the prosecution under that law "of any combination having in view the increasing of wages, shortening of hours, or bettering the condition of labor."

The House had inserted this provision in the Sundry Civil bill when appropriating $100,000 for the enforcement of the anti-trust laws. On the bill reaching the Senate the House proviso as to labor unions was stricken out in its entirety and $200,000 was made available for enforcing the Sherman law. The House did not object to the increased appropriation, but instructed its conferees to refuse to accept the Senate elimination of the clause.

The House also voted to stand firm on its provision that the Bureau of Standards, at a cost of $50,000, should continue the investigation of structural materials, such as stone, clays, and cement for use of the Government. The Senate made the amount $100,000 and provided that the investigation should be made under the newly created Bureau of Mines.

RAPS POSTMASTER GENERAL.

Inability to See "His Excellency" Angers Congressman Slayden.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Sarcastic criticism of Postmaster General Hitchcock by Representative Slayden of Texas, because of his inability to obtain an interview, called forth applause on the Democratic side of the House to-day.

After telling of a futile attempt to see the Postmaster General last December, Mr. Slayden said he had "smothered his indignation," and again had attempted to get an interview with "his Excellency" in regard to the establishment of a mail route which had been held up. He had been told finally, he said, that he could see Mr. Hitchcock after the adjournment of Congress.

"I have had no difficulty in seeing the President," added Mr. Slayden, "and I have found him genial and courteous. But I have never been able to penetrate the barrier that surrounds the august person of the Postmaster General."

CONSERVATION BILL PASSES.

Withdrawal of Public Lands by Presidential Order Legalized.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—The House this afternoon accepted the Senate Conservation bill providing for the withdrawal of public lands by Presidential order, thus legalizing withdrawals heretofore made by President Roosevelt and President Taft. These withdrawals have been made without direct sanction of law in the past. The measure now agreed upon by the Senate and the House gives the President full power to act in the premises.

GET MORE JEWS EXPELLED.

Orthodox Residents of Kieff Suburbs Appeal Successfully to Governor.

KIEFF, June 21.—Owing to the decree of expulsion many Jews took refuge in the suburbs of Solomenka and Demieffka. As a consequence rents at these places increased enormously.

The orthodox residents, who are largely workmen from neighboring factories, sent a petition to the Governor asking him to intervene. Accordingly, orders have been issued expelling 139 of the Jews from Solomenka and 173 from Demieffka. From June 18 to 21, 217 individuals have been expelled from Kieff.

SMOLENSK, June 21.—The organized search for Jews has been resumed in the Dukhovshtchina district.

To-day a detachment of mounted secret police raided the neighborhood of Yartsevo station, on the Moscow-Brest Railroad, which is an important business centre. They captured fourteen young Jews and took them under arrest to Dukhovshtchina.

An extensive house-to-house search is now going on at other points.

PLAN AERO RACE TO GO ON ALL DAY

Endurance Contest Like a 24-Hour Auto Race to be Held on Hempstead Plains.

TO FLY FROM DAWN TO DUSK

De Lesseps and Rolls, Besides American Fliers Expected to Enter—National Federation Meeting To-morrow

An endurance race between aeroplanes, to start at sunrise and end at sunset, is the latest proposal to show the development of heavier-than-air flying craft. A course two and one-half miles in circumference will be built at Garden City, L. I., by Gage E. Tarbell and suitable stands, fences, and automobile parking spaces erected.

Count Ferdinand de Lesseps, who recently flew from France to England, but was unable to return within the twenty-four hours stipulated for the Matin's $2,500 price, and the Hon. C. S. Rolls, who in a Wright machine was the first man to make a double crossing of the English Channel in an airship of any kind, probably will be among the starters in the proposed race. Both are now on their way to Montreal, where they will fly their Bleriot and Wright aeroplanes in the aviation week that starts next Saturday.

Charles K. Hamilton, Capt. Thomas S. Baldwin, M. J. Seymour, Clifford B. Harmon, Harry S. Harkness, and others whose machines are being constructed or assembled at Garden City, have intimated their desire to compete in this contest. Indications yesterday were that not fewer than twelve machines, including monoplanes and biplanes, would line up for the first race, which will have cash prizes for the professioals and cups for the amateurs, with one Grand Challenge Cup for open competition by both amateurs and professionals, to be defended at subsequent endurance races at the Garden City course.

The site selected for these races, which it is hoped to hold on alternate Saturdays or Sundays throughout the Summer, is the property of the Garden City Company, and constitutes the present aviation grounds on the Hempstead Plains.

It is planned to have two parallel fences about fifteen feet apart running north and south, with a grand stand at the middle of the west side of the field. Back of the second fence will be the parking spaces for motor cars, and, as the 15-foot wide space for spectators who want to stand is at the bottom of a small eminence, automobilists will have a fine, natural gallery from which to view the contests.

The endurance contests will be conducted very much as are the twenty-four-hour automobile races. Judges, stationed all the way around the two and a half mile course, can see that corners are not cut, and the winner will be the flier who completes the greatest number of laps. Aeronauts will be permitted to make any repairs they choose and to come down for repairs, supplies or rest as often as they desire.

Plans are under way for the construction of the stands and fences for the grounds over which the international aviation meet will be held next Fall under the auspices of the Aero Club of America, the present representative in the United States of the International Aeronautical Federation. These grounds lie one mile west of the present aviation field. A meeting of the Board of Governors of the Aero Club will be held today. At this meeting the final plans for the conduct of the international meet will be considered.

Included in the subjects with which the governors will have to deal to-day is the proposed formation of the American Aeronautic Federation. The fifty-five clubs and societies which are joined in the Aeronautic Federation of America will meet at 10 o'clock this morning at the Hotel Astor to adopt a constitution and by-laws. The ten clubs once affiliated with the Aero Club of America, which recently seceded and decided to go it alone under the name of the American Aeronautical Association, will hold another convention at the same hour at the Waldorf-Astoria for a similar purpose. The morning session of both associations will be brief, the idea of the delegates being to appoint working committees on organization, have the two committees meet, decide upon the elementary points on which to base amalgamation, and then to join forces to-morrow in the establishment of a National governing body in aeronautics.

Should such a situation be brought about—and indications last night pointed almost unmistakably to the success of the amalgamation plan, with the two organizations banded as the American Aeronautic Federation—the position of the Aero Club of America, once the parent body in American aviation matters, would be decidedly anomalous. It belongs to neither of the two bodies now contemplating a junction, although should the governors of the Aero Club file an application for membership in the amalgamated federation there is no doubt that it would be favorably acted upon.

It was said last night that if the Aero Club of America did not join the federation, once it was formed and placed on a working basis, the federation would apply to the International Aeronautical Federation for the representation of that body in the United States. This the Aero Club now has. But since it has lost ten of its affiliated clubs and if it remains a non-member of the new federation, the international body probably would transfer the charter to the American Aeronautic Federation, say the men who are forming this.

Clifford B. Harmon, who is a member of both the Aero Club of America, of which he is likely to be elected the next President, and of the Aeronautical Society, which led the movement that has culminated in the proposed formation of the federation, was mentioned on all sides last night as the probable first President of the new organization. It is believed that all conflicting interests will be content with his election to that office.

Mr. Harmon was host yesterday to a number of delegates to the conventions of the two bodies. He took them up the Sound in the steam yacht Oneida, the property of Commodore E. C. Benedict. Mr. Harmon's father-in-law, entertained them at luncheon at Indian Harbor, following which the yacht took them across the Sound to Glenwood. Embarking in six motor cars there Mr. Harmon piloted his guests to the Garden City aviation grounds, where he made a flight in his Farman biplane that lasted nine minutes and forty-seven seconds.

He was the only aviator to go up yesterday. Seymour had his biplane knocked down and shipped to Providence, where he is to give an exhibition on Independence Day. Capt. Baldwin received his new eight-cylinder, fifty horse-power motor yesterday morning, and spent all of the day installing it.

HAMILTON FLIES TWICE.

Sensational Glide of 1,000 Feet Startles Nashville Crowd.

Special to The New York Times.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 21.—Charles K. Hamilton made two flights this afternoon, remaining in the air sixteen and twenty-one minutes, respectively. In the presence of a crowd of 20,000 persons, his glide from a height of 800 feet to the ground was the sensation of the day.

In the first light he ascended to a height of about 600 feet and circled the race course three times. Hearing a noise above the staccato popping of his engine he descended, and found that the wrapping on his balancing rudder had become loosened and needed attention. In a few minutes, however, he was ready for another flight.

At a height of 1,000 feet he circled the mile track four times at a speed of about forty-eight miles per hour. In descending he made a sensational glide that brought the immense crowd to its feet.

Lieut. E. P. Laurson of the Eleventh Cavalry on the personal staff of Gen. A. L. Mills, has obtained permission to go up with Hamilton Friday afternoon, weather permitting.

OPPOSE AMERICA IN TURKEY.

German Diplomats Try to Prevent Grant of Asia Minor Concessions.

BERLIN, June 21.—The Foreign Office, at the request of the American State Department, is inquiring afresh concerning certain concessions in Asia Minor long in negotiation between the Turkish Government and Rear Admiral Colby M. Chester, U. S. N., retired. The Admiral represents a group of American finahcial interests, including, it is understood here, the Standard Oil Company.

Recently Baron Marschall von Bieberstein, the German Ambassador at Constantinople, represented to the Porte that for the Turkish Government to grant these concessions would be to controvert the mining law agreed upon by the Porte and the European Ambassadors.

The representations of the German diplomats appear to have been made at the instance of the Anatolian Railway Company, which is financed largely by the Deutsche Bank. The railway company maintains at Constantinople a so-called political director in the person of Prof. Helfferich, who was formerly connected with the German Foreign Office.

The entrance of American capital into Turkey is regarded with misgivings by the German, French, and British interests already there, and these interests would seem to have united in opposing, by political pressure at the Porte, any favors to Americans.

The Turkish Government, however, encourages investments from the United States, as they will tend to relieve it to some extent of diplomatic pressure when questions relating to finance arise.

ENGLISH STUDENTS' TOUR.

Ten Men from the Universities Sail for Canada and United States.

LIVERPOOL, June 21.—The first party of university men on a tour, made possible by the beneficence of an anonymous philanthropist, left England to-day for Canada and the United States. The students, ten in number, come from Cambridge, Durham, Edinburgh, London, and other universities. Oxford is the only English university which is not represented.

The itinerary will include all the larger cities of Canada as far west as Winnipeg, near which city the men will devote four days to actual farmwork, as a practical way to obtain an insight into Canadian agriculture. From Winnipeg the party will cross the border and visit Madison, Chicago, Pittsburg, Washington, Annapolis, Philadelphia, New York, New Haven, and Cambridge, Mass.

The project is a development of the Rhodes scholarship idea. After the plan had been worked out last year an appeal for funds to defray the expenses was issued.

LINER MEETS ROUGH WEATHER

Passengers on Kronprinz Wilhelm Kept to Their Cabins.

The North German Lloyd liner Kronprinz Wilhelm arrived here yesterday from Bremen after a stormy passage. The liner sailed from Cherbourg on Wednesday, June 15, with a rough sea and southwest swell, which continued till the night of June 19, when the swell changed from southwest to a northerly direction, with heavy rains and hazy, overcast sky.

This continued until Monday night, when the ship had to reduce speed for five hours. Owing to the motion of the ship, the passengers spent most of the trip in their cabins. In spite of the bad weather the Kronprinz Wilhelm made the passage across in 5 days 20 hours 50 minutes, at an average speed of 22.15 knots an hour.

Both dioceses are in the Philippines.

BOSTON, June 21.—The Rev. M. P. Foley was born in this city 43 years ago, and after taking orders here went to Rome, where he was ordained in 1890. He is now rector of the Cathedral of St. Augustine, Fla.

Father Foley is a brilliant scholar and an accomplished linguist.

THE KAISER'S RECOVERY.

Emperor Starts for Kiel To-day with His Doctor's Permission.

BERLIN, June 21.—It has been definitely decided that Emperor William will start for Kiel to-morrow. He will board the imperial yacht Hohenzollern at Altona, and proceed thence to Kiel, to be present during the yachting regatta.

His Majesty had all but abandoned his purpose of seeing this year's races, but the inflammation of his right knee yielded so readily to treatment that the Court physicians were willing that he should make the trip.

A DANISH ROOSEVELT PARK.

Tract Bought by Danish-Americans to be Named in ex-President's Honor.

COPENHAGEN, June 21.—The Committee of Danish-Americans formed for the purpose of acquiring a reservation for public health uses has selected a large tract of land near Aalbord.

The land will be named Roosevelt Park, in honor of the ex-President of the United States, and will be presented to Denmark.

FALDING MUST SUPPORT WIFE

Ordered by Court to Pay Her $40 a Week, Relieving Her Distress.

After hearing a story of distress by a woman complainant and a denial by the defendant husband that he was possessed of large means, Magistrate Dooley, in the Adams Street Court, Brooklyn, yesterday ordered Frederick J. Falding to pay his wife, Anna Falding, $40 a week for a year, placing him under a bond of $2,000. Mrs. Falding had charged her husband with abandonment.

Mr. Falding is a mining engineer, with offices in Broadway, Manhattan, and he lives with his daughters at the Hotel Langham. Mrs. Falding's lawyer estimated that the husband's income was about $25,000 a year. She asserted that his abandonment of her had made her practically destitute. While he was living in luxury, she declared, she was for a time reduced to one meal a day, and that of cornmeal. She was forced, she said, to stay for a while at the Ozanam Home, in Brooklyn.

On behalf of Mr. Falding, it was alleged that the wife owned property at Rideau Lakes, Canada, and was in a position to support herself in comfort. Denying this, Mrs. Falding said that she owned but $300 equity in a five-thousand-dollar house in Canada.

Mr. Falding, who is about 58 years old, testified that he had been employed at a salary of $15,000 a year by the Tennessee Copper Company, but that he left the employ of that concern on Dec. 31. His only expected source of income, he asserted, was a 10 per cent. commission on a plant to cost $80,000 which he is building at Marquette, Mich., for the Pioneer Iron Company. He admitted that when he and his wife separated he agreed to pay her $75 a week, but had to stop these payments when he severed his connection with the Tennessee Copper Company.

Mention was made at the hearing that Mr. Falding had legally adopted as his daughter a trained nurse who had been employed to nurse him while he was ill in Tennessee.

BUILDER ARRESTED FOR $50,000 FRAUD

Creditors Accuse Koller of Auctioning Goods Obtained from Them and Not Paid For.

USED A REPUTABLE NAME

Bought Out a Firm with a Good Rating—Goods Bought on It from All Around, Then Disposed Of.

As Samuel Koller, a contractor, of 981 East Fourteenth Street, Brooklyn, who recently bought out the name, office, and good will of the William J. Nixon Company of Flatbush Avenue, stepped into the Post Office Building in Brooklyn yesterday afternoon as a witness in bankruptcy proceedings brought against him, he was arrested by a United States Deputy Marshal, who told him that the Federal Grand Jury had just indicted him on three counts on a charge of using the mails to defraud. He was told that the authorities knew of 150 firms in all parts of the country who had received orders for building material from his firm, and of whom 49 had shipped goods to fill orders worth about $50,000, for which they had received no payment.

"Well," Koller is said to have remarked, with a shrug, "the lawyers eat up all the money a fellow can make."

Indictments were found also on the same counts and charges against Samuel Mandelbaum, shipping clerk for Koller. He has not been arrested.

According to ex-District Attorney E. Crosby Kindleberger of 2 Rector Street, who, with Charles P. Robinson, was retained by three of the creditors in the proceedings against Koller and Mandelbaum, the alleged frauds were carried out in this way:

On Jan. 19 Koller and another man bought out the name, good-will, and frame office of the William J. Nixon Company, contractors, who were building several houses in the Beverley Road near Flatbush Avenue, paying the firm $800 cash and giving a note for $3,000. The firm was rated in Dun's and Bradstreet's at $10,000 to $20,000. In the frame office shack the new purchasers found catalogues of various building firms throughout the country, and on the basis of these orders were sent to at least 150 firms, according to Mr. Kindelberger, for building materials, rope, glass, paints, oils, varnish, roofing, cement, and the like.

Mr. Kindleberger says he knows of at least forty-nine firms that looked up the rating of the William J. Nixon Company, and finding its credit good, sent shipments. Among these firms, he said, were the New York Cordage Company, which sent goods worth $300; the Standard Varnish Company, which sent $400 worth, and the Kendall Nail and Supply Company, which shipped goods worth $350. These three transactions formed the three counts on which the indictments were found yesterday.

Others, according to Mr. Kindelberger, were the American Linseed Oil Company, $800; the Atlantic Turpentine Company, $700; the Wall Rope Works, $950; John Lucas & Co., $500; the Carter White Lead Company, of Chicago, $500; the D. A. Van Horne Company, $600; the Lafayette Glass Works of Clarksburg, West Va., $1,400; the T. A. Edmonds Company, $1,300; Theodore W. Morris & Co., $350; the Murphy Varnish Company of Newark, $650; the Globe-Wernicke Company, with which an order of $3,000 had been put in but which recovered by replevin proceedings, and the Siegel-Cooper Company, which rejected an order for $2,000 worth of furniture, but shipped a baby carriage worth $28.

The goods in each case were purchased on terms of thirty to sixty days, says Mr. Kindleberger, and when the creditors put in their bills they were put off from time to time, usually by the shipping clerk, Mandelbaum, who gave them first one excuse and then another. The goods were no sooner received, the creditors say, than the purchasers sold them off-hand to auctioneers and junk dealers, always insisting on and receiving cash.

When three of the creditors named through Messrs. Kindleberger and Robinson filed a petition in bankruptcy on April 21 against Koller and had a receiver appointed, they found in the frame office, says the lawyer, merely the four frame walls and nothing else. There was no money, says Mr. Kindleberger, no bank account, no letters, and no books.

The New York Credit Men's Association applied to United States District Attorney William J. Youngs in Brooklyn. The matter was laid before United States District Court Judge Chatfield, who, according to Mr. Kindleberger, suggested that the case was one for criminal rather than civil action. On Tuesday, June 14, the creditors appeared before the Federal Grand Jury, and yesterday the indictments were returned against Koller and Mandelbaum.

Koller was put under bonds of $4,000 by Judge Chatfield, and taken to the Raymond Street Jail pending the payment of the bond. According to Mr. Kindleberger, Koller was convicted before on a charge of grand larceny in 1905, and sentenced by Justice Newburger in the Supreme Court to serve one year in the penitentiary. He appealed but lost, says Mr. Kindleberger, and served the term. In July, 1909, Mr. Kindleberger says, he convicted Koller in Special Sessions on a charge of conspiracy to defraud, but later Koller got a certificate of reasonable doubt from Justice Erlanger, and was released on bail.

Mandelbaum could not be located at Koller's house, where he lives.

WHAT IS ALCOHOLISM?

Leading Physicians Have Solved This Question.

It is not so many years ago that the sufferer from habitual intemperance was an object of universal scorn and contempt. Indeed, this feeling still exists to a very large extent, but not among the doctors.

The efforts of Dr. Isaac Oppenheimer and a few other specialists in nervous diseases have resulted in the definite establishment of the fact that Alcoholism is a disease whose pathological status can be definitely determined. The diagnosis having been made, the treatment can be prescribed with reasonable certainty of a cure.

Whereas formerly the drunkard was left to his fate, to go through the world an object of scorn and pity, now medical science has proclaimed to the world that drunkenness is a disease which can be cured the same as any other disease, and has provided the remedy.

The Oppenheimer Treatment for intemperance is the result of many years of research by Dr. Oppenheimer. Doctors, hospitals and sanitariums all over the land indorse it, many of them using the Treatment for their own patients.

The Oppenheimer Treatment is soothing and free from any objectionable feature whatever. It leaves no bad habit of any kind, no derangement of the digestion, appetite, or any proper function of the system. It cures intemperance by eliminating the desire for alcoholic stimulation, and it leaves the health of the patient much better than before he took the Treatment.

All of this is vouched for by some of the leading citizens in professional, public and private life in the United States, some of whom are Directors or Advisory Directors of the Oppenheimer Institute. Their indorsement is the strongest possible guarantee of the absolute reliability of the Oppenheimer Treatment and of the statements made in its behalf.

Those who decide to take the Oppenheimer Treatment need fear no publicity, isolation or unpleasant surroundings. The Treatment is easy to take, and involves no detention from business, no loss of time, no unpleasant feature of any kind whatever, and the expense is moderate.

Those who are interested, either for themselves, or friends or relatives, are invited to call, write or phone. Every inquiry of whatever nature is held in the strictest confidence, and all letters are answered under professional secrecy. All correspondence is sealed and in plain envelope. The Oppenheimer Institute is located in a private residential street.

WITNESSES UPHOLD ELLIS'S INNOCENCE

Young Woman Stenographer Says Hamburger Told Her He Would Kill Himself.

TAILOR SPEAKS FOR HEALER

Doorkeeper Told Him, Landau Says, That He Contemplated Suicide—Tried to Borrow Money from a Servant.

M. Harold Hochdorf, counsel for "Samri" Ellis, the "mystic healer" accused of the murder of Paul Hamburger, the door attendant of Ellis's establishment in West Forty-fifth Street, who was found shot to death there last Friday, produced so many witnesses yesterday who described various suicide threats on Hamburger's part that the county authorities were impressed.

One of them—Lulu Small, a young woman who is employed as stenographer in the mystic healer's West Forty-fifth Street establishment—was examined all morning by Assistant District Attorney Turnbull and Coroner Holtzhauser without her testimony being materially shaken. Miss Small testified that Hamburger had threatened in her presence to commit suicide not ten minutes before the shot which killed him was fired, but that she saw Ellis himself in the hall on practically the same second that the shot which killed Hamburger rang out.

Typewriter Exonerates Ellis.

"I was engaged by Ellis to do his stenography in the West Forty-fifth Street parlors last January," Miss Small testified, in substance. "One of Ellis's sources of income was the sale of an herb tea which he advertised. It was sold in one-pound packages at $1 a pound. I attended to the correspondence and a Miss Scanlon attended to the files. The day before Hamburger was shot he and I were talking about a suicide story in the newspaper. He could speak little English, and we generally convered in German.

"'What do you call it in English when a man does "selbst-mord"?' Hamburger asked me. I told him that selbst-mord meant suicide.

"'Well,' he said, 'something is going to happen if I don't hear from my family before Saturday.'

"Next morning about 10:30 o'clock Miss Scanlon and I were in the reception room, the door of which opens on the rear passage between the two houses. Hamburger came in. One of us asked him how he felt.

"'Oh, I tell you something is going to happen to-day,' he answered. Then he took some money orders into the front office of No. 9, where 'Samri' Ellis conducted his business. We girls went on with our clerical work for about five minutes, when suddenly, coming from the front office of No. 9, where Hamburger had just gone, we heard a pistol shot. I turned instantly, facing the door leading into the passage. I saw Ellis standing on the threshold of the rear passage between the two houses. He was facing me, and seemed to have been coming from his office to his brother's office, in No. 7, when the shot was fired. He seemed to be as thunderstruck by the sound of the shot as I was. I heard him shout, 'Doc, Doc.' Then from the front office of No. 7, on the other side of the establishment, his brother, Dr. Ellis, came running, also apparently very much startled. Samri took his brother's arm, and both of them ran together toward the front office of No. 9, from where the shot had come."

Assistant District Attorney Turnbull seemed very suspicious of Miss Small's testimony.

Girl Witness Feared Notoriety.

"Why didn't you come forward and tell us all this before?" he demanded. Miss Small said that she feared notoriety. The Assistant District Attorney then switched on to the subject of "Samri" Ellis's Blue Ridge Mining Company. But Miss Small said that her duties in the mystic healing establishment had not been in any way connected with that particular one of the healer's plans.

Another strong witness for the defense whom Lawyer Hochdorf unearthed yesterday was John A. Landau, salesman for a tailor named Clemons at 1,409 Broadway. Landau said that he visited the mystic healing establishment only a day or two before young Hamburger was shot.

"'Samri' Ellis ordered his clothes from us and I was calling to show him some samples," Landau deposes. "On the day on which I called I was let into the house by a young man about 24 years old, of dark complexion, who looked like a Hebrew. He was very neatly dressed. I talked to Ellis about European styles. He wanted to give me a $10 deposit, and left the room to get a $100 bill changed.

"Why don't you order a suit, too?" I asked of the dark, neatly dressed young man, who, I believe, was Hamburger.

"I can't afford it," he answered.

"Why, what do you do with all your money?" I said to humor him.

"I don't want any clothes," he broke out. "I don't care whether I live or die. If things don't change I'll kill myself some day."

"You're silly," I answered.

Then Ellis returned with the change for the $100.

A third witness whom Lawyer Hochdorf got hold of yesterday was Louisa Roeder of 686 Westchester Avenue. She is the former lady's maid of a Mrs. Vilhaus, who once lived in Seventy-second Street, and who took her to Vienna with her three years ago. In Vienna Mrs. Vilhaus, who is now dead, became intimately acquainted with a young woman with whom Hamburger, who was then an officer in the Fifteenth Regiment of the Austrian artillery, "kept company." Louisa Roeder, the Vilhaus woman's maid, used frequently to see young Hamburger at her mistress's apartments in Vienna. On returning to this country, after her mistress's death, the maid was considerably surprised last January at meeting young Hamburger walking along Forty-second Street. She already knew of his extravagance, and suspected that he had been sent here by his family.

"You are another of those German officers who come here to act as waiters," she said to him, according to her story in Lawyer Hochdorf's office yesterday.

Hamburger's Efforts to Borrow.

"A lady brought me over here," she says Hamburger answered, alluding presumably to his steamer acquaintance with Mrs. Fochler, who befriended him.

"I must have $500." Hamburger then said to her, according to her story. "You ladies' maids have lots of money."

She refused to lend him anything.

Last Tuesday, three days before he was shot, the Roeder woman says that she met young Hamburger again on Sixth Avenue. He resumed his demand for money.

"I expect a letter from home soon," he said. "If it contains money I'll give you double what you lend me. If the letter doesn't come on Thursday my family will see what will happen to me."

"It will go right in here," he added, striking himself on the heart.

"You mean you will kill yourself?" Mrs. Roeder says she asked him.

"Yes. I am looking for a gun now," he answered.

"You had better buy a strong one," answered Mrs. Roeder, who knew of his habit of speaking impulsively and of his changeable nature. The afternoon papers next day told her that he had been found shot.

Lawyer Hochdorf did not hesitate to say yesterday that his clients were being "hounded" by the county authorities merely because the nature of their business was objectionable.

"You haven't a shred of evidence against them on the murder charge except the alleged lack of powder marks on the dead man's body," he said angrily to Assistant District Attorney Turnbull.

Turnbull answered that the Ellises were a "pretty bad lot."

"That doesn't prove that they have been guilty of murder," answered Hochdorf.

Hochdorf is having Hamburger's body examined to find out whether there really are no powder marks there. The lawyer poind out yesterday that the front window of Ellis's office was wide open when the shooting took place, and that a strong draught might have deflected the powder's course.

NO TRACE OF SACHS SLAYERS.

Police Admit They Have Little Hope of Running Them Down.

After trying since last Saturday to learn who strangled Moses Sachs, the aged jewelry peddler, on Friday and left his body in a trunk in the hallway of a tenement at 51 Goerck Street the police admitted yesterday that they were up against a blank wall, with little hope of ever bringing the murderers to justice.

The case against Pietro Carollo and Frederico Piedzurro, who were arrested on Saturday and on whom the police tried diligently to fasten the crime, fell through utterly yesterday when they were discharged in the Essex Market Police Court. They were immediately rearrested, but the detectives admitted that they had little hope of keeping them locked up long.

Suspicion fell upon Carollo and Piedzurro when it was learned that they were in the grocery store of Pietro Lombardi at 178 Chrystie Street when the latter bought a pair of earrings from the aged peddler at noon on Friday a few hours before the murder was committed, and that Carollo tried to induce Sachs to go to his apartments in East Sixteenth Street. Lombardi was also arrested at the time, but was discharged later, no evidence being found against him.

Yesterday Inspector Russell made an energetic attempt to fasten the murder upon Carollo and Piedzurro. He took three rings which were found in Piedzurro's possession when arrested to Mrs. Liebe Sachs, widow of the peddler, to have her identify them as the property of the murdered man. One ring was a red stone and one contained three diamonds. Mrs. Sachs said the rings looked like the kind her husband sold, but she could not positively say that he had had them in his possession recently. He might have had them any time in the last five years, she said.

Neither could the dead peddler's sons or his most intimate friends recognize them as having belonged to the old man. This evidence falling through, Capt. Carey of the Homicide Bureau admitted to Magistrate Hermann when Carollo and Piedzurro were arraigned in the Essex Market Court that they had no further evidence against them. Assistant District Attorney Medalia, who has charge of the Italian bureau in the District Attorney's office, asked the Magistrate to hold the prisoners twenty-four hours longer to give the police a chance to discover new evidence.

The Magistrate, however, discharged Carollo and Piedzurro, but before they reached the door of the courtroom detectives again took them in hand, returning them to Police Headquarters. There they were held as material witnesses and taken before Coroner Holtzhauser. The Coroner held them in $100 each for further examination. As it was impossible to get bail last night they were locked up in the House of Detention.

Detectives continued yesterday to scour the east side in the attempt to find the dealer who sold the cheap tin trunk in which the crumpled-up body of Sachs was found. They visited the shops of a score or more dealers, but while many said they had sold similar trunks recently they could not describe the purchasers, nor had they kept any record of sales.

PEOPLE'S HOSPITAL OPENS.

Institution Starts In Its New Quarters with Sixty Free Beds.

The new People's Hospital at 203 Second Avenue, just south of Thirteenth Street, was opened to the public yesterday. The hospital starts with sixty free beds and seven private rooms, and several of the former were occupied at once.

The institution was first housed at 322 and 324 East Third Street, but these quarters were found inadequate to the demands and permanent quarters were procured at the present site about a year ago at a cost of $30,000. Another $20,000 was expended to convert the old-fashioned four-story English basement dwelling that stood there into a hospital.

This hospital has been donated to the public service through the efforts of citizens of Austro-Hungarian origin. The work of collecting the funds was begun several years ago by Dr. Ignatz Hulvey Rottenberg and Edward Mandel, Principal of Public School 188.

PACKERS TO ACCEPT HIGHER FREIGHT RATE

Big Interests Withdraw Their Opposition to Railroads' Schedule of Increases.

WILL AVERAGE 11 PER CENT.

Though New Rate Will Cost the Packers $1,800,000 a Year, They Will Not Raise Prices, They Say.

CHICAGO, June 21.—As a result of conferences between representatives of the Eastern railroads and the big packing firms, the packers have agreed to submit to an advance in freight rates on their products eastbound from Chicago averaging 11 per cent., an annual advance of about $1,800,000.

As the advance on dressed meats figures out only one-twentieth of a cent a pound the packers say they have no intention of passing the increase on to the consumer in the shape of an increase in prices.

The amount of the increase in rates represents a compromise between the two interests and is the direct result of the "missionary work" of George W. Perkins of J. P. Morgan & Co. in Chicago last week and in New York since that time.

A strong effort will be made by the railroads to reach a similar compromise with the dry goods shippers and wholesale grocers.

Announcement of the agreement by the packers was made in Chicago in a statement issued by Armour & Co., following this long-distance telephone message from Mr. Perkins:

> The officials of Armour & Co. having fully considered the question of advancing freight rates applicable to their business, have become convinced that the increase suggested, amounting to about 11 per cent. on the average, are justified by present conditions, and therefore will make no opposition. It is believed that there will be no further opposition on the part of any one interested.

The advances apply only to the rates eastbound from Chicago. The dressed meat rate from Chicago to New York is increased from 45 to 50 cents a hundred pounds; provisions and packing house products from this city to 33, cattle from 28 to 31, and hogs and sheep from 30 to 33.

As the meat and live-stock rates between Chicago and the Missouri River and St. Paul were advanced 5 cents a hundred pounds in May by the Western roads, the increased rates will affect the entire territory between the seaboard and the Missouri River, except over the Alton and Wabash, which refused to advance the Western rates.

"The advance is so small when applied to a single pound of meat that I don't think it will advance the price," said George B. Robbins, President of the Armour car lines and Director of Armour & Co., who represented that firm in the negotiations. "Certainly there is no intention of passing the increase on to the consumer.

"We were governed in making the agreement by the feeling that it is to the interest of business in general that the rates be increased. What we lose in this way—and it is a considerable amount—we hope to gain by increased business which should result from improving the condition of the railroads.

"When the railroads are not prosperous there is little prosperity anywhere. The railroads need money to keep up their facilities and make needed improvements, and we are bound to admit they are entitled to some consideration."

The date when the advances are to take effecth has not been determined, but the tariffs containing the new schedules of charges probably will be filed with the Inter-State Commerce Commission at the time of the general advances in commodity rates.

The acceptance by the packing interests of freight rate increases averaging 11 per cent. on products is the first important break in the solid opposition shippers have shown to a general increase by the Eastern roads.

The railroads which will benefit most by the increases agreed to are the New York Central, Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, Erie, Lackawanna, Lehigh Valley, the Chicago-Buffalo lines, including the Lake Shore, and subsidiaries of the New York Central, Wabash, Pere Marquette, and Middle Western lines.

These and practically all other roads east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio are included among those which soon will file rate increases.

While the packing interests are the only important group of shippers which yet has assented to the proposed increases, the head of an important Eastern line said yesterday:

"I have received assurances from many shippers that they believe the railroads are right, and that they will not oppose a reasonable advance in rates."

Regarding the consent of the packers to accept an increase in rates Charles F. Daly, Vice President of the New York Central, said:

"Their action indicates clearly that some of the heaviest shipping interests have come to the conclusion that the railroads are justified in advancing rates, and that what the railroads have been saying about the need of rate increases is founded on fact. And shippers naturally are not disposed to grant anything to which they are not convinced the railroads are entitled."

PACKERS REVISE BEEF PRICES.

Raise Best Cuts and Lower the Cheaper—7,000 Hogs Coming from China.

CHICAGO, June 21.—Following the predictions made last week, the packers yesterday circulated a new list of prices for dressed beef cuts. The most expensive cuts of beef were advanced one-half of 1 cent a pound, while the cheaper cuts were reduced one-fourth of a cent to 1 cent. The revision favors the poor man's pocketbook, while it calls for a larger outlay to furnish the table of the rich. Retailers said they would lower the price immediately.

Closely following the reductions came the report that a consignment of 7,000 dressed hogs had been received in San Francisco from China. These hogs were said to have been imported by a St. Louis wholesale dealer, who will distribute them to all parts of the country.

RELIEVING SUBWAY JAMS.

Cervice Board Asks for Bond Issue to Lengthen Platforms.

The Public Service Commission sent a letter yesterday to the Board of Estimate asking for an issue of bonds of $400,000 to cover the cost of new entrances to the express stations of the Subway, where the platforms are being lengthened below to accommodate ten-car trains. The letter contains an extended discussion of the plans of the commission to relieve the traffic congestion at Subway stations by admitting people at several points along the station platform, and not concentrating them at one point, as is now the case.

In the case of the new ten-car express trains this will be of particular importance. It is a natural enough thing for a person entering the Subway and seeing a train approaching or about to pull out to rush for the nearest door, and the result has been to cause at many times of the day when there are actually seats enough for all passengers bad congestion in the middle of a train, while one or two half-empty cars are at either end. The Public Service Commission is of the opinion that the additional entrances and exits which it seeks to install will do much to correct this tendency.

The plans embrace changes for nearly all the express stations, but the most notable ones are at the Grand Central and Fourteenth Street. At the Grand Central there will be a new entrance between Madison and Fifth Avenues in Forty-second Street, and the mezzanine floor will be extended from the entrance at Vanderbilt Avenue to the entrance at Madison Avnue, and then continued to the new entrance west of Madison Avenue. At Fourteenth Street there will be a new station on the Union Square side, where the Subway makes a sharp curve, and a new mezzanine platform.

WALDO SEES CROKER FIGHT A REAL FIRE

Fireworks Explosion Starts a Big Blaze in a Warren Street Wholesale Store.

EMPLOYES IN DANGER

Commissioner Remains Throughout the Three-Hour Struggle to Observe the Fire Chief's Work.

A large number of city officials turned out yesterday to watch Chief Croker and his men fight a stubborn blaze which started after an explosion of fireworks in the wholesale notion establishment of Henry Rosenstein, at 36 Warren Street, and spread rapidly through the entire five-story stone building.

Fire Commissioner Waldo was there to see for himself just how Chief Croker and some of the men the Chief affectionately terms "smoke eaters" conduct themselves at a really menacing blaze.

What the Commissioner saw must have convinced him that Chief Croker is a master hand in fighting fire at close quarters and under trying circumstances. Not only was the heat extreme during the three hours the firemen battled with the blaze, but great volumes of smoke hung around the burning building, filling Warren Street and settling down over City Hall Park.

So intense was the heat and so dense the smoke during most of the time that, under Chief Croker's directions, the firemen fought in relays, one group standing in close to the fire for twenty minutes, then falling back to a breathing spot, while another crew ran in to man the lines of hose.

That the blaze was confined to the four walls of the Rosenstein Building seemed due almost entirely to the tactics Chief Croker chose. Placing No. 1 water tower in the middle of Warren Street, a continuous stream of water three inches thick poured through the upper windows and directly at the heart of the fire. Another stationary nozzle at the base of the water tower shot its continuous stream through the lower windows, and from near-by roofs and fire escapes the firemen kept up an unremitting battle.

The blaze started a few minutes before noon. The Rosenstein establishment occupied all five floors of the building. It is one of the twelve wholesale houses in the city which have permits to sell fireworks this year. But the sales of fireworks have been very small, owing to the refusal of the Fire Commissioner to issue permits to the 1,400 retail dealers who have applied to him.

Most of the stock in the Rosenstein Building consisted of toys and novelties. But on the first floor were many cases of fireworks. The entire stock was said to be worth between $50,000 and $60,000.

Twenty-eight employes were at work in the building when several men, under the direction of Abraham Siegel, the Superintendent, were carrying in a box of fireworks from the street. In the box were packages of firecrackers, roman candles, skyrockets, toy pistol caps, and pin wheels. Just as the men reached the freight elevator on the ground floor one end of the box dropped to the floor of the elevator.

Instantly there was a slight explosion inside the box. The top burst open and several rockets shot up the elevator shaft. The workmen fled to the street. A cry of fire arose and was shouted through the building. The employes made for the street.

Several employes were believed to have been working in the cellar and sub-cellar and it was thought for a while that they had been trapped there. On the fourth floor, with other employes, was Miss Fannie Needles, assistant bookkeeper. She managed to reach the street unaided. Miss Baker, the stenographer, was at work on the first floor. So quickly did the smoke fill the lower floor after the explosion that she was almost overcome when she ran to the street.

A moment after the explosion flames were running up and down the elevator shaft and were soon spreading over the five floors. The first alarm brought Deputy Chief Binns and several engines. He realized that it was a dangerous spot for a fire, for both sides of the street are lined with large business houses. Also there were the fireworks stored in the building. They had already begun to pop when he arrived. He sent in a second and a third alarm, and on the last Chief Croker hastened to the scene.

Commissioner Waldo arrived a moment later and stayed until the fire was out, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. He had no comment to make on the manner in which Chief Croker handled the blaze, but said that the nature of the fire was a good argument for a "safe and sane" Fourth of July.

The fire had been under way but a short time when groups of Aldermen and other city officials began to arrive. Most of them had fire badges and they pressed through the crowds to get close to the building. The police had their hands full maintaining the fire lines. Deputy Commissioner Bugher was on hand, with Inspector Daly and several other officials from Police Headquarters.

The firemen were not sure until the fight was over that some one had not been caught in the sub-cellar and perished. Police Capt. O'Connor was informed of this possibility as soon as he arrived. But there was no way to find out until the fire was extinguished and the sub-cellar pumped out.

The cellar was cleared of water by 7 o'clock last night, and Deputy Chief Binns reported to Chief Croker that no lives had been lost.

Many of the cellars in the neighborhood were flooded during the three hours the firemen kept pouring water into the burning building. In the rear, at 106 Chambers Street, the hardware store of Francis Witte was flooded and the stock badly damaged. The same was true with the Mehlbach Saddlery Company and other firms, both in Chambers Street and Warren. Chief Croker said that the damage was probably in excess of $100,000.

None of the assistant foremen was among the fire fighters who battled with the blaze. They were all before the Civil Service Board taking examinations.

AUTO RACES DOWN MOUNTAIN

Three Men In It Pitched Out When Machine Overturns Near Foot.

As they started down Eagle Rock Avenue, which winds down the Orange Mountain for a mile into West Orange, N. J., yesterday morning, Fred Blaney, Alfred Pashly, and W. E. Eveland, employes in an East Orange garage, found that the brakes on an automobile which they were testing would not work. The mountainside is steep, and Eagle Rock Avenue winds around three sharp curves.

At a pace which increased rapidly with every foot which the car covered the automobile commenced the descent. Blaney, at the wheel, set himself to keep the car in the middle of the road, and the other two men hung on to the sides of the rocking car.

Around the first curve rushed the machine, and on it sped at express speed toward the next. This was negotiated on two wheels, the car threatening to overturn. By expert manipulation of the steering wheel Blaney kept the racing car on the road, however, and presently the third curve was rounded safely.

Ahead lay a straight stretch down Harrison Avenue. No vehicle was in sight and apparently there was nothing to prevent the car running to a stop, when suddenly the front wheels struck an obstruction in the road. The steering wheel was wrenched from Blaney's hand and the car shot off the road into the ditch and overturned.

All three men were thrown out, their momentum carrying them safely away from the car. Blaney was knocked senseless, the others escaping with bruises. The injured man was carried to a near-by house and an ambulance was summoned from the Orange Memorial Hospital.

Blaney was taken there, and it was said that he would recover. He had a scalp wound and two ribs were broken. The car was wrecked.

KILLS HERSELF AT A HOTEL.

Mrs. Hawes of Bridgeport, Conn., Puts Three Bullets in Her Body.

Mrs. Mary A. Hawes of 76 Lenox Avenue, Bridgeport, Conn., registered at the Grand Union Hotel in East Forty-second Street about 4 o'clock Monday afternoon and engaged a room. Nothing more was heard or seen of her until about midnight yesterday, when a chambermaid who had been trying to get into the room all the evening reported to the manager that something seemed to be wrong. The manager entered the room with a pass key and found the woman, half clad, dead in bed. At her side was a magazine revolver.

The woman had fired three shots into her abdomen. The hotel manager did not notify the police, but called up Coroner Holtzhauser. The Coroner ordered the body taken to an undertaker.

Coroner Holthauser refused information about the suicide, but it was learned from other sources that the woman was about fifty years old and came from Bridgeport. She had been separated from her husband before his death about a year ago. She lived at the Lenox Avenue address, it was learned, with her two sons, Isaac F. W. and David H., and her daughter. She is said to have possessed considerable property, both in Bridgeport and Brooklyn. Her possessions, it was said, included about $5,000 worth of jewels, which she kept in a safety deposit vault in Bridgeport.

PETITION AGAINST ERKINS.

Creditor Attempts to Put Cafe de l'Opera Decorator in Bankruptcy.

A bankruptcy petition was filed yesterday afternoon against Henry Erkins, the architect and decorator of 10 East Thirty-third Street, who was treasurer of the United States Realty and Restaurant Company, which opened the Café de l'Opera in Broadway, between Forty-first and Forty-second Streets. He had charge of the elaborate decorations of the place and was, it is understood, to receive as his commission 10 per cent. of what was expended on them. How much he actually received before the café was forced to close its doors is not known.

Mr. Erkins was also interested in a number of other ventures. It is said that with a partner he leased 1,537 to 1,563 Broadway, between Forty-sixth and Forty-seventh Streets, which they assigned last March to the Café Elite Company, in which he was a shareholder. He also took a lease on the Broadway block just above, which he passed over last January to the Atlas Development Company, in which also he was interested.

The petition was filed by Charles L. Greenhall, attorney for Alfred H. Evans, who has a claim for $7,057, of which $1,500 is secured on an assigned claim from L. Rodney Berg for money loaned and amounts due on various transactions. Mr. Greenhall alleged that Mr. Erkins is insolvent and has made preferential payments to various creditors, among whom are John L. Murray, $300, and Alfred C. Michaud, $500.

He stated that the liabilities are $50,000. Among the assets are $3,000 cash in a bank and shares in the Atlas Development Company and the Café Elite Company. Part of these securities, it is said, have been pledged with the Hudson Trust Company. The nominal value of the assets are placed at $35,000, on which $15,000 has been borrowed.

Mr. Berg, who has had his office with Mr. Erkins, filed an affidavit in the bankruptcy proceedings, in which he stated that for several weeks Mr. Erkins has been endeavoring to dispose of his interests, and informed him a few days ago that he intended to go to Australia.

Mr. Erkins has been in business in this city since 1902 and has been identified with the decoration of a number of cafés of the most elaborate class. On Dec. 4, 1903, a petition in bankruptcy was filed against him, it is said, from which he was discharged on May 22, 1905. Judge Hough appointed Henry Lesser receiver with a bond of $4,000.

GIRLS TO BE PALLBEARERS.

Classmates of Mary Agnes McGlynn, Who Was Drowned, to Carry Coffin.

All the students of St. Michael's Catholic Parochial School in West Thirty-fourth Street will turn out to-day for the funeral of Miss Mary Agnes McGlynn, 18 years old, of 410 West Thirty-third Street, who was drowned while canoeing in the Hackensack River in last Saturday afternoon's storm. Miss McGlynn was a member of the graduating class of St. Michael's School in 1907. Eight of her classmates will act as pallbearers. They are Anna Campbell, Ellen Stark, Mary Stark, Hanna O'Neill, Josephine McCann, Mary E. Dougherty, Anna Murray, and Josephine Gleason. The girl pallbearers will bear the body from the family home to St. Michael's Church, where a service will be conducted by the Rev. Father Gleason. It was he who led to the finding of the girl's body.

SIDNEY WEBSTER'S WILL.

Estate of "Harriman's Mentor" Divided Between Widow and Son.

Sidney Webster, the "mentor of Harriman," who died May 30 last at Newport, made a will March 20, 1908 which was filed yesterday for probate. The will leaves to his widow, Sarah M. Fish Webster, his town house at 245 East Seventeenth Street, his Newport estate, Pon Craig, and all his furniture, personal effects, horses, carriages, and automobiles.

Mr. Webster placed his residuary estate in trust for his widow and his son Hamilton Fish Webster during their joint lifetime, specifying that his son should enjoy one-third and his widow two-thirds of the income. The death of either nullifies the trust, the survivor is to receive the entire estate.

The amount of the estate was not stated.

CONVICTED OF MURDER.

Jury Finds Schermerhorn Guilty After Five Hours.

POUGHKEEPSIE, June 22.—Frank Schermerhorn was found guilty of murder in the first degree here shortly after midnight. The jury had been out five hours.

Schermerhorn, on Jan. 13 last, murdered Sarah Brymer, a governess at the Summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Barnes Compton, at Millbrook.

Louisa Randell's Will Filed.

Louis Randell, who died May 25, left $2,000 to Hope College, Michigan, and $1,000 to the disabled ministers' fund of the Reformed Church in a will filed for probate yesterday. Mrs. Randell left the bulk of her estate to two brothers, John Wood of New Rochelle, and James Wood of 787 West End Avenue, and to two sisters, Elizabeth C. Kenyon of 105 West 122d Street and Julia C. Berdell of 441 West 162d Street. She also left substantial bequests to nephews and nieces.

SOME GUARDSMEN DON'T WANT TO WALK

Deprecate Fourth of July Parade by Resolution Put Up to the Aldermen.

BOARD FAILS TO DEPRECATE

Mayor Thinks That More Walking and Even a Little Hard Work Would Not Hurt the Guard.

The troubles of the committee which has charge of the arrangements for the "safe and sane" Fourth of July celebration have been increased by the decided objection of the National Guardsmen to being deprived of their holiday by compulsory participation in the proposed parades on that day. Several such objections have been raised, but the most decided opposition was voiced yesterday by Alderman Courtlandt Nicoll, a member of Squadron A, who introduced at the meeting of the board a resolution condemning the calling out of the Guard.

The resolution read:

Whereas it is reported that the National Guard of the State of New York, situated in the City of New York, will be required to parade on the Fourth of July;

Resolved, That we, the Board of Aldermen of the City of New York, hereby deprecates such action on behalf of the military and other authorities, inasmuch as it means depriving many thousands of citizens of this city of the holiday to which they are justly entitled, and cannot but fail to have a damaging effect upon the several National Guard organizations in this city, which should be maintained at their highest efficiency for military purposes and for the defense of the Nation and State;

Be it further resolved, That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Independence Day Committee appointed by his Honor the Mayor.

The resolution was defeated.

The Mayor, who fathered the "safe and sane" Fourth idea, after upholding Fire Commissioner Waldo in his order prohibiting the sale of fireworks at retail in the city this year, was asked about the revolt of the Guard later in the day, but did not seem to take it as serious. The Mayor is a great walker, and expressed the opinion that it would be a good thing for the Guard if it were required to do more walking. He wanted to know what kind of showing a regiment would make in war that objected to marching from the Battery to Fifty-ninth Street.

The Mayor even added that a little hard work would not hurt the Guardsmen. And he also said he did not believe there was any concerted objection on the part of men against parading. He pointed out that Major Gen. Roe was one of the first to suggest their turning out, and explaining that of the many letters which he has received protesting against the call, none had been from members of the Guard.

The Finance Committee of the General Committee in charge of the celebration met again yesterday to consider ways and means for raising further funds. The money is not coming in at all satisfactorily, less than $2,000 having been raised so far. Ex-Controller Metz, the Treasurer of the committee, has estimated that it will take at least $50,000 to carry out the plans that have been made.

The fund was increased yesterday to $1,580, the principal new contributors being John D. Rockefeller and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who sent in $500 and $100, respectively. The total list reads.

Mayor W. J. Gaynor	$100
William A. Marble	100
Herman A. Metz	100
John D. Rockefeller	500
John D. Rockefeller, Jr.	100
Dr. John H. Finley	100

George Batten	10
L. M. Elliott	5
Total	$1,580

The Aldermen voted $15,000 yesterday to pay for the fireworks.

Alderman Downing of Brooklyn recommended that the amount be doubled. He withdrew this motion, however, when Alderman Dowling, the Tammany leader, stated he had been informed by the Mayor and the Board of Estimate that the entire matter would be revoked if the total amount to be expended was increased. Then Mr. Downing moved that a committee of the Aldermen from the boroughs in which the celebration will take place have charge of the spending of the money. Alderman Marx declared that the time before the Fourth is so short that the Celebration Committee should not be hampered in any way, and the question was finally referred to the Rules Committee.

FEW FOR A WORLD'S FAIR.

Sentiment of Leading Citizens and Mayor's Committee Against Project.

The opposition manifested to the plan for the holding of a world's fair in this city in 1913 to celebrate the three-hundredth anniversary of the settlement of Manhattan Island reached a head yesterday at the very first session of the committee appointed by the Mayor to consider the suggestion. After much discussion it was decided to refer the matter for final consideration to a sub-committee of fifteen to be appointed by John Claflin, the Chairman, but it was clear that this was done only to wind up the meeting and escape the heat of the old Council Chamber at City Hall, where the session was held.

Mr. Claflin himself is opposed to holding such a fair, and so are most of the important members of the committee. In opening the meeting yesterday Mr. Claflin said: "Personally, I am opposed to this project, but the Mayor has asked me to call you to order and organize you, and I am willing to abide by the decision of the majority as to the recommendations we will make."

He then told of having sent forty letters to the more important members of the committee who could not be present at the meeting. Of the thirty-nine replies he had received, Mr. Claflin said, twenty-eight of the writers opposed the holding of the fair, and only eleven were for it. These letters were then presented.

The first was from George Westinghouse, who declared that altogether too many world's fairs are being held. Robert W. De Forest declared that "New York could not afford to hold a fair that would not be as great as those of Chicago and St. Louis and the proposed occasion would not be a success in my mind."

Other letters in opposition were from Francis Lynde Stetson, Elbert H. Gary, Algernon Frissell, President of the Fifth Avenue Bank; ex-Controller Metz, William A. Nash, President of the Corn Exchange Bank; Robert C. Ogden, Abraham Abraham, Gen. Thomas H. Hubbard, President of the International Banking Corporation, and Arthur H. Little. Mr. Abraham declared that he had just returned from Europe, where he attended the Brussels World's Fair, and it was not a success. He added that he did not believe New York should do anything to detract from the Panama Exposition to be held in San Francisco in 1915.

Mr. Metz's letter voiced the general impression. He wrote in part:

Whether New York City needs a fair, or wants a fair, is an open question. Undoubtedly we can make a creditable showing, and undoubtedly we will have enough visitors to assure its success financially without a single person coming further than within a radius of 500 miles.

As an educational factor a world's fair in New York would undoubtedly do more good than anywhere else in the United States. There are millions of citizens right here who cannot afford to visit a fair even in Philadelphia, whose presence would be guaranteed from the outset.

It would be a good thing for our school children, and hundreds of arguments could be advanced in favor of it. No one would be more ready than I to do all that is possible for an individual to help along the enterprise if it is decided upon. But as a commercial proposition, and from a practical standpoint, weighing both sides, I am certainly inclined to think that nothing practical or of permanent benefit to the city will be accomplished by having an exposition, and therefore I am willing to be recorded in the negative on the initial question.

Assuring you again that if the majority should decide in favor of a fair, I shall be ready and willing to do anything in my power to help it along.

George F. Kunz of Tiffany's was one of the principal speakers against the plan. He declared that it would cost at least $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 to hold a fair worthy of the dignity of the city. He was followed by Ralph Peters, President of the Long Island Railroad, who moved that the committee report against the proposal.

Then Stephen M. Griswold of Brooklyn made a substitute motion for the appointment of the committee of fifteen, and after a long speech by Theodore P. Shonts, President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, in support of the substitute, this action was taken.

RELEASES GRANNISS, CRITICISES JEROME

District Attorney Implies Former Vice President of Mutual Life Was a Scapegoat.

JEROME SAVED McCURDY

Whitman Says Grand Jury Determined to Indict Him, but Reconsidered on Jerome's Advice.

When Supreme Court Justice Page dismissed yesterday an indictment which has stood for four years against Robert A. Granniss, formerly a Vice President of the Mutual Life, he closed a chapter of the action that was started against certain officers of that company as a result of the insurance investigation by the Armstrong Committee.

It was charged that he joined with others in making a report to the State Insurance Department which contained an untrue statement, in that the annual report for 1904 omitted an entry of more than $1,000,000 opposite the item "Income and profit from the sale and maturity of ledger assets."

The dismissal was made on the recommendation of District Attorney Whitman, accompanied by an opinion prepared by his assistant, Mr. Moss, and between the lines may be read a comment on the attitude in the matter of ex-District Attorney Jerome. After pointing oue that it is an open question whether there was an improper intent in the omission in the first place, the recommendation suggests that it is pertinent to ask why Granniss, who never signed the report, was indicted when others who did sign it were not indicted.

"The Grand Jury determined to indict Mr. McCurdy, the President of the company," it says, "but reconsidered the indictment on the advice of Mr. Jerome."

The argument of Mr. Jerome is then quoted, and it is pointed out that he might have applied it with even greater force against the indictment of Granniss.

"The indictment is directed against one man who did not sign the report and as to whom there is no proof of direct participation in its framing. The defendant is charged as one who participated in preparing it. No other participant was indicted. It seems likely that this misdemeanor indictment was obtained in aid of the forgery indictment which has been dismissed. It seems to me that the finding of it was inconsistent with the recommendation that the indictment against McCurdy be reconsidered. It is a very stale case, and I see no probability of success."

Mr. Granniss and Dr. Walter R. Gillette, another Vice President of the company, were also indicted for forgery, but the charges were dismissed following the decision of the Court of Appeals in the case against President Hegeman of the Metropolitan. An indictment against Dr. Gillette for perjury before the Grand Jury was set aside by the Appellate Division, thus leaving a single indictment for a misdemeanor against Mr. Granniss as all that remained of the entire inquiry.

That count was wiped out yesterday. Justice Davis sitting this month in the criminal branch, as a policy holder of the Mutual Life, declined to act in the matter, which was then taken before Justice Page, who signed the order of dismissal in Chambers. Mr. Granniss was represented by Howard Gans, a former member of the Jerome staff.

Patriotic Fund Opened

More Money Needed for the Celebration of an Old-Fashioned Fourth

Mayor Gaynor in opening the Fund to pay for a "Safe and Sane" Independence Day Celebration with a check for $100, remarked that he was certain that the people of New York would respond quickly when they know that money is needed for the necessary expenses.

It is estimated that about $50,000 must be raised by popular subscription to pay for music, decorations, and entertainments.

The Committee appointed by Mayor Gaynor is organizing a Military and Civic Parade, District Celebrations in the Parks and Playgrounds, and appropriate exercises for celebrating the Centennial of the opening of the City Hall.

The Committee appeals to the patriotism of the citizens of New York, and requests them to forward all contributions, which will be acknowledged in the newspapers, to Herman A. Metz, Treasurer Independence Day Committee, Room 611 Pulitzer Building, New York City.

JOHN H. FINLEY,
Chairman Independence Day Committee.

BUFFALO TRACTIONS IN A MERGER PLAN

Committee of International Company Making Adjustments to Get New Capital.

CENTRAL MAY GET CONTROL

Proposed Issue of 5 Per Cents to be Exchanged for Collateral Trust Bonds at 80.

A plan for the reorganization of the International Traction Company of Buffalo and a merger with another traction company was announced yesterday by a committee for which J. P. Morgan & Co. is acting as depositary. The committee is made up of Robert L. Fryer, Thomas De Witt Cuyler, Lewis Cass Ledyard, Thomas E. Nitten, and Charles Steele, the latter a member of Morgan & Co. This committee is acting at the request of the holders of a large number of the collateral trust 4 per cent. bonds of the International Traction Company to protect their interests in view of the near approach of the July interest on the bonds.

The bonds are secured by the stock of the International Railway Company, the operating company, and bonds to the extent of $11,000,000 have been reserved to provide for underlying bonds, some of which mature in the near future. The absence of a ready market and the necessity of providing for extension and improvement, some of it required by the public authorities, render it necessary to provide some means of raising new capital, and this the committee proposes to pave the way for by a readjustment of the company's outstanding securities.

The part of the plan providing for a merger revived yesterday the report several times current that the International Traction system would be acquired in the interest of the New York Central, which already owns an extensive system of traction lines in New York State.

It is proposed to have the new company put out an issue of 5 per cent. first mortgage bonds and to offer the right to the holders of the existing collateral trust bonds to exchange them for the new bonds at 80 or to accept 70 per cent. in cash with accrued interest in full. This, the committee points out, would give the bonds a cash value in excess of the present market price.

Discretion will be lodged with the committee to provide for the stockholders of the present company out of the stock of the new railroad company. The present net earnings, it is said, would indicate a satisfactory margin over the amount necessary, under the proposed plan of readjustment, to pay the fixed charges, and the normal increase in net earnings should be more than sufficient to meet the additional fixed charges for future capital requirements.

The committee in its announcement to the bondholders says that the probable inability of the railway company to declare a dividend on its stock which would enable the traction company to meet the July interest on its bonds has resulted, not from lack of earning power, but from the rapid growth of the railway's business, which has necessitated the expenditure of a large part of the earnings for improvements and extensions. The necessary capital expenditure for this year and next to meet municipal contracts and public requirements are estimated at $2,750,000. Thereafter the normal annual capital expenditures are estimated at azout $1,000,000.

THEATRICAL MAN DROWNS.

Frank D. Carr Fell or Jumped from 38th Street Pier Into North River.

Frank D. Carr, who was well known as a manager of old-time burlesque, and who had been proprietor of Carr's Third Avenue Theatre in Manhattan and a burlesque house in Grand Street, Brooklyn, was found drowned yesterday in the North River. A longshoreman saw him go off the end of the Thirty-eighth Street pier, round which he had been loitering for some hours, but could not tell whether he had fallen or jumped in.

The body was recovered an hour later by the crew of the Pennsylvania tug Mercer. The identification was made by means of a number of letters and cards in Carr's pockets. One of the former was from Carr's mother, Mrs. Mary E. Carr, 138 Water Street, Haverhill, Mass., addressed to him at the Knickerbocker Theatre building and written last Saturday. In it Mrs. Carr spoke of her pleasure at hearing that her son had recovered from a severe illness, and asked him to write more frequently.

Carr's home was at 201 South Street, Brooklyn. He was a Mason.

Carr at one time was worth a good deal of money, made through his management of burlesque houses, but recently illness had interfered a good deal with his business. He was about 46 years old.

Railroads Want Truckmen Enjoined.

Supreme Court Justice Giegerich heard an application yesterday on behalf of the New York Central and the New York and New Haven railroads and the Westcott Express Company to continue a temporary injunction against John Daly, Jeremiah Sullivan and various other truck and hack drivers. The injunction gives the Westcott Express Company a monopoly of the business of removing passengers and baggage from the Grand Central Station.

Ex-Police Sergeant's Son Again to Jail

George Crowley, just 21 years old, of 540 East 152d Street, was sentenced in Special Sessions yesterday to eleven months in the penitentiary for impairing the morals of an 11-year-old girl. He is a son of the former Police Sergeant Crowley, who was pardoned from Sing Sing, where he had been sentenced to nineteen years for an attack on a woman. The same crime sent the son to the reformatory in 1906. He has also been convicted of burglary.

The Enhanced Dignity of the Dining Room

THE Architectural dignity which thoughtful designing may have imparted to the Dining Room of the Country House should be enhanced by a judicious harmony in its furnishing.

Whatever may be the style or period of this architectural setting it is to be found reflected in our Replica-reproductions of distinctive furniture.

For the room of Neo-Classic design there are the graceful creations of Sheraton and his immediate successors, for that of which panelled walls and raftered ceilings suggest an earlier date, the Oak of Tudor or the Walnut of Stuart times.

THE RIGHTS OF THE VOTERS.

Gov. HUGHES urges upon the Legislature, met in extraordinary session, that remnant of the Direct Primaries reform which, after the many reverses of the regular session, he thinks can be saved and put in operation. The comprehensive measure which provided for the direct nomination of candidates for State offices and all others has no chance of enactment. The Governor therefore concentrates his effort and his influence upon the bill passed by the Senate but defeated in the Assembly which provides that candidates for Congress and the Senate and Assembly and for county offices shall be named by the voters themselves. He holds firm to his belief that in this way alone can effect be given to the voice and the will of the people. In this way the "rights of the voters" can be enforced. Under the convention system the voters have a right, of course, to expect that delegates shall be their representatives, voting as they desire, naming the men they wish to be named. As a matter of practice and of well-known fact, the voter usually has made no selection, he has no particular wish to be communicated to the Convention delegates. The delegates, when they meet in Convention, either of their own volition or under the direction of the party organization, make the nominations. It seems that this is a denial of the "rights of the voters." If they could vote directly for the candidates their "rights" would be preserved.

It cost Mr. JOSEPH C. SIBLEY $40,698 to get himself renominated for Congress by the Republicans of the Twenty-eighth Pennsylvania District. He had a few more than 10,000 votes, costing him $4 apiece. Mr. JOHN DALZELL spent $9,200 to get himself nominated in the Thirtieth District. This is the beautiful working of the Direct Primary system in the neighboring Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Under the Primaries law there we must assume that the voters have their "rights." Apparently the right they most zealously insist upon is that of getting $4 apiece for their votes, or whatever other sum they may extort from the ambition of candidates. In Wisconsin a millionaire lumberman highly offensive to Mr. LA FOLLETTE won the direct nomination for the United States Senate over Mr. LA FOLLETTE'S candidate by an expenditure of more than $100,000. There again the law safeguarded the "rights" of the voters.

The direct nomination system may in many ways be as good as the convention system. The plain teaching of experience, however, is that it is no better in respect to those very reforms upon which Gov. HUGHES insists. It does not destroy the power of the bosses, it does not prevent the purchase of nominations, it does not insure the nomination or election to office of better men. In fact, it assures nothing. The Governor asks us to go through the trouble and bother of changing our nominating system, and, so far as we can judge from the experience of other States, without hope of public benefit. Everybody knows that when the voters are aroused they have their way in the Convention, the bosses to the contrary notwithstanding. Under the direct primary system they would probably have their way when they were sufficiently interested to insist upon it. But a system which, as in Mr. SIBLEY'S case, leaves the way open to the purchase of a nomination—he got 689 plurality for his $40,000 of expenditure—evidently gives no assurance that the "rights" of the voters are going to be protected.

The Governor's direct primary reform is, we fear, delusive. For the enactment of that measure alone we have felt that his course in summoning the Legislature to meet in extraordinary session was ill-advised. By recommending action in regard to the "graft" investigation, and in respect to the very important matter of State revenues, he has materially amplified the public reasons for a special session.

NEW YORK'S JUDGES.

Representative HUGHES on Monday made somewhat too free with the reputations of the Judges of New York when he said that "in substance as soon as a man became a Justice in New York he immediately became afflicted with the hookworm, the boll weevil, or some other 'disease' that made him indisposed to labor."

The records show that the New York Judges dispose of a greater quantity of work than the Judges of other States, including New Jersey, which gave Mr. HUGHES the place which he used to criticise our Judges. They are not responsible for the quantity of work which comes to them, that being the result of conditions which swell their dockets; but they are responsible for the quality of the work they do, and of that there is an authoritative test. The Docket for April and May analyzes the last five volumes of the decisions of the courts of last resort of thirty-nine States, with a view to ascertaining which State leads in the 26,850 citations from decisions in the courts of other States. New York leads in thirty-two States, and falls below second in none. The Docket calculates what it calls a "percentage of influence" and allots New York 23.7 per cent., or double the next State. New Jersey is not placed in the running.

Of course the decisions of one State are not law in another State, and are cited only for their reasoning. Doubtless much of the authoritative quality of the New York decisions is due to the assistance of its able bar. Nevertheless there remains a substantial residuum of high compliment to the New York bench in these facts, which is thus appraised by Bench and Bar in its comments upon them:

> After making all reasonable allowance for the great number of cases and the great variety of questions which come before the New York Court of Appeals, the result should be most gratifying to that court. No higher tribute could be paid to its work than this unconscious, but nevertheless voluntary, testimony of able Judges of the courts of last resort of other States to the soundness of its judgments and the ability with which they are presented.

"CHILD LABOR ON THE STAGE."

The good people of Massachusetts are wrestling with a proposed amendment to its Child Labor act that permits children to take "a walking or speaking part" on the stage. Mr. FRANCIS WILSON has taken up the cudgels in defense of the stage child, while Bishop LAWRENCE and Secretary LORD of the Massachusetts Child Labor Committee are endeavoring to prove that to permit children on the stage would strain to the breaking point the factory laws of that State. In this attempt they are ably seconded by Dr. DEVINE of The Survey, who in its last issue replies to a vigorously worded letter from Mr. WILSON.

Mr. WILSON points out that in this State children are permitted to appear in theatres of good standing, when the Mayor and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty are satisfied that they are not subjected to unusual physical, mental, or moral strain. He protests against placing the art of the actor in the category of drudging factory labor, and names MOZART, MENDELSSOHN, KEAN, SIDDONS, RACHEL, SALVINI, FORREST, JEFFERSON, Mrs. FISKE, MAUDE ADAMS, NAZIMOVA, and JULIA MARLOWE as persons whose genius and careers would have been unfavorably affected, if not actually prevented of fulfillment, by the operation of such a law as that in Massachusetts. Four of SHAKESPEARE'S plays, besides many of the modern classics, would be vitally affected by the excision of children's parts. Dr. DEVINE argues, on the other hand, that good actors may be produced above the age of 16, and quotes Sir HENRY IRVING'S dictum that the child-actor "can, by no process of reason, be regarded as an artist."

But children are always learners, if not actually artists. Their work in speaking parts is not mechanical or fatiguing. Dr. DEVINE'S consultation of the mortality tables, which show that actors are somewhat shorter-lived than the average, is beside the point. The insurance companies have never inquired into the mortality of child actors. Some supervision, such as is exercised in this State, is wise and necessary. But the little geniuses of the stage need not be sacrificed to the puritanical notion that confuses them with the child drudges in factories.

CORRUPTION AND EXTRAVAGANCE.

Gov. HUGHES will find more support for his suggestion that there should be no limit of investigating and correcting corruption in the State's government than for his following suggestion that means should be found to provide further sources of revenue through new taxation. The Governor does further associate the topics otherwise than by mentioning them in order, but citizens of this city at least have cause to associate corruption and the need for more money in the relation of cause and effect. By checking waste and corruption this city has supplied itself with means which otherwise it would have been necessary to supply by taxation. How far this may be true of the State we are not accurately informed, but there is a more urgent demand for more facts than for more taxes.

The Legislature did what it could to check the inquiry into corruption, and to enforce the demand for more taxes. The Governor clearly exposes the pettifogging by which the Legislature sought to limit the inquiry into corruption to the extensive leads which had already yielded promising quantities of "pay dirt." The State will want those leads followed up until the mother lode of corruption is laid open to the sunlight. Until then there is good basis for hope that, to change the metaphor, plugging the leaks may provide for all that it is necessary to draw off through the spigot. The Governor alone, without any light which might be hoped for from such an investigation, was able to lop off almost five millions from the Legislature's appropriations.

As the case stands there is need both for more money and for more light on how the money now raised is spent. Mr. HUGHES says the State will never submit to the deadening of its activities for lack of resources. It may be that more light on the subject would make available from unsuspected sources the sums the Governor seeks to raise by taxation. And the stoppage of graft might be reinforced by judicious economy, a subject with which the Legislature has not been on speaking terms in recent years. Within a generation each citizen's contributions to the State's annual income has doubled twice and a half times on the average. It has not been noticed by individuals because the burden has been borne by corporations and special interests. Now the Governor says that direct taxation is in sight again, after having been discontinued for many years. This extravagance followed the accumulation in the State's Treasury of almost fifteen millions. The Legislatures could hardly find means to spend the inexhaustible surplus, but now it is gone.

A special session in midsummer is not a good time to consider fresh taxation. Postponement for information is not denial. It is not so long to a regular session that the State's resources cannot be made to last for the next few months.

THE AIRSHIP PERIL.

The first Summer Sunday brings the usual crop of accidents, which would be more shocking were they not so familiar. But this year there is a novelty which is likelier to challenge attention than the length of the list. Capt. BALDWIN, we read, had "another" accident with his aeroplane. There was a crowd where he wanted to land, and rather than run into them he smashed his machine. Just so we read about fire engine drivers running into an elevated railroad pillar and smashing machines or killing horses rather than run into innocent bystanders. The Captain was more fortunate than one of his profession in a European exhibition, who lost control of his machine and it dashed into the grand stand, injuring six women, two probably fatally.

When sentencing a boy chauffeur for manslaughter in Brooklyn the other day Judge DIKE said that he felt that the State was partly responsible through allowing such incapable drivers to have charge of a car on the public highway. That is true enough regarding chauffeurs anywhere, and experience makes it applicable to aviators as well. Sky pilots should learn, or be taught, that other people's chimneys and everybody's trees in parks are not theirs to do with as they please when they want to anchor. Nobody wants to discourage any sport, least of all aviation, but the subject might well receive attention precisely because the art is young, and it is in youth that manners are most easily formed and best retained.

There are at least three parties to this problem—the aviators, the State representing everybody, and those particular citizens or citizenesses, spectators or otherwise, who may suffer particular damage. Happily the interests of all are the same. The aviators cannot wish to kill spectators, or in fact anybody, since that is neither sport, nor in the interests of sport. The State cannot wish to see taxpayers thus diminish in numbers. And the spectators cannot wish to be killed, whether or not they are accomplices before the fact because of their presenting themselves in a place of danger. Presumably, therefore, nobody would object to the suggestion that aviators should not be allowed to aviate at their own sweet will alone. The capable among them in particular cannot wish to see their profession overcrowded, and should favor the requirement of a certificate of competency before any one is allowed to fly over people's heads and houses and grounds. If any good is to be done the examinations would have to be pretty stiff. It would be a good plan to have the profession consider the subject seriously before it is taken up for them under pressure of regrettable incidents.

BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA.

The white boy can learn to look out for himself in forests and upon streams as well as the aboriginal redskin Indian, or even better. Perhaps the redskin knows how to convert the hard ground into a comfortable bed by scooping out a little depression the size of a teacup, in which the hip joint may rest. He may know that the secret of keeping warm is to have the same thickness of blanket underneath as above you. But he never learned—how could he?—that, where blankets are lacking, newspapers placed upon the waistcoat and at the small of the back are an excellent substitute. All the little tricks and devices of camp life known to savages in both hemispheres, and more than these, have been mastered by Lieut. Gen. Sir R. S. S. BADEN-POWELL, the famous scout of the South African war, and by his imitators in England and the United States, and they are being taught to the regiments of Boy Scouts.

The meeting to be held next Friday at the West Side Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association for the purpose of training men to act as troop leaders in the movement, and thus establish more firmly the organization of the Boy Scouts of America, will be addressed by famous leaders. Mr. ERNEST THOMPSON SETON will talk on the origin of this movement of "scouting for sport," and Mr. JACOB A. RIIS will speak of its opportunities for directing the activities of the American boy. A little later the boys of this city will be asked to enter the Summer campaign. Here is a sample schedule for a week and a day's instruction as conducted in Gen. POWELL'S island camp:

> First day, preliminary work: Settling into camp, formation of patrols, distribution of duties, orders, &c.
> Second day, campaigning; Camp resourcefulness, hut and mat making, knots, fire lighting, cooking, health and sanitation, endurance, finding way in a strange country, and boat management.
>
> Third day, observation; Noticing and memorizing details far and near, landmarks, tracking, deducting meaning from tracks and signs, and training the eyesight.
>
> Fourth day, woodcraft; Study of animals, birds, plants, and stars; stalking animals, noticing people, reading their character and condition, and thereby gaining their sympathy.
>
> Fifth day, chivalry; Honor, code of knights, unselfishness, courage, charity, and thrift; loyalty to the King and to employers or officers; practical chivalry to women; the obligation to do a "good turn" daily, and how to do it.
>
> Sixth day, saving life; From fire, drowning, sewer gas, runaway horses, panic, street accidents, improvised apparatus, and first aid.
>
> Seventh day, patriotism; Colonial geography, the history and deeds that won the empire, the navy and army, flags, medals, duties of a citizen, marksmanship, helping the police.
>
> Eighth day, a summary of the whole course; Sports comprising games and competitive practices in all subjects of the course.

Such a programme could easily be adapted—it has been adapted—to the needs of the Boy Scouts of America.

The cavalry drill during the graduation exercises at West Point showed that the cadets were not only well trained in equitation, but in the special feats of "rough riding." The splendid service in this department rendered by Capt. GUY V. HENRY, the cavalry instructor at the Military Academy, has suggested advancing the same methods of instruction throughout the army. The Hotspurs at West Point already amaze the world with their horsemanship; it compares favorably with that of the Czar's Cossacks. Why should not all of Uncle Sam's mounted troops acquire their accomplishments?

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Weather and Its Averages. Complaints of the heat were numerous enough yesterday, but they were made with an unwonted moderation, compared with those usually heard when the temperature and humidity are as high as they have been during the last two days. Most people had the grace to remember how for a month past they have been criticising the weather as too cold and rainy for the season, and apparently realized how absurd it would have been to exploit as a grievance the arrival of the real Summer for which they have all been sighing—when they didn't howl for it.

As a matter of fact, so far as temperature goes, and ignoring a little excess of rain, the weather has for some time been about that which the vacationist spends his time and money in seeking at the seashore or among the mountains. With much more of the kind we have just been having we shall all yearn sadly for the cold days of May and early June. This is, unfortunately, a climate of extremes, with arctic and tropic conditions, if not exactly intermingled, at least coming in confusingly swift alternations, and we have great trouble in adjusting ourselves to them—a trouble which, though we have always had it, we seemingly cannot cease to be surprised at.

Whether, because we have had so much of cold and rainy weather, so far this year, we are to have as much that is hot and dry, is a question that cannot be answered, though it gets many replies. Of course there is such a thing as a weather average, but it tells nothing whatever as to the weather to be expected in any given day, week, month, or year. Excesses and lacks are sure to be balanced in time, but within what period the balancing is accomplished nobody has yet discovered. There are cold years, just as there are cold months—each colder than normal, that is—and the weather prophet must be something more than a mathematician.

Unrecognized, Though Well Known. If ever there was a man well and widely known as to his personal appearance, that man is Mr. ROOSEVELT. Unnumbered, if not quite innumerable, thousands have seen him face to face, and practically everybody else has seen him photographed and otherwise pictured in all sorts of attitudes and costumes and doing most sorts of things. As is not the case with some people, too, he looks exactly like his photographs and not much unlike the caricatures of him, and whenever he appears on a platform or rides in a parade or assists at a function, reality and concept so closely agree that every observer is sure that he would have known the most distinguished of Colonels anywhere at a single glance.

This certainty is fallacious, as was sufficiently demonstrated when the ex-President went this week to buy himself a beautiful new silk hat to wear at his son's wedding. Before making that important purchase he walked for several blocks through streets crowded with just the people who are supposed to know him best and not one of them recognized him. However, as he was returning, the errand done, a policeman who had served under him in the old days at Headquarters proved himself capable of doing what nobody else had done—that is, of seeing the Colonel without the help of an expectation to see him. Instantly, of course, there was a hearty exchange of greetings. These, overheard by a few near by, instantly spread the news in all directions. From them all the eager crowds came flocking up and traffic in that vicinity at once ceased for the time being.

This episode very prettily illustrates one of those queer peculiarities of attention with which the laboratory psychologists have recently been having so much fun. The fact that THEODORE ROOSEVELT can walk through Twenty-third Street unnoticed for a good many minutes does not prove him unknown to New Yorkers, but it does prove that he is known to them in a way somewhat different from their suppositions and assumptions.

A Law That Seems Premature. That a ship equipped with the apparatus for sending and receiving wireless messages, and an operator to work it, is safer than one without that marvelous convenience is beyond question, and the advantages of it are not less well realized by vessel owners than by the traveling public. Nevertheless there is at least excuse for asking if the two Houses of Congress have not been just a bit hasty in passing a bill which, if it becomes a law, will compel every ocean-going vessel that carries fifty or more passengers also to carry this rather expensive means of communication.

On a good many, perhaps a majority, of such vessels the receipts from wireless messages will not begin to cover expenses or even to pay the operator's salary, and while it is easy to say that the protection of human life is worth any price, as a matter of cold fact the world never has been, and probably never will be, run with the idea of guarding all its inhabitants from all small risks, even of death.

The lawmakers have drawn the line at fifty passengers. Forty-nine, it seems, can take their chances. A like rule controls the carrying of doctors on shipboard, but the limitation in that case is a little easier to understand or at any rate it seems so because it has long been familiar, and while familiarity does not supply an explanation, it much decreased the impulse to ask for one.

But there! the shipowners are an articulate lot, who guard their own interests with effective ingenuity, and, as they have as yet made no bitter protest against the compulsory Wireless bill, it can be safely assumed that they do not expect its enforcement to inflict an intolerable burden upon them.

A LAWYER'S FUNCTIONS.

Edward M. Shepard's Address to Young Practitioners Misinterpreted.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Every morning I read with entire confidence those smaller print notes of yours in the fourth and fifth columns of your editorial page, and never without an expectation of pleasure. So, on my return to town this very hot day, it is really a blow to have some one show me your issue of June 18 with the note on "Light from a Legal Luminary," about my address the other night to the New York Law School.

The dangers of reportorial condensation are this time very obvious. For what seems to have puzzled you was not in the address as I delivered it, and certainly far enough away from my thought. I did, indeed, warn young lawyers against "deceitful technicalities," and referred to the preposterous discussion about lawyers helping their clients to violate the law, as if such a matter were open to any discussion whatever. I told the law students that discussion would be quite as proper over the visit of a burglar to the lawyer to consult him with reference to house-breaking the following night.

"No one," I said, "would doubt that the criminality of the lawyer was equal to that of the burglar."

And I pointed out that it was equally clear with respect to lesser or other violations of the law—as, for instance, violations of which men of large business or corporate interests are frequently accused—sometimes, no doubt, rightly, and sometimes, no doubt, wrongly. I said that a lawyer who entered into consultation with a client as to how the client could violate the law, became, by the mere act of entering into the consultation, himself a law breaker; and that, if the result of the consultation were a crime on the part of the client, it was no less a crime on the part of the lawyer—and perhaps more so.

I then referred to the very different thing about which the reporter did not make clear what I said: I mean the question arising when a client desires to do a thing innocent in itself, which the law forbids to be done in one way and permits to be done in another. I said that if there were a lawful way to do a thing intrinsically innocent the lawyer was not only justified in pointing out the lawful way, but that it was his duty to do so.

I did refer to the "wonderful thicket of statutory prohibitions" which surround, not only public officers and officers of corporations, but every private citizen engaged in business. The number of these prohibitions is in the thousands or tens of thousands. I admonished the law students that these prohibitions, often merely formal or technical, frequently greatly increased the labor and responsibility of a lawyer in advising that the proposed act of a client, which is in itself perfectly innocent, is not within some one of the vast multiplicity of technical prohibitions. The point of the observation was to urge thoroughness and diligence on the part of the lawyer, and also to protest against the oppressive number of technical statutes which surround and obstruct the transaction of perfectly innocent, wholesome, and commendable business. And as to this I know very well that my unknown friend in the fourth and fifth columns will not differ from me.

The Young Woman's Problem.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your articles concerning the "lonely young man in New York" struck me very forcibly yesterday and causes me to ask, What is the matter with the "lonely young woman in New York," the young woman who has left her home, perhaps in the far West, to make a dent of some kind in this big city? She lives in a good boarding house, true, but are there any avenues open to her in New York for acquaintance with the proper young people?

In Boston there are delightful clubs for the stranger, that afford her much amusement and a delightful list of acquaintances among people in her own walk of life. The particular club referred to is the Field and Forest Club, which gives its members outings to all points of interest, picnic dinners and suppers, long, interesting historical tramps, and makes the stranger feel that she is a part of her environment. If there is anything of this kind open to young women in New York, will somebody please tell of it through the columns of THE TIMES. Thank you. M. S. H.

The Vogue of Big Muscles.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

To effectually dismember "big muscles" from the otherwise beneficial idea of regular and reasonable exercise for us "domesticated" humans all we have to do is to kill the vogue of big muscles as the ladies have killed the vogue of big hips. Let us possess ourselves of the conviction that big muscles are vulgar and devote our surplus energies to the cultivation of litheness and grace of movement.

Let us be catlike rather than oxlike, and so, with cultivated spareness and heightened agility, bring ourselves into closer accord with the times.

Of what avail, for instance, would big muscles and avoirdupois prove in aviation?

With spareness, however, we must spare the "embonpoint," for of all abominations in the general harmony of nature the thin man with a "stomach," in a bathing suit, is the acme.

Playgrounds Open All the Year.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The City Playground League would ask THE TIMES to correct the impression possibly conveyed to the public that the playgrounds represented in the pictorial section of last Sunday's TIMES have been recently reopened. This page was called "The Spring Opening of Playgrounds in New York." The photographs were taken in Seward Park playground, one of the municipal park playgrounds opened nearly eight years ago by the Outdoor Recreation League, of which Mr. Charles B. Stover, the present Park Commissioner, was then President. These playgrounds are in continuous operation all day throughout the year, and attract often as large a crowd in the bright days of Winter as in Spring or Summer.

Hucksters Are Yelling.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If I am not mistaken, an ordinance was passed some time ago prohibiting hucksters from yelling their wares through the streets. I live on Manhattan Avenue, near 120th Street, and nearly all day the hucksters are making the neighborhood resound. L. M. H.

FIGHTERS OF SOCIALISM.

Paternalists, Among Them Roosevelt, Not Right Men for Attack.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Socialism is now to be fought with a vengeance by the Individual and Social Justice League of America, which has just been formed in New York, with the Rev. John Wesley Hill, 104 East Thirtieth Street, as President. Dr. Hill belongs to the Methodist Episcopal Church; several Bishops of that Church are members of the league, while all other religious faiths and political parties are duly represented also.

At the outset it is noted that many of the Bishops and lay members of the league have been zealous patrons of paternalism, centralization, National bureaus, and commissions, which contribute more to the growth of State Socialism than all the propaganda effort of the "comrades" put together. Thus far none of these patrons has given the slightest evidence of a change of mind in the above regards. Will not the league really contribute to the aid of the Socialistic revolution?

Any body of men that undertakes to do battle with Socialism must first see that they are divested of all leaning toward paternalism in municipal and State affairs and of centralization in National affairs. They must put themselves under a species of civil service examination, and if they cannot pass, the quieter they keep the better. No body of men has as yet appeared properly equipped to antagonize Socialism, however much shouts and howls have been sent up against it.

Individually speaking, Theodore Roosevelt has furnished about the most conspicuous example of paternalist fighting Socialism. No man in the country has done more for paternalism and centralization than he, while no man has at the same time essayed the hostile rôle more amusingly. A cartoon in The Chicago Daily Socialist most accurately gauged Mr. Roosevelt's antagonism to Socialism: A steamer was starting off with Roosevelt to Africa. On the wharf stood a jolly Socialist, with a copy of Mr. Roosevelt's Outlook article in his hands, which he had been reading. He looked up with a laugh and exclaimed, in the words of a popular song, "He always leaves us laughing as he says good-bye." Mr. Debs could have spared himself a reply to Mr. Roosevelt on the strength of this. An inconsistency that stirs laughter has gone to seed.

The American people will now have some more of Roosevelt's Socialism, for the magazine writer, Ray Stannard Baker, has announced that in an interview Mr. Roosevelt told him he would "steal the Socialists' thunder." To be more accurate, he should have said he would continue to steal it. We may therefore now look for Roosevelt to vie with Debs and Berger in Socialistic demands, with the only difference that he—Mr. Roosevelt—will be the man to bring and enforce them. The destinies of the Nation should lie with graver men, and if we are to have Socialism, let the men who have been trained in its school give it to us until revolution banishes it.

A SOCIALIST PAMPHLET.

"Should Socialism Be Crushed" Makes Strange Use of Statistics.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Socialist politicians are up to their old tricks of trying to fool the people, and have now issued through the National Executive Committee of the Socialist Party a pamphlet named "Should Socialism Be Crushed?"

They say in this pamphlet:

> According to the figures gathered by the United States Government the workers in this country produce on an average $3,800 a year for each worker.

And it adds that the "average wage is only $437 a year." Such a statement shows either gross ignorance or willful misrepresentation. The Government has never gathered any statistics as to the average wage for all the workers, not even for one-half of them. The Government publishes statistics for the railroad employes, and for those employed in the manufacturing industry. The average wage for the 1,500,000 railroad employes is at present about $640 per year.

Paid in wages, $2,611,540,582.
Average wage, $477.

The salaried officials, i. e., foremen, clerks, managers, &c., numbered 519,751, and they received in salaries $574,461,231, making a total wage fund of $3,186,001,763, and an average for all employed in manufacturing industry of $531.80. The total cost for materials, raw and partly manufactured, was $8,503,949,750. The cost for miscellaneous expenses was $1,455,019,473. (This last item includes such expenses as taxes, insurance, cost to sell goods, &c.) This makes a total expense of $14,144,970,992.

The gross value, or factory price, of the total production for that year was $14,802,147,087, leaving a net profit (not counting bad debts, &c.,) of $647,176,093. Wages and salaries amounted to $3,186,001,763. Labor received therefore $4.90 to each $1 that capital received from the joint effort of capital and labor. Capital received not less than 6 per cent. upon the more than $12,000,000,000 invested in manufacturing industry.

These figures apply only to the factory system, and exclude the neighborhood and small hand production in which the capitalist owner is nearly always the worker, such as the country blacksmith shops, wheelwright shops, tin repairers, boot and shoe cobblers, &c.

What dependence can any sane man put upon the utterance of the Socialist agitators when their officials circulate such false statistics as those contained in their National Committee pamphlet called "Should Socialism Be Crushed?" The Socialist Party National Committee certainly crushed the truth.

Ex-Controller Grout's Denial.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES misquotes me this morning as saying that

> I never had, saw, indorsed, or cashed any check from the Kenny or Foster advertising business other than a very moderate retainer for more than a year past, and over three years after I left office, which Mr. Foster paid me in his litigation with Mr. Kenny.

What I said was correctly stated in Sunday's paper, that

> I never had, saw, indorsed, or cashed any check from the Kenny or Foster advertising business other than a very moderate retainer within a year past, and over three years after I left office, which Mr. Foster paid me in his litigation with Mr. Kenny.

You will see that the two statements are substantially different. I may add that I never even heard of the checks referred to until yesterday.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Answering the question of a Brooklyn suffragette, I should say that a marriage license is preferable, being cheaper and more humanly interesting a document. I should advise that she choose the man instead of the dog—and, if she make a wise choice, she will not only live to rejoice in having followed this advice, but will learn that her present cynical condition is not only a bad possession to herself, but a bad thing to try to foist upon the unthinking folks—old and young—who take stock in this kind of wit. YALE ALUMNI HOLD FANTASTIC PARADE

Meet for the Last Time In Their Old Hall—Oldest Living Graduate There.

YOUNG TAFT GETS HONORS

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 21.—Alumni of Yale had their annual meeting to-day, without the presence of the most distinguished alumnus, President Taft, who months ago said he would attend, but found he could not. The meeting was held in Alumni Hall for the last time, as this structure is to give way to the Wright Memorial Dormitory. The Rev. J. G. K. McClure, '70, presided, and the speakers were Judge John E. Hodges, '33; Marcus P. Knowlton, '60; Eugene L. Richards, 85; Percy Jackson, 85; Edward T. Hart, '07, and President Hadley.

Judge Hodges, who comes from Bridge Hampton, N. Y., is the oldest living graduate of Yale. He was graduated just five years later than Alphonso Taft, father of President Taft. His speech was largely a eulogy of Alphonso Taft. Judge Hodges is 92 years old. He made the trip from Western New York to attend the commencement. He was at the Yale-Harvard baseball game this afternoon.

Arrayed in various fantastic dress, the younger classes held full sway about the campus and its vicinity, later marching out to Yale Field for the baseball game. The class of 1907 appeared as gladiators, in white, blue-trimmed garments, the airy nature of which was the envy of the more heavily clad. The triennial class of the Sheffield School radiated in harlequin orange, black, and white, with cap and bells. Cool and comfortable, 1904 appeared in sailor costume. In coats of deep red, white trousers with red stripes, and red and white hats, 1904 Sheff fairly glowed. With Mason A. Stone, Jr., of New York as Roosevelt, the members of the class of 1900 gathered about him as Rough Riders. The Sheffield School men, graduates of the same year, came as a band of fire fighters, with red, white, and blue uniforms. The older classes confined themselves generally to white duck coats, trousers, and hats, plain or trimmed with a little blue.

At the corporation meeting the acknowledgement of the receipt of $75,000 from Henry T. and William D. Sloane of New York, in addition to the $425,000 already given by them for the erection and endowment of the Sloane Laboratory, was made. Charles C. Haight of New York was chosen as architect for the building.

The purposes of the Faculty of the Yale Medical School to raise $2,000,000 to commemorate the one-hundredth anniversary of the school was approved. The resignation of Prof. Herbert E. Smith, for twenty-five years Dean of the Medical School, was accepted. Prof. George Blumer of the school was chosen as his successor.

Higher standards were adopted for admission in the Law School to courses leading to the degree of Doctor of Civil Laws and Juris Doctor. In addition to the Bachelor of Laws degree now required a student must now have a Bachelor's or higher degree in arts, science, or philosophy.

The Seabury memorial tablet was unveiled in Memorial Hall. Warren Bartlett Seabury, class of 1900, a founder of the Yale College Mission at Chang-Sha, China, was drowned in that country in 1907. The gathering filled the vestibules of Woolsey Hall. The tablet bears the inscription:

> In memory of Warren Bartlett Seabury, Class MCM.; A founder of the Yale Mission College, Chang-Sha, China; born in Lowell, Mass., Sept. 27, 1877; drowned at Kuling, July 29, 1907. He was not disobedient to the Heavenly Vision.

Robert A. Taft, son of President Taft, is among those who get highest scholarship honors in the announcements made to-day. He gets a philosophical oration stand. Stephen H. Philbin of New York City, former Captain of the baseball team, gets an oration stand, while Walter Seth Logan, Jr., of Washington, Conn., Captain of the nine, and Ruthven A. Wodell of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Captain of the 'Varsity crew, each gets a first dispute stand. Edward H. Coy of New Haven, Captain of the football team, gets a first colloquy. Henry Roe Cloud of Winnebago, Neb., a full-blooded Indian, has a first dispute.

YALE FINANCES ARE GOOD.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, June 21.—President Arthur T. Hadley of Yale in his annual report declares that the finances of Yale, which were in a critical state five years ago, have now been put on an excellent basis. The $5,000,000 which Secretary Stokes said was needed in 1905 has been practically raised, and the university funds have been put on a more productive basis. The total increase of university property in the last year was greater than ever before, due to the gifts of Mrs. Russell Sage of $650,000, of Alfred G. Vanderbilt of $200,000, and of the General Education Board of $137,819. From the alumni fund $50,000 was turned over, and most of it will be used for increases of salary.

Of the use of the Hill house property Dr. Hadley says:

> The southwestern section of this property will be used for university laboratories, and the first of these laboratories will be that of physics. The material of this laboratory and the main material of other buildings in this group will be Longmeadow brownstone. We shall proceed as soon as possible to build a university laboratory in zoology. The absence of facilities to teach zoology by modern methods is probably the most glaring deficiency in Yale to-day.

In discussing the proposed increase of salaries Dr. Hadley declares that distinctions should be made on the ground of merit. He points out that in other institutions salaries of $6,000, or even $7,500, are paid in exceptional cases, and goes on:

> It seems clear that the corporation has not only the right, but the duty, to raise the salary of a man who is now receiving $4,000 to $6,000, if that man clearly merits the increase, without being thereby compelled to raise the salary of another man in similar position who is rendering the institution little or no service. The corporation which calls a man to Yale as a professor agrees to pay him $4,000 as long as he is guilty of no grave dereliction which warrants that body in demanding his resignation. It does not agree that it will always pay him as much as any of his colleagues, nor does it agree that he and his colleagues in joint meeting shall have the right and duty to decide upon his salary increase.

In closing Dr. Hadley says:

> "The spirit of the students has never been better than to-day; the intellectual atmosphere of the place, I believe, never so good, as in the year which is just closing. Of special significance for Yale's future has been the success of the present Dean of the college in taking up the grave and complex problems which lay before him. He has proved himself the man for the place."

Graduates Wear Simple Gowns—Ex-Gov. Guild Makes the Address.

WELLESLEY, Mass., June 21.—The largest class in the history of Wellesley College was graduated to-day when the degree of Bachelor of Arts was conferred upon 263 young women at the thirty-second commencement exercises of the college.

Six graduates received the degree of Master of Arts, and certificates in hygiene and physical education were granted to thirty others. The number receiving the Bachelor of Arts degree is six short of the record.

The gowns of the graduates were much less elaborate than in former years. This was the result of the desire of the students for simple graduation dresses.

The commencement address was delivered by former Gov. Curtis Guild, Jr., who pleaded for a liberal educational system rather than for one that was purely technical.

MISS CARTER WEDS VISCOUNT ACHESON

GIFTS FROM KING AND QUEEN

And the Queen Mother—Reception at Dorchester House Follows the Ceremony in St. George's.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 21.—The London matrimonial event of the month was the marriage to-day in St. George's Church, in Hanover Square, of Viscount Acheson, elder son and heir to the Earl of Gosford, to Mildred Carter, only daughter of J. Ridgely Carter, American Minister to Roumania, and for many years the popular First Secretary to the American Embassy here.

There was a great and distinguished company present at the ceremony and at the reception afterward in Dorchester House, which was lent by the American Ambassador and Mrs. Reid. Queen Alexandra and other royal guests would have attended but for Court mourning. Lord and Lady Gosford, both being connected with Alexandra's household, it was atone time contemplated to have a quiet wedding because of King Edward's death; but Queen Alexandra wished the arrangements, with the exception of the presence of royal guests, to stand.

St. George's was a veritable bower of flowers, masses of Madonna lilies producing a charming effect against the dark wood. The guests began to arrive long before 2 o'clock, the time set for the ceremony, and a tremendous crowd assembled in the vicinity of the church.

The ceremony was performed by Canon Sheppard, Sub-Dean of the Chapels Royal, assisted by Prebendary Anderson, rector of St. George's. There were seven bridesmaids, Lady Theodosia Acheson, sister of the bridegroom; Lady Victoria Stanley, Miss Elsie Nicoll of New York, Mlle. Irene de Lagrange, Miss Camilla Morgan, the Hon. Rhoda Astley, and Miss Marian Scranton. They wore dresses of ivory satin chiffon draped to the figure with transparent yokes of gauged chiffon and picturesque angel sleeves of chiffon, while instead of hats they wore original little caps of lace placed straight across the front of the head, held on either side with large white satin buttons. Over the caps they wore tulle veils edged with Carrickmacross lace. They carried bouquets of red roses.

Bridegroom's Brother Best Man.

The Hon. Patrick Acheson, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man. Lady Gosford, mother of the bridegroom, who put off mourning for the day, appeared in a very becoming gray voile dress with a pretty hat. Mrs. Marshall Roberts, who wore a white dress veiled in black, brought her little girl in a white frock. This young person walked quite alone behind the bride, whose grown-up bridesmaids all preceded her up the aisle. Two small pages were to have accompanied little Miss Roberts, but one was not very well, so neither came.

The church was quite full when the bride arrived on her father's arm and passed on the way to the altar with her attendant maids as an advance guard. They stood at the head of the centre aisle, and the bride took up a position at the chancel steps, where Lord Acheson was waiting.

The bride wore a coil of fine antique lace under a long tulle veil, and garlands of orange buds with green leaves were wound around her head, arranged to fall from the shoulders. Her soft satin dress had exquisite point de Venise, the long lines forming a border for her Court train from the shoulders. She wore no gloves. Her only jewel was a string of pearls given to her by her mother. The bridal bouquet was of branching white orchids.

At the reception at Dorchester House Mrs. Ridgely Carter received the guests on the wide landing, wearing a dress of pale lavender satin crepe, with a Tuscan-colored hat ornamented with lavender ostrich plumes. Mrs. Whitelaw Reid and all the wives and daughters of the Diplomatic Corps were wearing unrelieved black. The diplomats included the German and Spanish Ambassadors, the Russian Ambassador, and the Argentine Minister. Princess Alexis Dolgoroutri was dressed in peach satin and chiffon. With the Duke of Manchester came the Duchess, wearing pearls, with a black lace gown. The Duke of Somerset, who had a gray suit, was with the Duchess in gray. With them came Mrs. Stickney, in a chiffon dress veiled in gray. Catherine, Duchess of Marlborough, was much admired in white spotted embroidered net. She had a full black feather boa, and black plumes in her hat.

Anglo-American Guests.

American and Anglo-American guests were too numerous to name, but among them were Lady Dufferin, Lady Newborough, who wore a very smart gown of black lace and a picture hat, and her sister, Mrs. Chauncey.

Other guests were Mrs. Lewis Harcourt, who was in black, and Lady Barrymore, who wore a dove gray ninon and a big hat. Cora, Lady Stafford, was in mauve chiffon with a lack picture hat. Mrs. Ralph Vivian, Mrs. Sturges, Helen, Lady Abinger, Mrs. Frank Mackay, Mrs. Laugenbach, Mrs. Glasgow, Mrs. Bonynge, with Lady Deerhurst; Mrs. Moreton Frewen, Mrs. Newhouse, Mrs. Robert Grosvenor, Countess Pappenham, Mrs. Phipps, Mrs. Grace, Mrs. Henry Coventry, Mrs. Richard McCreery, Mrs. Barclay French, Miss Gould, Mrs. Goudy, Miss Cotton, Mrs. Chapin, Mrs. Parish, Miss Eno, Mrs. McIlvaine, Mr. and Mrs. Post, Mrs. Payne Thompson, Mrs. Hipperley, Mrs. Jordan Mott, Mrs. Woodhouse, Miss Voss, Mrs. Adrian Rose, Mrs. Cuthbertson, Mrs. Leslie Mayhew, Mrs. Polson, and Mrs. Murray Graham.

The bridal cake was set out in the state dining room. It was very elaborate, of many tiers decorated with fragrant lilies of the valley. The bride, after cutting it herself, took a round of plates to the guests.

The young couple left for their honeymoon, the bride looking charming in a black and white toilette. They intend to do a motor tour in a car which Lord Acheson gave the bride.

Among the valuable presents to the bride was one from the King and Queen and the Queen Mother consisting of point lace. So far as magnificense is concerned the principal present was a gorgeous circular emerald set in double rows of brilliants with four huge single diamonds, a gift from the bride's grandfather, uncle, and aunts. Lord and Lady Gosford gave the bride a fine diamond neck ribbon with double tassels falling from a medallion. Mr. and Mrs. Carter gave their London residence as a wedding present.

J. Pierpont Morgan's gift was an immense plaque set with diamonds on a pearl plait. In the centre is a huge diamond-shaped single stone.

E. K. SCHEFTEL WEDS IN LONDON

Miss Florence Frazer of Ottawa the Bride of Stock Exchange Member.

Special Cables to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 21.—Edwin K. Scheftel, a member of the New York Stock Exchange, living at 20 East Fifty-seventh Street, was married to-day to Miss Florence Elizabeth Fraser, daughter of a wealthy lumber merchant of Ottawa, Canada.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's cousin, Mrs. Charles Sale of Mount Road, Harrow, in the presence of only the immediate members of the two families. The bride, who wore a dress of gray crêpe de chine, was given away by Charles Sale, while Walter Scheftel, a brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man.

Those present at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Jules S. Bache, the latter a sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. Adolph Scheftel, mother of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scheftel, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sale.

The wedding was quiet, owing to the recent death of the bridegroom's father, Adolph Scheftel, Miss Fraser crossing the Atlantic for the ceremony, owing to the necessity of Mr. Scheftel's presence in London.

MISS JULIA SANDS WEDS.

Newport Society Turns Out to the Church Ceremony and Reception.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 21.—The second marriage this year in the family of Mrs. Frederic P. Sands was witnessed by many relatives from all parts of the country in Trinity Church this afternoon when Miss Julia Parker Sands was married to Paul Roland Dickson of Cincinnati, son of Mrs. Charles Dickson. Society as well as the army and navy were largely represented.

The color scheme of the church decorations was green and white with the centre aisle in arch effect, and hanging baskets of flowers about the side aisles. The chancel was banked with palms and plants and a profusion of Easter lilies.

Miss Sands looked charming in a gown of white satin with a tunic embroidered all over in beads and pearls. The long train was in Court effect. The veil of tulle was fastened with orange blossoms, and instead of the conventional bridal bouquet an ivory covered prayer book was carried.

Miss Sands, the maid of honor, wore pale marquette over green satin draped with cream colored lace, a large picture hat of green tulle with cream colored feathers, and carried lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Sands, mother of the bride, wore an embroidered black net gown over white moire silk, with a black tulle hat, with long white and black plumes.

While the invitations to the church were numerous those to the reception outside numbered about 250.

At the home of the bride's mother in Catherine Street, where the reception was held from 4:30 to 6:30 o'clock, Mrs. Sands and Mrs. Dickson received the guests, and they then passed along to the table where the couple received congratulations. Later Mr. and Mrs. Dickson led the company to the lawn, where the Newport Military Band played during the reception.

Two tents adjoining each other by a carpet path were erected, one for the bride's table and the other under which a buffet was served. The bride's table was decorated with pink roses, and about it were seated, besides the bridal party, De Ford Beal and Henry Platt of Boston, the Misses Katherine Osgood, Margarette Siegfried, Frederika Paine, Margaret Buffum, Rose Grosvenor, Eleanor Roelker, Dorothy Watts, Katherine Lawrence, and Ruth Thomas. The many beautiful gifts received by the bride were shown to relatives and a few immediate friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Dickson left by automobile for Providence, where they boarded a fast train for New York. They will sail for Europe to remain indefinitely.

Seidel's Latest Change in Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, June 21.—A change in the city administration, second only in importance to that in the Mayor's office, went into effect yesterday, when Harry E. Briggs became Commissioner of Public Works, succeeding the outgoing board of four Commissioners.

The appointment puts all public works under one official. The new Commissioner named J. J. Handley, business agent of the Machinists' Union, as Superintendent of the Street Cleaning Department.

NO HITCH IN DEAL WITH HAMMERSTEIN

ALL MONEY NOW PAID IN

He Transfers the Manhattan Opera House, but It's a Mere Technicality, as He's to Get It Back To-day.

Oscar Hammerstein was finally freed yesterday from his connection with opera in the United States, when the last papers in the deal whereby he made over his opera interests to the Metropolitan Opera Company were passed. William Hammerstein acted for his father in the final transfers, Arthur Hammerstein, who represented him in the beginning of the deal, being abroad.

The transfer included the payment of all the money still due Mr. Hammerstein on his contract with the Metropolitan company, the immediate taking over of the Philadelphia Opera House and the transfer of all of Mr. Hammerstein's contracts with singers.

The meeting to attend to these matters was held in the office of Paul Cravath, and among those present were Edwin B. Root, representing Mr. Hammerstein; ex-Judge Bykner of Philadelphia, representing E. T. Stotesbury, who appeared for the Metropolitan Opera Company; De Witt Cuyler, represented the Metropolitan Opera Company of Philadelphia, and other attorneys.

As a part of the technical side of the proceedings the Manhattan Opera House, in Thirty-fourth Street, which is to be retained by Mr. Hammerstein, was transferred to the City Real Estate Company for a nominal consideration, Mr. Hammerstein holding a mortgage of $350,000 on it. According to William Hammerstein this property will be re-transferred to-day.

William Hammerstein said last night that all of the transfers had been mare according to the original agreement, made last April. This, apparently, sets at rest the report made public yesterday from Paris that Mr. Hammerstein and the Directors of the Metropolitan Opera Company were at variance and that the deal might not be carried through. William Hammerstein said he had cabled his father about the Paris story, but that he had received no reply up to a late hour last night. Otto H. Kahn repeated the denial that he had made on Monday night.

The deal, which was completed yesterday, was first made public last April, when Oscar Hammerstein, through his son Arthur, announced that he had made over all his plant, rights to operas, his scenery, costumes, his contracts with singers, and his Philadelphia Opera House to the Metropolitan Opera Company for an "adequate consideration," and that he had retired from opera in New York, Philadelphia, and elsewhere. The transfer did not include the Manhattan Opera House, New York, which Mr. Hammerstein said then would be used as a high-class music hall, a plan which he still intends to carry out.

GEORGE V. THANKS AMERICANS

His Appreciation of Our Sympathy Expressed Through Consul Here.

THE TIMES received this letter from Courtenay Walter Bennett, the British Consul General in this city, last night:

New York, June 20th, 1910.

Sir: I have the honour to inform you that I am instructed by Sir Edward Grey to express, by command of His Majesty King George V., His Majesty's deep appreciation of the many tokens of sympathy and sorrow which were displayed in New York in connection with the melancholy occasion of the death of His late Majesty King Edward VII.

I am also requested by Mr. Bryce to tender to all those who have manifested their sympathy through this Consulate General the thanks of His Majesty's Ambassador for the friendly feelings shown.

The tokens of regard and respect entertained in the United States for the late Monarch have deeply touched His present Majesty and the Queen Mother, and have been received with grateful sentiments by those who live under the British flag everywhere in the Empire, as well as in the British Isles.

I would have wished to thank everyone individually, but as this is impossible I would ask you to be so kind as to publish this letter in your paper for general information and as an assurance of my own deep appreciation of the many kindnesses shown in our National trouble. Yours faithfully,

C. W. BENNETT,
Consul General.

NEW VERSION OF "RIP."

Austin Strong is to make a new version of "Rip Van Winkle," in which Cyril Maude will appear in London this Fall. According to the accounts received Mr. Strong will discard all previous dramatizations of the Washington Irving story. Special stress will be laid, however, upon the incidents in the Catskill Mountain scenes, in which Rip awakes from his long sleep after his encounter with the fantastic shapes of Hendrik Hudson and his crew. The title chosen for the new play is "Rio."

Another interesting bit of theatrical news from London concerns the fact that Fred Wright, Jr., is to return to this country to appear as Cousin Timothy, in "Our Miss Gibbs," when Pauline Chase comes to play in that piece. Julia James, Mollie Lowell, and Kitty Mason are other English people, who are to appear here in the same production, which is scheduled for Aug. 26.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Eddie Foy will open in the new Shubert revue, "Up and Down Broadway," at the Shubert Theatre, Boston, next Monday night, June 27.

Arthur Stanford, who has been leading man with Elsie Janis in different Dillingham productions the last five years, has been engaged by the Shuberts for a new musical production to be put on in August.

Albert Spalding, the young American violinist, has just been unanimously elected an Honorary Academician of the Florentine Musical Academy of Florence, Italy.

About 200 of the Roosevelt Rough Riders attended the performance of "A Matinee Idol" at the Lyric Theatre last night. To-night they expect to have Mr. Roosevelt with them at the New Amsterdam Theatre to see "Girlies," and to-morrow afternoon they will visit Luna Park as guests of Frederic Thompson. In their party at the New Amsterdam to-night will be Commander Robert E. Peary and Mrs. Peary, who were invited when the north pole discoverer attended a meeting of the Rough Riders at the Alhambra Theatre on Monday night.

The steamer William Storie is now making regular trips to Midland Beach, Staten Island, and return on a schedule of about every two hours, starting at 9 o'clock in the mornings from the Battery. Several new attractions have been added to the Beach this season.

The cast of the first "Seven Days" company to go on the road has been completed, and includes Albert Brown, Ned Finley, William Wadsworth, Ben Wilson, Florence Robinson, Clara Weldon, Helen Cullinan, and Madelaine Einthrop. It will open in Atlantic City on July 25, and go to the Pacific Coast.

The "Kilties Band" of sixty Scotch musicians has been booked for a tour of the William Morris vaudeville houses, and will appear in New York soon. Among the features of the band this year will be the Clan Johnstone troupe of Scottish pipers and dancers.

"The College Girls" company began its second week at the Columbia Theatre on Monday night with no diminishing of popularity. Odiva, the diver and swimmer, continues as a special feature.

UNDERTAKER BEATS CLUBMAN

Ireland Defeats Lawyer Allen for President of Rye.

Yachtsmen and golfers turned out in force yesterday in the Larchmont election as well as the election in Rye-on-the-Sound. In Larchmont the members of the Fire Department also assisted in the different contests, and many automobiles were used to carry the voters to the polls.

In this village the Republicans carried their ticket, electing Edward Coleman Griffin, a New York real estate broker, for President and Joseph Bird, a New York bank President, for village Treasurer. Mr. Bird is also a prominent member of the Larchmont Fire Department. The other candidates elected were T. A. Weinz for Trustee and Henry Ruhl for Tax Collector.

In Rye there was a warm contest between William Porter Allen, a New York lawyer, and Solomon Ireland, the village undertaker, who ran on the Citizens' Independent ticket for the Village Presidency, and when the votes were counted to-night it was found that the entire independent ticket had won. The independent platform was in opposition to village men being elected to office. The claim of the candidates was that natives give more practical and economical government to the village.

Mr. Allen, who was defeated for Village President, has been a Village Trustee of Rye for several years. He is a member of the American Yacht Club and the Apawamis Golf Club, and the clubmen turned out in their motor cars to assist him. The commuters and natives, however, stood by Undertaker Ireland.

OPERATION KILLS POLICEMAN.

It Was Lieut. Stephenson's Third in a Year—Lieut. Jackson Dies.

Police Lieut. John Stephenson of the harbor squad died yesterday of blood poisoning in the Red Cross Hospital, after the amputation of his left foot. It was the third operation for amputation to which he had submitted in a year.

A year ago, while doing duty at a parade, some one stepped on his right foot, and it became necessary to amputate the foot on account of gangrene. Then the limb had to be taken off. The Lieutenant recovered from this operation, and was assigned to duty in the harbor squad. Last week his left foot began to trouble him, and he was removed to the Red Cross Hospital, where it was amputated on Wednesday. He was 49 years old and lived with him family, at 69 East 123d Street.

MURDERER PUT TO DEATH.

Fornaro Made No Trouble Despite His Threat to Do So.

DANNEMORA, N. Y., June 21.—Antonio Fornaro was put to death in the electric chair to-day at Clinton Prison. Although he had made threats against the prison officials, he went to his death calmly after asking forgiveness from those he had threatened. Three times the current was turned, although physicians said the first shock had killed him.

Fornaro killed Agnes Johnson, a colored woman with whom he had been living at Troy, by cutting her throat on April 6, 1908. He was arrested at Pittsfield, Mass. His defence was an alibi, although he had confessed.

At the request of the Italian authorities, who stated that a petition was being forwarded from Italy, Governor Hughes granted a reprieve. The petition, which was from the man's wife, stated that Fornaro probably was insane. The Governor ordered an examination and physicians declared the man safe.

Not the Same Jacob Klein.

Jacob Klein of 346 Broadway is not the lawyer Jacob Klein, whose writ of habeas corpus was sustained last week by Supreme Court Justice Erlanger, in a decision which held that it is no violation of the anti-tipping law to offer a gratuity to obtain a public record wrongfully withheld under an arbitrary hospital rule.

CLAFLIN INTERESTS GET LORD & TAYLOR

OLD AND PROSPEROUS HOUSE

Founded in 1826 and It's Said Partly on Proceeds of a Reward for Recovery of Dutch Crown Jewels.

A change in control of the wholesale and retail dry goods house of Lord & Taylor, it was learned yesterday, is about to take place, and the report was current in financial circles that the $50,000,000 United Dry Goods Companies, or its chief subsidiary, the Associated Merchants' Company, of both of which John Claflin of the H. B. Claflin Company is President, would turn out to be the purchaser. In the dry goods trade it was not doubted that Lord & Taylor in the next week or two will be added to the long chain of department and dry goods stores owned outright or controlled by the Claflin interests.

Negotiations for the purchase of a large share in Lord & Taylor were begun a short time after the death of Edward P. Hatch, head of the concern, last September. It is understood that the original offer, which was not considered favorably by the executors of the Hatch estate, has recently been increased, and that little more remains than the completion of the technical details of the transaction.

Mr. Claflin had nothing to give out for publication on the subject yesterday. Edward Hatch, Jr., who has had charge of the management of Lord & Taylor since the death of the firm's President, said that negotiations for a change in the affairs of Lord & Taylor were now going on, although he was not at liberty to say just what they were. From other sources came the information that a definite announcement of the change would be forthcoming in about a fortnight.

Many reports concerning the future of Lord & Taylor have been going the rounds since last September. One of them was that Marshall Field & Co. of Chicago, wishing to get a foothold in New York, were seeking to acquire control of the company, intending to use the firm's name over a store to be opened in Fifth Avenue, near Thirtieth Street.

Another was that a chain of dry goods stores was to be established through the country under the name of Lord & Taylor. The firm name is one of the oldest in the United States. Although the house did not become a corporation until 1904, its organization dates back to 1826.

The manner in which the firm is said to have come into existence is interesting. In the years just preceding the organization of Lord & Taylor Samuel Lord and George W. Taylor were close friends, as the story goes. Mr. Lord was an iron founder, devoting much attention to patterns for metal molding. Mr. Taylor was Warden of the Bridewell Jail, which occupied the site of the present Tombs. The prisoners in those days were not so many as now, and the Warden had more opportunity to give personal attention to the people committed to his charge.

One day a prisoner in the Bridewell asked for a private conversation with the Warden. He told Warden Taylor that he wished to give him some information in return for many kindnesses at his hands. Just about a year before that the crown jewels of the Netherlands had been stolen, there had been a vain search high and low, and finally a reward of $50,000 had been offered for the recovery of the gems. What the prisoner had to tell Warden Taylor was that he knew the man who had stolen the crown jewels, and that the robber was even then on the ocean bound for America with the stolen jewels in his possession.

Warden Taylor was greatly impressed. He met the ship down the bay, confronted the man with the robbery, and succeeded in recovering the crown jewels. In due time he received the fifty-thousand-dollar reward. Not long after that Mr. Taylor joined forces with his friend, Mr. Lord, and they opened a retail dry goods store down in Catharine Street.

When Lord & Taylor became a corporation, in 1904, it was capitalized at $5,500,000, divided into 6 per cent. cumulative preferred and common stock. That the firm is in a flourishing condition is shown by a recent statement of its assets as $10,841,677, with liabilities of $4,856,597 and surplus of $5,986,080. The Directors are George E. Beers, Vice President; Edward H. Titus, Treasurer; Joseph H. Emery, Howard C. Smith, Samuel H. Ordway, Wilson H. Tucker, Edward Hatch, Jr., and Cornelia Hatch.

The dry goods trade sees in the expected absorption of Lord & Taylor by the Claflin interests only another instance of the gradual centralization of this industry. In May last year the United Dry Goods Companies, with John Claflin at its head, was incorporated in Delaware. It acquired a controlling interest in the Associated Merchants' Company, which already owned or controlled many leading retail houses.

Among the interests thus brought together by Mr. Claflin under one head were the H. B. Claflin Company, James McCreery & Co., (Twenty-third and Thirty-fourth Streets;) the Stewart House of Baltimore, (formerly Posner Brothers;) 2,000 shares ($200,000) of the $250,000 common stock of the C. G. Gunther's Sons, (furs,) New York; J. N. Adam & Co. of Buffalo, N. Y., and $2,400,000 of the $3,000,000 debenture bonds, $2,000,000 of the $3,000,000 income bonds, and 800 of the 1,000 shares of stock of the O'Neill-Adams Company, (a consolidation of H. O'Neill & Co. and Adams Dry Goods Company;) Hahne & Co. of Newark, N. J.; Powers Mercantile Co. of Minneapolis, the William Hengener Company of Buffalo, N. Y., and Stewart Dry Goods Company of Louisville.

Probably twenty thousand persons greeted the Yankees upon their return from the Western trip in first place at American League Park yesterday, but when the battle with the Athletics was over they had not only been defeated in both games of the doubleheader, but had been relegated to third place in the race. They lost the first game by seven runs to four, and the second by seven runs to one. The local men were outplayed in every department of the game, and this in the face that they placed in the box two of their most effecive pitchers—Ford and Vaughn

In the first game, with Ford and Sweeney as the battery, the New Yorks held the Quakers to a two-to-one score in five innings, but in the sixth inning Ford, who had won eight out of nine games this season, wavered and was finally replaced by Frill. The damage had been done, however, for the Athletics collected five runs, more than the Yankees scored during the entire game.

Stallings's men started the scoring in the first game when Hemphill walked in the second inning. Wolter reached first in the same manner. Chase sacrificed, but Morgan not only fumbled the ball, but threw badly to Davis. Hemphill was enabled to cross the plate. The Athletics evened up matters in the third inning when Morgan walked, and on Hartsel's sacrifice he reached second. He scored on Oldring's single to left.

The Yankees took the lead in the fifth inning, when Sweeney singled to left, and Ford got to first on being hit by a pitched ball. Hemphill placed a single to centre on which Sweeney scored. The following inning, however, proved the undoing of Ford, and Frill replaced him. Five runs were the result of this inning, and the Yankees in their portion of the inning made two, the score at this time being six to four in favor of the visitors. From this period until the ninth inning the playing of both teams was of the sharpest description. In their last effort at the bat Collins placed a hard hit ball over Hemphill's head for a three-bagger, and on Baker's fly to centre, which Hemphill accepted, Collins scored the last run of the contest.

In the second game Vaughn was opposed by Plank, Mitchell and Donahue being the receivers. The Philadelphia twirler was in splendid form, Wolter being the only man who could fathom his intricate delivery effectively, a double and a single being his contribution during three times at the bat. The only other man to hit him safely was Hemphill, who poked out a single in the third inning. On the other hand, Vaughn was knocked seven times safely, including two triples by Oldring and Collins. Plank received perfect support, but the Yankees' fielding was ragged. Capt. Chase being partially responsible for the Athletics' run in the second inning. An unusual incident occurred in the third inning when Collins was successful in his attempt to steal home. Mitchell overran him ten yards from the plate, and at that he should have got the Philadelphian had Vaughn not dropped the thrown ball at the plate.

The Yankees' only run of the game was made in the fourth inning when Wolter doubled to left, was advanced on Chase's out, and scored on Laporte's out at first. In the remaining innings only one man reached first, Wolter singling to left in the sixth. Davis scored the first run for the Athletics in the second inning on a base on balls, Barry's sacrifice, Donahue's force out, Plank's gift at first base, and Hartsel's single to left. In the next inning Collins tallied on his three bagger and Vaughn's failure to hold Mitchell's throw at the plate. In the third Barry singled, went to second on Donahue's sacrifice, and tallied when Austin fumbled Hartsel's grounder.

A base on balls to Murphy and two single hits was responsible for the fourth run by the Athletics in the sixth inning, and then came the destructive ninth for the Yankees. Vaughn hit Donahue. He was sacrificed to second by Plank. Four bad balls placed Hartsel on first. Oldring's terrific hit to centre sent two men home, and the Quaker's centrefielder landed on third. Collins's sacrifice scored Oldring, and Baker finished the inning by putting up a fly to Knight.

Cleveland and Chicago Each Win.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 21.—Cleveland and Chicago played two extra inning games to-day, each club winning one. Cleveland won the first game 3 to 2 in twelve innings. The two Cy Youngs started, but the Chicago pitcher was taken out in the first inning. Scott, who succeeded him, was effective, Cleveland winning on Zeider's error on Graney's grounder, Stovall's out, and Lajoie's hit. Scott tried to pass Lajoie purposely, but allowed one ball to come near the plate and Lajoie hit safely to centre.

In the second game neither team scored until the tenth, when errors by Lajoie and Turner allowed Chicago to score three runs. Young, who was knocked from the box in one inning in the first game, was invincible in the second. Score:

HARVARD BADLY BEATEN.

Yale Makes Eighteen Hits and Twelve Runs Against Crimson Team.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 21.—The weird antics of the reunion classes seemingly had their effect on the players of the Harvard ball team to-day, the Crimson going down before Yale 12 to 5. The heat may have had something to do with it, too, the sun beating down on the field and open stands without the slightest breeze to give relief. Many women who were on open stands were obliged to leave the field, and the reunion classes grouped on stands in the rear of left field sought what shade there was in front of the grand stands.

While Yale made all their runs in two innings—four in the second and eight in the third—the game was never in doubt, as Harvard was able to get but a total of five. In the fourth Long was put in the box for Harvard in place of McLoughlin, keeping Yale from scoring more runs. In the sixth Freeman replaced Tommers, and in the seventh Carhart went in for Philbin. The scoring of Yale in the third was due to a bunch of hits, six singles, a two-bagger, and a three-bagger. Yale's fielding at times was ragged. The score:

ROYAL METEOR WINS.

Royal Meteor, from the Newcastle Stable, scored in the Foam Stakes for 2-year-olds at Sheepshead Bay yesterday, beating home August Belmont's Whist, C. L. Harrison's Meridian, an added starter, and four others. It was a prize worth $2,330 net to the winner and was one of the guaranteed fixtures that cost the Coney Island Jockey Club nothing, for the reason that only $2,000 was guaranteed under the conditions.

In the running of the race Meridian was the one to cut out the pace, and until well inside the last furlong he appeared to be winning, when Glass went to the whip as Royal Meteor and Whist closed on the outside of the track. Meridian failed to respond to the urging, and though he outfinished the others he was easily beaten by the first two.

Priscillian, who was turned over to S. C. Hildreth to train by August Belmont, won his first race over a New York track since his return from England, when he was first in the mile at the end of the card. He was in very well under the conditions, only having to shoulder 115 pounds, and he had speed enough to cut out all the pace and outfinish old Dreamer, who raced to the place. The summaries:

SULLIVAN VISITS JOHNSON'S CAMP

John L. Favorably Impressed with the Colored Fighter's Work in Gymnasium.

SHOWS NO SIGN OF WORRY

Jim Jeffries Justified In Not Underrating His Opponent's Pugilistic Ability.

By JOHN L. SULLIVAN.
Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—After a good night's rest after our long trip overland we went out to Johnson's camp early this afternoon and spent the rest of the day there. I had already arranged with Johnson to meet me there at 2 o'clock. Several group photographs were taken of Johnson, Billy Delaney, Al Kaufmann, Bob Deady, and several others, including myself. After this ordeal I had a talk with Johnson and asked him how he felt. He told me he never felt better, and complimented me on my looks. Delaney suggested that we adjourn to the gymnasium. We went into Johnson's room first, saw him strip, and prepare for the general routine of work that he has been doing for the past couple of weeks. We then went into the gymnasium and saw Johnson punch the bag for fifteen minutes or thereabouts. He gave a clever exhibition and wound up by knocking the ball from its fastenings out into the hall.

After this he donned the gloves for a four-round set-to with Al Kaufmann, giving a fair display of his prowess, and after finishing with Kaufmann he sparred four rounds with George Cotton, which consisted chiefly of roughing and clinching one another backward and forward around the ring, evidently to test his lung power in that direction, as well as to test the strength of his arms.

While, of course, the training stunts were nothing new to me to look at, as I have many times gone through similar work, as far as the looks and the apparent condition of Johnson go, it could be counted as of a first-class order. Gymnasium exercises are no criterion to go by or to show the real condition an athlete may be in.

This is the first time I have ever seen the big black, and to say that he has impressed me favorably would hardly be expressing my meaning. He is a big, husky piece of humanity, and I am not surprised, after seeing his wonderfully well-developed body and his healthy look, that Jeffries decided upon his well-defined plan of preparation.

The retired champion evidently does not underrate this fellow, because as a matter of fact Jeffries has laid out and gone through a better and more thorough course of training than any man ever did before preparing for an affair of this sort. Of course Johnson, like Jeffries, is depending a great deal on his work in the open air, particularly on the road. Johnson told me that he thinks more of this part of his work for beneficial results than anything he does. I saw him probably four hours after he had finished his twelve-mile jog along the ocean boulevard, and after he had paid a visit to the city to straighten out some of his numerous legal entanglements.

He came bustling up in his auto to the Seal Rock House, situated a few hundred yards from the famous Cliff House, which is now a new edifice, having been built on the site of the old Cliff House, which was destroyed in the big fire.

Johnson evidently takes his troubles lightly, because whatever difficulty he was having in this direction, he made no mention of it to anybody, and went at his work with an alacrity that was really surprising, in view of the twelve-mile plug on the road earlier in the day.

His boxing with Kaufmann and Cotton probably was not meant to show any of his real ability as a fighter, and in this respect he got all out of it that he probably planned to get. Cotton and Kaufmann hustled him around and had him perspiring very freely.

During the eight rounds of their exercises the bag punching, of course, was not strenuous, but it was a diversion, and the more diversions a fellow can work into his training the better it is.

Johnson informed me that he would not start for Reno until Thursday night. Both Delaney and myself advised him to go up there as soon as possible, because I know and so does Delaney what peculiar pranks high altitudes can play with the delicate state of a man's condition, particularly when he is getting fit for a big fight.

What surprised me more than anything else in Johnson's work in the ring was his stealthy method of action. He seemed a good bit like Fitzsimmons in this respect. Apparently he does not move around on his feet, and he gives the impression unless you watch him closely that he is not judging distance at all. But when his opponent gets within the proper range a short straddle or slight advance forward as the glove goes out and then you can see that he has judged his distance to a nicety.

Naturally the sparring he did to-day would not give any one much of an idea what he could do with a strong serious opponent of equal calibre, though you could imagine that his mind is on the terrific rushes that no doubt Jeff will make, and the way he drops his elbows and holds his upper arms close to his body would give one the impression that he has given some thought to that plan of body defense.

It was a mighty interesting afternoon's entertainment for me, for I have not been around a big fighter's headquarters for something like fifteen years, but I do not see anything of a startling nature that is an improvement over our old methods, and in that respect I was a little disappointed. But at the same time I should feel complimented, because these latter-day young fellows have thought sufficiently well of our old methods to adopt a good many of them.

After the session of exercises was over I had quite a talk with Delaney over old times, and we got into reminiscences so deeply and our mutual discoveries disclosed so many deaths among our old pals that the conversation was becoming quite morbid, so we cut this sort of melancholy talk short an dtried to think of more pleasant things. Just as I was leaving the Seal Rock House I received the following telegram from Tex Rickard:

RENO, Nev., June 21.—The Jeffries-Johnson fight will take place here on July 4, in an arena which will be started to-morrow morning.

We will wind up our little sojourn in San Francisco and start with the main body from here on the 9 o'clock train to-morrow night.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN.

RENO GETS BIG FIGHT.

Promoter Rickard Announces Location—Governor Won't Interfere.

RENO, Nev., June 21.—With Reno definitely fixed as the battle ground, with assurance from Gov. Dickerson that no attempt to interfere will be made by the State authorities, and with preparations already under way for building the arena, the Jeffries-Johnson fight seems certain of fulfillment on July 4.

No further complications are anticipated, and Promoter Tex Rickard to-night promised himself the first quiet pillow that he has had since Gov. Gillett issued his ultimatum that the contest could not be held in California.

The selection of a site for staging the big fight was made this afternoon. It is a rocky field in East Reno, about a mile and a half from the heart of the city. It is familiar in ring history as the scene of the Hart and Root contest of July 4, 1906. It is regarded as an ideal place, as it affords plenty of ground for a spacious structure. On one side it is flanked by the tracks of the Southern Pacific Railway and on the other by a trolley line.

Contractor McLaughlin went over the place to-day with Rickard and the Reno fight committee and immediately began to carry out plans already prepared for the construction of the arena. A building about 300 feet square, modeled along the lines of the structure begun in San Francisco, will be put up. It is hoped to have it completed by the first of next month. No change will be made in the original arrangement of seats. Plenty of lumber is said to be available.

Another selection made this afternoon was training quarters for Jack Johnson. Tom Flanagan, the champion's manager, after looking over several cities, finally settled on a roadhouse three miles southwest of Reno, known as "Ricks Resort." According to Flanagan it is an excellent place for a training camp and affords all necessary facilities.

Jeffries will be stationed at Moana Springs, three miles south of Reno. Nothing, according to Manager Berger's reports, is lacking at this place that could be desired in connection with the fighter's camp. Natural hot and cold springs, an open-air pavilion already provided, comfortable sleeping quarters and nearby fishing streams and lakes are among the inducements offered.

A double fight will be Reno's offering on July 4, if Sid Hester succeeds in carrying out his plan to stage the Langford-Ketchel fight on the morning of the big battle in the same arena. Hester was busy to-day endeavoring to arrange for a permit and in looking over numerous sites for training quarters for his fighters.

Rickard's announcement of the selection of the battleground for the Jeffries and Johnson contest was made in the form of a signed statement, as follows:

"I have decided to hold the Jeffries-Johnson fight in Reno. In making the selection I wish to give my reasons for so doing. Goldfield made an offer which it was hard to turn down. They are the gamest lot of men I ever saw. This morning a committee of Goldfield business men offered to take me to a local bank and guarantee me $200,000. I decided on Reno, however, for several reasons.

"In the first place I did not feel that fight fans of the East and West should be compelled to take an extra twelve-hour ride across the hot desert to Goldfield. Then, again, the people from San Francisco can get here on the morning of July 4 and leave the same night in order to be back to business Tuesday morning.

"For this reason I think probably 1,000 or 2,000 will come from San Francisco that would not go to Goldfield. The Reno people have done all they could. They will build a suitable arena and pay for the $1,000 license for me.

"TEX RICKARD."

The Goldfield delegation which had made a determined effort to swing "the battle of the century" to Rickard's home town, accepted the announcement with expressions of regret, but with promises to "boost the game" to the extent of their ability.

Reno's delegates are widely elated over the defeat of Goldfield. The city's fight committee promises to make the necessary preparations for the care of all who come for the fight. Jeffries and his trainers are expected to-morrow. Flanagan has sent a telegram to Johnson, advising the negro to lose no time in reaching Reno.

Promoter Hester has not yet got permission from Rickard to stage the Ketchel-Langford fight in the Jeffries and Johnson arena on the morning of the Fourth. Pending Rickard's decision Hester says he will not consider any other site for the proposed contest.

Late this afternoon Rickard was persuaded to look over several places with a view to reconsidering his selection of the old Hart and Root site for the big fight. Rickard, however, refused to change his plans. He said to-night that work on the arena would begin to-morrow.

Rickard's former partner, Ole Elliott, received a telegram to-night from James D. Finch, secretary to Gov. Dickerson, stating that the Governor would not interfere with the fight.

FIGHTERS SAFE IN NEVADA.

Gov. Dickerson Says Laws Will Not Permit Him to Interfere.

OGDEN, Utah, June 21.—Gov. Dickerson of Nevada, who is in Ogden to-day, declared emphatically that he would not interfere with the Jeffries-Johnson fight. He was advised of the immense volume of protests awaiting him at Carson City, but said they would not make the slightest difference. Gov. Dickerson's statement was:

The laws of Nevada make prizefighting legal upon the payment of a $1,000 license, and if this is complied with any interference on my part would be impossible. In spite of the protests that might arise and have arisen from ministers and opposing organizations, the laws pervent me from stopping the fight.

There is only one possibility of my interference, and that is in the event of a fake fight. Tex Rickard, the promoter, is a personal friend of mine, and I am sure this will not be the case.

In view of these facts, I say again there will be no official interference if the Jeffries-Johnson fight is held in Nevada.

JEFFRIES STARTS FOR RENO.

Before Leaving Ben Lomond Jim Does Good Morning Work.

OAKLAND, Cal., June 21.—James J. Jeffries, accompanied by his wife and his entire staff of trainers, with the exception of Corbett, arrived from Ben Lomond to-night. Jeffries and his helpers later left for Reno.

On the trip from Ben Lomond Jeffries whiled the hours away in a card game with Joe Choynski, Dick Adams, and Col. Kowalski. Contrary to his usual custom he nodded out of the car window pleasantly to those waiting at stations to see him along the line. To better his good humor he won most of the money in the card game.

Before leaving Ben Lomond Jeffries put in a good morning's work. His labor lasted over an hour, and included snappy bag punching, rope skipping, shadow boxing, and exercises at the pulley weights. Jeffries expects to be back at the grind at Moana to-morrow afternoon.

JOHNSON MOVES TO-MORROW.

Colored Fighter Continues Training in Meantime at Old Camp.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—Notwithstanding the preparations which are being made to move his camp to Reno, Jack Johnson to-day did his regular work. A large part of the morning was occupied by a brisk walk over the sand hills, followed by a plunge in the ocean. After luncheon Johnson called his sparring partners, and spent the afternoon in boxing and gymnasium work. Johnson has decided to move to Reno not later than Thursday.

FITZSIMMONS AT HONOLULU.

With Bill Lang and Tonny Burns on His Way to See Fight.

HONOLULU, June 21.—Tommy Burns, Bill Lang of Australia, and Bob Fitzsimmons arrived to-day en route to Reno to witness the Jeffries-Johnson fight on July 4. In discussing the coming fight Fitzsimmons predicted "Johnson will turn white in the ring the first time that Jeffries lands on him."

SAILOR BURKE ALMOST OUT.

Jim Smith of the Bronx Gives Brooklyn Fighter a Good Beating.

Jim Smith of the Bronx gave Sailor Burke of Brooklyn a severe drubbing in the ten-round headline bout at the Fairmont Athletic Club last night. Smith forced the fighting from first to last, and in the second and fifth rounds had the jack tar almost out. In the fifth Smith rushed Burke into his corner, and after carefully measuring him with a right swing he shot up a left uppercut which lifted the sailor off his feet and sent him to the floor. The hard blow cut open Burke's cheek and brought the blood freely from his nose.

While Smith was strong and rugged and had a dangerous looking wallop, he handled it wildly. The Bronx boy time and again could have put Burke away if he had only been clever enough to follow up his advantages. Burke at times ran away from Smith's vicious attack, and the latter had to chase him all over the ring. Burke also spent much of his time hanging on and stalling to save himself. If some of the swings that Smith started had landed on the seaman the fight would not have lasted two rounds.

WOMEN'S LAWN TENNIS.

Mrs. Paul and Miss Biddle Victors In Doubles Match.

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—In contrast to the first day's play there was comparatively little progress made to-day in the women's National championship lawn tennis tournament on the grounds of the Philadelphia Cricket Club at St. Martin's. This was mainly owing to a misunderstanding which resulted in the abandonment of the scheduled morning matches.

The feature match of the doubles was the one played immediately in front of the clubhouse in which Mrs. A. J. Drexel Paul and her sister, Miss Biddle, defeated Miss Cassel of New York and Miss N. Ostheimer. Losing the first set, 1—6, Mrs. Paul and Miss Biddle played in great style and took the next two after the best exhibition of women's doubles seen here for some time. The winners will meet to-morrow Miss Merrick and Miss Ross of the Philadelphia Cricket Club, who defeated Miss Phipps and Miss Griscom. The summary:

Women's Singles.—Miss Edith Rotch, Boston, defeated Miss E. G. Ostheimer, Philadelphia, 6—4, 6—0; Miss Lois Moyes, Toronto, defeated Mrs. O. D. Oliphant, Trenton, 6—0, 6—2; Miss Edna Wildey, Plainfield, won from Miss Clara T. Chase, Philadelphia, by default.

Women's Doubles.—First Round—Miss Moyes and Miss Dorothy Greenhut defeated Miss M. Disston and Miss Rogers, 6—1, 6—4; Mrs. A. J. Drexel Paul and Miss Biddle defeated Miss Cassel and Miss N. Ostheimer, 1—6, 6—4, 6—2; Miss Merrick and Miss Ross defeated Miss Phipps and Miss Griscom, 6—3, 6—1; Miss Browning and Miss Wildey defeated Miss E. G. Ostheimer and Miss Alexander, 6—3, 6—3.

Mixed Doubles.—First Round—Miss Edith Rotch and Wallace F. Johnson defeated Miss M. Disston and F. R. Newbold, 6—2, 6—4.

Metropolitan Champion Beaten.

Slashing tennis toppled over the playing through Champion Frederick C. Inman in the third round of the Metropolitan championship singles yesterday on the turf courts of the West Side Tennis Club, 238th Street and Review Place. That was the sensation of a day filled with fast racket work, as Inman met his Waterloo at the hands of Ross Burchard, the holder of 1908, in straight sets, 7—5, 6—3. Never has Burchard, a veteran of many hard matches on the courts, displayed such speed and power. The summary:

Metropolitan Championship Men's Singles, First Round.—Seymoure Johnson defeated Joseph S. Condon, 8—6, 11—9; F. N. Gates defeated G. M. Bodman, 8—6, 4—6, 6—4; N. F. SCANDALOUS, SAYS EXCHANGE

Court Asked to Strike Out Part of Bank Note Co.'s Complaint.

A motion was filed in the United States Circuit Court yesterday by counsel for the New York Stock Exchange for an order to strike out a large part of the bill of complaint against the Stock Exchange filed by the New York Bank Note Company in its suit for damages to its business, growing out of an alleged conspiracy on the part of the Exchange to create a monopoly in the engraving of securities in favor of the American Bank Note Company.

The Stock Exchange seeks to have part of the complaint set aside on the ground that some of the allegations in it are scandalous. Among the allegations so designated is one to the effect that the Exchange conspired with the late Russell Sage to ruin the plaintiff company.

Secretary George W. Ely of the Exchange in his own behalf asks to have stricken from the complaint on the ground that it is scandalous the allegation that he is incompetent to judge of the work done by the bank note company. Several individual members of the Exchange filed motions to have their names removed from the list of defendants, some on the ground that they were non-residents, and others on the ground that no action would lie against the individual members of the Exchange, until a judgment against the Exchange itself was returned unsatisfied. The motions will probably be argued on June 27 or on the first motion day in July.

FRISCO BONDS SOLD ABROAD.

Syndicate Here Closes Out $10,000,000 in Paris After Long Negotiations.

The $10,000,000 St. Louis & San Francisco, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Division, first mortgage 4½ per cent. thirty-year bonds, recently purchased by a syndicate headed by William Salomon & Co. and G. H. Walker & Co., have concluded negotiations with two French banks for the sale of the bonds. The institutions in Paris through which a public offering of the bonds will be made in France are the Banque de l'Union Parisienne and the Crédit Mobilier Français. The issue will be in the denomination of 516f., equal to $100. Application will be made to have the bonds listed on the Parquet of the Paris Bourse.

Negotiations leading up to the sale were undertaken several months ago, and this sale, therefore, represents the completion of an old transaction rather than a reopening of the European demand for our bonds, which was lately checked by unsettlement of our markets following the injunction issued against the Western railroads.

Several blocks of another issue of St. Louis & San Francisco bonds have already been placed in France, so the amount of the securities of this road in the hands of French investors has been brought up to a very considerable sum.

CENTRAL ISSUES BONDS.

Downtown Bankers Offering $22,500,000 of $30,000,000 for Equipment.

The expected issue of New York Central lines' equipment trust bonds was announced yesterday. The amount of the issue, which is being offered by J. P. Morgan & Co. and the National City and the First National Banks, is $22,500,000 out of a total authorized issue of $30,000,000. The bonds bear interest at the rate of 4½ per cent., and are to be paid off in annual installments of $1,500,000. They are offered from par for the bonds maturing Jan. 1, 1911, to 104¼ for the bonds maturing Jan. 1, 1925. They yield at these prices about 4⅝ per cent.

The agreement provides that equipment bonds shall not at any time exceed 90 per cent. of the actual cost of the equipment. The obligation for the payment of the principal and the interest is assumed jointly and severally by the New York Central & Hudson River, the Lake Shore, the Michigan Central, the Big Four, and the Chicago, Indiana & Southern.

WHEAT NEWS AGAIN FACTOR

Further Reports of Inquiry from Drought Unsettle Sentiment—Paris Again Buys Our Bonds.

A renewal of the complaints from various points in the Northwest of injury to wheat through drought, accompanied by sharp advances in prices on the grain markets worked, as was the case on Monday, to restrict trading on the Stock Exchange yesterday and to hold prices of securities in check. In the Minneapolis grain market September wheat sold up 4¾ cents a bushel shortly after the opening, and an equally sensational rise in the same option was reported from Winnipeg. In Chicago, on the Board of Trade, and on the Produce Exchange in this city the September option rose 3 cents, with slightly smaller advances scored by other months and sympathetic strength in corn and oats. With the single exception of the Government's weekly weather report all the news of the day from the Spring wheat fields was unsettling. In the Southern districts of North Dakota and the northern districts of South Dakota the absence of adequate rainfall has been unusually prolonged, and the injury to wheat is unquestioned. Elsewhere in the three great Spring wheat producing States conditions are not so bad, but are, nevertheless, unsatisfactory at bottom and require prompt remedy in the shape of copious rains if the crop is to come up to its early promise. At the moment there are no sure signs of relief from this situation, but the best judges of the position of affairs insist that if rain falls within a week, or, possibly, ten days at the outside, some of the loss now apparent may be recovered and a fair harvest assured. St. Paul and Great Northern reflected the current uneasiness over the crop outlook in the States which they traverse in their decline of a point or more, but on the other hand Northern Pacific, which also derives a very considerable traffic from these same districts, closed strong and with no appreciable loss on the day. In other departments of the list the price movement was extremely irregular, with heaviness ruling in most issues, but presenting, nevertheless, features of strength, including Consolidated Gas and one or two other shares.

Much satisfaction was expressed over the announcement that local bankers had succeeded in placing another large block of bonds in Paris, this comprising $10,000,000 of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico division of the Frisco, taken by two large Paris banking houses, which will offer them for listing on the Paris Bourse. Evidences of some interest at least on the part of investment institutions here in good offerings was found in the numerous applications made in advance for allotments of the $22,000,000 New York Central 4½ per cent. equipment notes, announcement of the purchase of which was made during the course of the day.

Little interest attached to the day's developments in the local money market. The banks reported a fairly substantial loss on routine transactions, with the Sub-Treasury reducing their earlier gains from this source to a purely nominal sum, some $6,000, where a week ago they had received on balance by this time above $1,000,000. Current quotations for call and time loans were unchanged, although brokers reported increasing difficulty in placing commercial paper upon favorable terms, an evidence, of course, of the husbanding of funds now going on in anticipation of harder Autumn money markets. Demand sterling dropped sharply early in the day, but recovered later and closed unchanged. Uninterrupted ease in London was reported by the cables, which also described the securities market as inclined to strength, although restrained at the moment by the unfavorable crop advices from this side.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 21.—Trading in the local market was exceedingly quiet to-day, and fluctuations were confined within narrow range. Outside of Amalgamated and one or two of the other prominent issues, transactions were mostly odd lots. The undertone generally held steady, however, and the close was quiet but firm and without feature.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Reaching the End of the Rope.

In some quarters in Wall Street there is a dispositon to look with more equanimity than at any time recently upon the attitude of legislators toward corporation affairs. One man who is thus disposed said yesterday, in explanation of his views, that it would seem that the legislators of the country, National and State, have gone about as far within the last few years as it is possible to go in the way of regulating the corporations and that any proposal which may be made in the future will bear such a close resemblance to some previous proposal that it will have little effect in disturbing sentiment among those opposed to regulation of the corporations. The enactment of the new Federal railroad law which places in the hands of the Inter-State Commerce Commission the power to suspend rates is looked upon as about ending the movement for Federal laws regulating the railroads if exception be made of the proposal to make all capital issues by railroads subject to the approval of the Government. It is taken for granted that this suggestion will again be discussed by Congress on the submission of the report which will be made by the commission which, under the terms of the newly enacted law will be charged with the duty of investigating the matter of railroad capital issues.

A Letter Account in Cotton.

The receivers for Knight, Yancey & Co., the Southern cotton house against which a petition in bankruptcy was filed recently, in going over the books of the concern found an account entered simply under the letter "H," which appeared to have been a speculative account in cotton. In its operation a debit balance had been run up which the receivers are hopeful may be collected for the benefit of the creditors of the firm. The identity of the individual for whom this account was run on the books of Knight, Yancey & Co. has not been uncovered, but the receivers have obtained information that the principal is a prominent business man of the South who chose this method of keeping his identity unknown to the clerks of the firm through which he was conducting his operations. The incident recalls the similar accounts found in the books of New York Stock Exchange houses which failed in recent years.

Crops in the Northwest.

The dispatches received by the New York offices of some of the Northwestern railroads did not bear out the published advices regarding the extent of the damage to the crops in the Northwestern States by the recent excessive heat and drought. These railroad advices said that the condition of the crops remained good, and that rains had occurred in some sections prior to the hot weather which has now visited these States, so that the damage, to say the least, was far from as great as reported. It has become proverbial in Wall Street that information regarding the condition of the crops is always more conflicting than information on any other subject with which Wall Street busies itself, not excluding politics.

Further Cotton Cuts.

The reluctance of cotton goods jobbers and wholesalers to load up with stocks at present high prices and the consequent stagnation in the cotton trade have brought about still further cuts in prices in anticipation of cheaper cotton when the new crop comes in. Two of the largest cotton manufacturing firms in America announced cuts in prices of their staple goods yesterday, and the announcement is accompanied by the statement that the cut will hold good only until July 1. At that time these two firms will put prices back again ¼ cent. One of the most significant features of the move by these two firms is their offer to guarantee that prices between now and Oct. 1 will not go lower than those which go into effect July 1. The reductions announced range from ½ to ⅝ cent under current quotations.

Solace About Crops.

The alarmist reports about the disastrous weather conditions in the Spring wheat belt are tempered by private advices. Oscar Lyle of S. B. Chapin & Co. is one of the private observers who finds some encouragement in conditions afield. His advices from the fields yesterday said that there was nothing to prevent average crops in Northwest Iowa and that in Southwest Minnesota prospects were excellent as a result of the rains of two weeks ago. In other sections dry and hot weather are reported to have done damage. There is one thing about Spring wheat—it may wilt early in the season for lack of moisture under hot suns, but it has a wonderful faculty of recovering under better conditions as the season advances.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

While a steady tone was shown at the Metal Exchange yesterday, business continued quiet. Late delivery copper was a shade higher in the bid. Other metals were unchanged.

On the Metal Exchange in London yesterday the close showed a decline of 2s 6d from the opening price of the day, but a gain of like amount from the final quotation of Monday; futures, likewise down 2s 6d at the close from the initial price of the day, also recovered over Monday's closing figure, 3s 9d. The market finished steady, final quotations ruling at: Spot, £55 2s 6d; futures, £55 17s 6d.

Pig tin ended easy, with spot down 3s 9d and futures down 5s. Spot quoted at £148 10s and futures at £149 10s 6d. Spelter was steady and unchanged at £22. Cleveland warrants were quoted at 49s, a gain of 1½d.

THE COMMODITIES MARKETS.

The wheat market was sensationally strong, closing near best prices for the day. Northwestern markets showed greatest gains, and were from 4 to 6c a bushel net advance at the close. The dominating feature of the news was the dry, hot weather in the Northwest. It has not rained for several weeks in portions of the Northwest, and there is a deficiency in the rainfall of from 25 to 75 per cent. in portions of the Northwest compared with normal, and this week that deficiency has been increased and not diminished. Temperatures were reported excessive, with some points claiming as high as 110 degrees in the shade. There appeared to be an enormous short interest in the market, and the new crop deliveries were the strongest everywhere. The July delivery was influenced largely by the strength in the new crop, but it was also affected by the big decrease in Bradstreet's visible. The figures showed a reduction of 2,028,000 bushels in the United States and a world's decrease of 6,300,000 bushels, following a decrease of 7,966,000 bushels the preceding week. This rapid reduction of stocks for the immediate supply, with the sensational damage reports from the Northwest, has entirely changed the trade attitude toward the market. Although conservative interests are inclined to be skeptical of the extreme advices from the Northwest, there is a disposition to look for great nervousness and irregularity until there is a good rainfall throughout the entire Spring wheat district. The markets closed at practically the best. New York was up 2⅝ to 3⅝c; Chicago, 2¾ to 3⅝c; Minneapolis, 5⅜ to 6¼c; Duluth, 4⅞ to 6c; Winnipeg, 3¾ to 4⅛c; Kansas City, 4 to 4⅛c; St. Louis, 3¼ to 3⅜c. Cash prices quoted: No. 2 red, Winter, $1.05, nominal, to arrive, cost, insurance, and freight; No. 2 red, spot, nominal, $1.07, free on board, afloat, for export; No. 1 Northern Spring, $1.20, nominal; No. 2 hard Winter, nominal, and No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.01¼.

Corn was strong and active, influenced by the pronounced advance in wheat and the strength of oats. There was also a good deal of buying on the reports of dry, hot weather in the Upper Missouri Valley, and there were claims to the effect that the dry weather was causing a good deal of apprehension in Iowa and Nebraska. At the advance, however, there seemed to be considerable corn for sale. Weather conditions generally were considered favorable, and the crop as a whole is making excellent advance. There was a decrease of 1,224,000 bushels in Bradstreet's visible, which added to the strength of the market. Cash corn quoted: No. 2, 69¼c, nominal, elevator, to arrive, cost, insurance, and freight, domestic basis, and steamer, nominal, elevator, export basis.

Oats were active and very strong, gaining 1 to 2c a bushel. There was heavy trading during the morning, and a big covering movement developed on account of the reports of dry, hot weather in the Northwest and of dry weather in Iowa and Nebraska, as well as Wisconsin. These are all important producing sections. New crop deliveries showed most strength. There was a large decrease in the visible, 1,036,000 bushels, following a decrease of 934,000 bushels the previous week. Toward the close some realizing developed, and prices reacted a little from the extreme low. Cash oats quoted: Natural white, 43@45½c, and white, clipped, 44½@48¼c.

Provisions were rather quiet most of the session, showing a little advance during the morning, but later reacted some on reported selling by packing interests, said to be in anticipation of an increased movement of live hogs.

COTTON.

There was a quiet but firm market in cotton. The late crop deliveries were apparently supported by the bull party, and the new crop deliveries were influenced by the reports regarding the weather conditions. The fact that more rains were shown again east of the Mississippi led to considerable covering during the morning, while in the western districts, particularly in Oklahoma and Texas, there were numerous complaints of damage from dry, hot weather. Advices were that the situation was becoming rather critical in the western districts, and that temperatures were very high. There were very few local showers during the week. The Government report shows that rain is very much needed in some parts of the States. It was dry all through Oklahoma during the week, and the rainfall was light in Arkansas. Warm weather is still needed in the eastern belt, and temperatures continue below normal. A factor against values in the afternoon was the report that two of the largest cotton concerns in the country at Providence had announced a radical reduction in prices of staple goods. The cut in prices will be until July 1, when rates will be advanced ¼ cent, and the two concerns guarantee that prices to Oct. 1 shall not be lower than those which go into effect July 1. During the afternoon trading was rather quiet, and the market moved quite narrowly, showing a little recession from the extreme figures. Southern spot markets unchanged to ⅛ advance.

New York spot cotton dull, 15 advance. Middling uplands, 15.80; middling Gulf, 15.55.

COFFEE.

Coffee was very inactive, with total sales of 3,500 bags. All the trading occurred during the first half hour. The undertone was steady and prices at the close were net unchanged to 5 points lower. Havre, after moving within a range of ⅛f, closed net unchanged to ¼ lower, while Hamburg was unchanged to ¼ higher, and in Brazil Rio was unchanged and Santos was 50 reis lower. Brazilian exchange on London was ⅛d higher, at 16⅛d. Operators are interested in efforts to bring about equitable adjustment of freight rates from New York to Western points, and a conference will be held between the railroads and representatives of the coffee trade at White Sulphur Springs, West Va., July 18. The visible supply of Brazilian coffee in and afloat for the United States is 2,809,671 bags, compared with 3,342,656 last year and 3,421,523 two years ago. Spot coffee steady, 8¼@8 5-16c for Rio No. 7.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Importers Fail to Make Right Claim on Collector's Erroneous Return.

Although erroneous, the Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday held that a classification imposed by Collector Loeb on pyrometer tubes of fused silica cannot be disturbed, because R. F. Downing & Co., the importers of the goods, failed to make the right claim.

It seems that the Collector assessed the merchandise at the rate of 45 per cent. under Paragraph 193 of the Tariff Act of 1909, which provides for manufactures of glass not specially provided for. The contention of the importers was for duty at 20 per cent. as manufactured articles not otherwise provided for. This claim General Appraiser Sharretts decides is incorrect. The General Appraiser holds that the merchandise should have been returned under Paragraph 95, at 35 per cent., as being articles composed wholly or in chief value of a mineral substance.

Mr. Sharretts points out in his decision for the board that there is a difference between the acts of 1897 and 1909 regarding this class of goods. After reviewing the provision in the Dingley act for these articles the decision says: "In the present tariff act, however, provision is made for articles and wares composed wholly or in chief value of earthy or mineral substances, whether susceptible of decoration or not, at 35 per cent, under Paragraph 95, and we hold that the merchandise now before us, being articles composed wholly of a mineral substance, are so dutiable. The importers, having failed to make a corresponding claim in their protest, the same is overruled and the decision of the Collector affirmed in assessing duty at 45 per cent. under Paragraph 106, although erroneous, cannot be disturbed."

MAX STURMAN.—Judge Hough has denied a discharge from bankruptcy to Max Sturman, tailor, formerly of 96 Fulton Street, on application of Morris Meyers, attorney for a creditor. The petition in bankruptcy was filed against Mr. Sturman on Nov. 14, 1908, and his liabilities were $4,103. The discharge was denied because he concealed money from the Trustee. The money consisted of $20 received from the sale of a show case after the bankruptcy petition was filed, and $150, the savings of his wife from money given to her for household expenses, which money she let him have to start in business again. The question was raised whether the money became her own money. Peter B. Olney, referee in bankruptcy, decided that it was really the money of her husband.

SOL AARONS & CO.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Sol Aarons & Co., (corporation,) commission dry goods and auctioneers, 91 Franklin Street, by Charles H. Broas, attorney, for these creditors: Hartford Carpet Corporation $2,554, William Thalberg $12, and Louis W. Coon $6. Judge Hough appointed William F. Allen receiver, with a bond of $2,000, on consent of Charles L. Greenhall, attorney for the corporation. Liabilities are $20,000 and assets of $8,000, consisting of merchandise $3,000 and accounts $5,000. The company was incorporated Feb. 10, 1909, with a capital stock of $10,000, and succeeded to the old established business of Field, Chapman & Co., of which Sol Aarons had been manager for thirty years. He became President of Sol Aarons & Co.

SARAH MAYER.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Sarah Mayer, doing business as the Metropolitan Frame and Picture Company at 47 Vesey Street, by these creditors: George H. Schamberger $704, Edwin J. Schwabe $128, and Louis Solomon $128. She has been carrying on the business since November last. She is the wife of Louis Mayer, who has been in this line of business for twenty-five years and who managed the business. He has been in bankruptcy twice, in 1899 and on April 2, 1908. Judge Hazel a few days ago granted a motion to confirm the report of the referee in favor of a discharge of Mr. Mayer on the second petition, but the order for his discharge has not yet been entered at the clerk's office of the United States District Court. Sarah Mayer appeared as a creditor for $876 in his schedules.

FIVE DIE OF HEAT; COOL WAVE COMING

Forecaster Forced to Reverse Himself on Early Morning Prophecy in Court.

RELIEF MAY COME TO-DAY

Northerly Winds Likely to Sweep Across the City Soon—Thirty-one Prostrations Reported.

District Weather Forecaster James H. Scarr said at White Plains early yesterday that to-day would be another broiling hot one. He said late yesterday afternoon, at his office at the top of 100 Broadway, that he hadn't the slightest doubt that he had perjured himself, for the arrows, circles, blue marks, high pressures, low pressures, and all the other things that appear on the weather sheets told him that to-day would be cooler than yesterday.

"It may not last long," he said, "I cannot tell about that certainly. I note a disturbance down in the East Gulf States. Most likely that will change the course of the winds in that direction, and New York will probably have northerly winds. That will mean cooler weather.

"I testified at White Plains without my figures. I got on the witness stand there in a case quite apart from the weather, but the Judge said he wanted me first to answer if Wednesday would be cooler than Tuesday. I told him I couldn't see that it would. Now I do see it."

The watery heat in which New York lay parboiling yesterday was not unusual. The whole country east of the Rocky Mountains lay parboiling, and other weather forecasters could not see any relief in sight. All the reports about an early amelioration for even a short while were decidedly pessimistic in other parts of the country. Even Washington could promise no break in the heat wave.

The official thermometer at 100 Broadway registered 89 at its highest point yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. That is the highest point attained this season, and it is 10 degrees above the normal temperature for June in this city, but it was not a circumstance to what other cities over the country experienced.

In Washington, where the Chief Weather Man lives, it was 100 in the shade yesterday. At Miles City, Mon., it was 108, and in both the Dakotas the thermometer readings were 102. And these Western sections are supposed to get north winds when there are any north winds to be had.

The particularly unpleasant features of yesterday were that it was the longest day of the year, with more sunlight; that the heat here was steady and unremitting, the thermometer never falling below 72 degrees, even in the early morning hours, and that the humidity percentage was very high most of the day, ranging above 80 at 9 o'clock, though it fell in the afternoon to below 50. Forecaster Scarr said that was perhaps due to the cooling winds, the forerunners of which had perhaps struck the hot edge of New York's wave.

All over the country there were many prostrations and deaths due to heat. There were five deaths and thirty-one prostrations laid to heat here yesterday, with a large number in the suburbs.

THE DEATHS.

BRADLEY, WILLIAM, 35 years old; overcome and died at his home, 255 Wythe Avenue, Brooklyn.

BENJAMIN, JAMES, 58 years old, of 399 Tillary Street, Brooklyn; overcome by the heat and died in an office in the building at 60 Park Avenue, Brooklyn, where he was employed.

GRUBLINSKY, FRANCIS, 44 years old, of 136 First Avenue, died while on the way to visit his daughter in Williamsburg.

LINK, JOHN, 46 years old, of Tenth Avenue and Forty-third Street; overcome on the pier at the North River and Ninety-fifth Street, removed to J. Hood Wright Hospital, where he died.

MENSING, SOPHIA, 74 years old, of 207 Van Brunt Street, Brooklyn; overcome and died at her home before Ambulance Surgeon Wood arrived from the Long Island College Hospital.

Though the thermometer records at 100 Broadway showed that early yesterday morning the mercury ranged around 74, an unpleasantly high figure for the morning hours, a storm raged through upper Manhattan and the Bronx, accompanied by heavy cannonades of thunder, brilliant displays of lightning, a hard wind, and a quick deluge of rain. The wind and lightning did considerable damage. Lower Manhattan had none of the storm, though it got a few drops of rain soon after daylight.

The Bronx storm put several trolley lines out of commission for a short while. A bolt of lightning set on fire a three-story school house at the rear of the Church of the Immaculate Conception at Melrose Avenue and 150th Street. The damage done was $500. Another bolt ripped off some of the slate roof from the steeple of St. Paul's Church at 119 East 117th Street. The flagpole of Public School 100, at Fifth Avenue and 138th Street, was knocked down by another bolt of lightning, which bored a hole in the roof.

Lightning struck a pole in front of a newspaper office in 149th Street, between Bergen and Third Avenues, and then ran on into the office, where six reporters were playing pinochle. The electric light bulbs were shattered and a blue ball of fire danced on the table among the chips. The young men retired to the street and were able to catch the lobster edition of the afternoon papers with the story.

RAINFALL SAVES HOUSE AFIRE.

Lightning Strikes Near Hackettstown and Railroad Engine Gives Alarm.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKETTSTOWN, N. J., June 21.—The family of Jonathan Bilby, living one mile east of here, and close to the tracks of the Lackawanna Railroad, were roused from sleep this morning by the blowing of a locomotive whistle. They wondered at the insistence of the call, and looked out to see the barns, close by the house, ablaze. They had just time to get on their clothes, and escape with a few of their most prized possessions. The barns were totally destroyed, and the house partly burned.

The fire was started by lightning in one of the most furious storms that has struck this section of the country. So heavy was the rainfall that it aided materially in saving the house. Elsewhere it washed farm lands, and did extensive damage to crops. The total damage to Bilby's property is estimated to be $5,000, partly covered by insurance.

Ten Deaths in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—Ten deaths and many prostrations were reported as due to the excessive heat here to-day. The maximum temperature was 92 degrees at 3:15 o'clock this afternoon. The lowest temperature for the day was at 4:30 in the morning, when the mercury stood at 71. The mean temperature was 82, nine degrees above normal.

CHILDREN TURN INFORMERS.

Tell Police of Schoolmates Who Exhibit Money—Three Boys Arrested.

Several little boys and girls from Public School 10, at 117th Street and St. Nicholas Avenue, marched uneasily into the West 125th Street Police Station before school yesterday and told Capt. Farrell they had some important information for him. It turned out that three boys of the school had been "treating" other youngsters to cigarettes and many of the girls to ice cream and candy. The children who brought the information hadn't been among the boys and girls who got the cigarettes or the ice cream. They said they would like to know where the three boys got all their money.

Accordingly, just after the dismissal of school yesterday afternoon, Detectives Ryan and Donnelly corralled into the office of the Principal, Dr. Ernest Birkins, Frank Mayer, 14 years old, of 496 Manhattan Avenue; Joseph Klein, 11 years old, of 504 Manhattan Avenue, and William Alexander, 13 years old, of 266 West 115th Street. In the pockets of the three boys they found $35.75.

The two younger boys, according to the police, admitted that they had got the money from the Mayer boy, but he would not tell how he came by it. At the homes of the boys, the detectives say, none of their parents could account for their possession of the money.

The three were arrested on charges of juvenile delinquency and taken to the Children's Society.

CITY ISSUE RESCINDED.

Mitchel Says Money Appropriated for Improvements Exceeded Debt Limit.

The Aldermen approved yesterday the rescindments of old corporate stock authorizations made by the recent committee of the Board of Estimate appointed to consider the amount of money which the city should spend for permanent improvement next year. After the action had been taken, President Mitchel told the board that it was the most important move the body had made since he had been presiding over it. He explained that if the board had balked on the matter the city might have been put in the position of actually exceeding its legal debt limit by several million dollars.

Nine thousand dollars was voted to Borough President Miller of the Bronx for the purchase of three automobiles.

A resolution was passed requesting the Public Service Commission to order the issuance of transfers between the Subway and the Ninth Avenue elevated line at West Sixty-sixth Street.

Seventy thousand dollars was voted for the immediate beginning of work on a new High School building in Bay Ridge.

Fire Commissioner Waldo was authorized to buy two automobiles for the Deputy Chiefs in the Bronx and Queens.

WOULD NOT BE A GRIND.

Lafayette Graduate First Refused Election to Phi Beta Kappa.

EASTON, Penn., June 21.—At the commencement exercises at Lafayette College to-day, when announcement of the winners of the Phi Beta Kappa fraternity elections were made, it was known that only four men of the class of '10 won the distinction. Among them was J. H. Dalrymple, manager of the baseball team.

Dalrymple knew a week ago he had won the honor, and he bluntly told the college authorities he would not accept because the society was becoming one of "grinds" and "polers."

Dalrymple's position caused a stir, and he was prevailed upon to reconsider the matter. His parents were communicated with, and they persuaded him to join the fraternity, which he did to-day. Only students whose grades are 96 or over during their college career are eligible for the fraternity.

WIRELESS SELF-INQUIRY.

The Company Decides to Have a Little Investigation of Its Own.

The United Wireless Company, whose President and Vice President were arrested last week, charged with using the mails to defraud, has decided to investigate itself, according to an announcement to stockholders sent out from the company's offices yesterday. The announcement says:

Inasmuch as certain charges have been preferred against certain officers of this company, the management would prefer to have judgment in this matter passed upon by such Directors of the company as are not officers, and to that end a special meeting of the Directors has been called to appoint a special committee to institute a thorough investigation of the company's affairs to ascertain whether there is any basis in fact for the charges in question, and to make their report to the stockholders and the public.

In order that the Directors may be unhampered in the choice of the investigating committee, none of the Directors who are officers in the company will take any part in the selection of the committee.

The statement to stockholders complains of the fact that warrants were issued and arrests made before the officials of the company had an intimation that the Government investigators had found anything wrong. It seeks to justify its large capitalization and the advance in the price of stock by explaining that the company has more wireless stations than any other company and that its patents and patent rights are very valuable.

TO INTERCHANGE PLAYERS.

Frohman to Have New York, London, Liverpool, and Paris in One Circuit.

Charles Frohman cabled yesterday that he will return to New York several weeks earlier than in former seasons, to inaugurate a system for the international exchange of plays and players. In the future London, Manchester, and Liverpool, possibly Paris, will be a part of the same circuit as New York, Chicago, and Philadelphia for many of the American companies. Mr. Frohman will disregard all precedence in theatrical matters and will treat London precisely as an American city.

The first of the long list of attractions that will be interchanged between London and New York will be Henry Miller and his company in "Her Husband's Wife," which is now running at the Criterion Theatre. He plans to send the play to England immediately upon the close of its New York engagement.

Hitherto Mr. Frohman has occasionally brought over entire English companies, notably Marie Tempest's and Sir Charles Wyndham's, but never before has he exported a huge American company in a body. His present plan is to replace each English company in America with an American company in England, allowing each to return home at the end of the tour.

ORDERS HER PET KILLED.

Woman Also Leaves Chairs, Pails, Broom, and Basins to Daughter.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Unwilling to have her pet parrot cared for by other hands than her own, Mrs. Ottilie Stock, mother of one of the victims of the Maine disaster in Havana harbor, has directed in her will that after her demise the bird be chloroformed. She also willed that all pictures and letters belonging to her be interred with her.

To her daughter, Elizabeth, she left $1, with the proviso that if the bank balance was not large enough to pay the bequest the daughter should have two kitchen chairs, two pails, one broom, and two basins.

The remaining household effects are left to the German Orphan Asylum. Should the asylum not accept the articles they are to be sold and the proceeds added to the fund left for the purchase of a monument.

QUIET FOR ROOSEVELT BROKEN BY CALLERS

One from Chicago Appears at Sagamore Hill Before the Early-Rising Hunter Is Up.

OTHERS KEEP DROPPING IN

Gen. Wright and Rear Admiral Cowles Among Them — Old Roosevelt Nurse a Welcome Visitor.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., June 21.—Sagamore Hill settled down to-day to the routine of the Summer weeks which Theodore Roosevelt has dedicated to peace and quietude. The home-coming celebration and the wedding of his son over, Col. Roosevelt spent the day in the shade of his estate, but not in idleness. Before he was awake in the morning a caller had arrived.

Next came an interviewer, who had not heard of the Colonel's order barring all inquisitors from his home. Hardly had he made his expeditious exit when two more callers arrived. Later came a party of four, who were guests at Sagamore Hill over night. The Colonel also unpacked some of his luggage, took a walk, entertained his guests, and went through part of his accumulated mails.

Workmen were busy rolling the tennis court where the ex-President intends to get down to work in his period of rest.

When Rear Admiral W. S. Cowles, Mrs. Cowles and their son Sheffield, who had been overnight guests with the Roosevelts, departed on the noon train for their home at Farmington, the Rear Admiral paused to praise Kermit Roosevelt.

"Kermit's endurance in Africa was wonderful," he said. "His fearlessness made him so heedless of danger that his father had many scares on his account." He said Col. Roosevelt had enlisted the aid of all the family this morning in helping to sort 5,000 letters which had piled up.

The noon train brought Gen. Luke E. Wright, ex-Secretary of War, and James Thompson Williams, Jr., a former newspaper reporter in Washington, whom President Taft made Civil Service Commissioner.

Oyster Bay is exhibiting considerable interest in the purpose of his visit. He did not leave the station in the automobile which Mr. Roosevelt had sent for Gen. Wright, but drove away with Miss Ethel Roosevelt, who had come in a carriage to meet him.

Gen. Wright remained at Sagamore Hill only long enough for luncheon and to see some of Mr. Roosevelt's African trophies.

"The Colonel seems to be enjoying life thoroughly," said he. "My visit was purely a social one."

Late in the afternoon Joseph B. Bishop, Secretary of the Panama Canal Commission, and C. G. La Forge, an architect, arrived. Both were accompanied by their wives, and remained overnight with the Roosevelts. Mr. Bishop said Col. Roosevelt wanted to learn about progress on the canal.

The first caller of the day was H. M. Hobson, Secretary of the committee of the Hamilton Club of Chicago, which came East to attend the reception to Mr. Roosevelt on Saturday.

Mr. Hobson was the bearer of a letter from ex-Judge John H. Batten of Chicago, Vice President of the club, asking Col. Roosevelt to receive the Chicagoans before they returned home to-night. Mr. Roosevelt arranged a reception for them this morning at his editorial offices in New York.

In the Summer Col. Roosevelt will go to Chicago as the guest of the Hamilton Club, which is a political organization, and will make a speech there. This probably will be the first speech that he will make.

A woman who said she had come all the way from Akron, Ohio, to see Theodore Roosevelt, left here to-night without having seen him. She said she was Mrs. Alterman, and had come here on a special mission.

One of the welcome visitors to Sagamore Hill thus far is Mary Ledwith, 85 years old, from Manhattan, who was for many years a nurse in Col. Roosevelt's family. She will remain an indefinite time.

Miss Isabel S. Hagner, who was Mrs. Roosevelt's private secretary in the White House, is continued in that capacity here.

It is expected Col. Roosevelt will follow out his usual custom and invite some of his most intimate neighbors to enjoy with his family a display of fireworks at Sagamore Hill on the night of July 4. Mr. and Mrs. Longworth and Theodore, Jr., and his bride are expected to be among the family group at that time.

The village youths have been watching all the incoming trains, hoping to be rewarded by a sight of the lions and other wild animals that they suppose have been retained as trophies of the mighty hunter.

INDEMNITY FOR WORKMEN.

Manufacturers Sending Commissioners Abroad to Devise a System.

In the hope of finding some method of reducing industrial accidents and of determining a method of compensating the victim of those that cannot be avoided, it was decided yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the National Association of Manufacturers to send a commission to Europe to learn what is being done there.

The commission will consist of Ferdinand Schwedtman, Chairman of the association's committee on Industrial Indemnity Insurance, and James A. Emery, general counsel of the National Council for Industrial Defense. They will sail on July 14 and will be gone about three or four months, visiting the important manufacturing centres of Germany, Austria, France, England, Switzerland, Italy, and Norway. They will consider the problem from four aspects, the humanitarian, legal, economic, and indemnity insurance sides, and arrangements are being made for meetings and consultations with experts in the countries they visit.

This trip has been decided upon in order to provide accurate information on which to base a system of voluntary accident indemnity insurance, to which both employers and employes should contribute in accordance with the resolution adopted at the annual meeting of the National association last month. It was then pointed out by John Kirby, Jr., President of the association, that it has been estimated that every year in the United States there are at least 500,000 workmen killed or incapacitated, and that at least half that number might have been saved.

It was also figured that it is possible to save annually $1,220,000 by taking ordinary measures of precaution. These measures, it is hoped, will be reported on fully by the commission in a book they will publish on their return.

HOT DAY FOR THE VAMPS.

A General Fight and Many Prostrations Mark Long Island Celebration.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., June 21.—The annual parade and tournament of the Nassau County firemen was held here to-day, and 20,000 persons were present. Two thousand firemen were in line.

All stores were closed in honor of the occasion. Firemen and their friends came from all parts of the country, some even from the eastern end of Long Island. The occasion was enlivened by a woman who tried to whip a fireman for interefering with her brother who was having a fuss with one of the judges. The most spectacular event of the day was when the hose contests were being held, in which the firemen run for a certain distance, connect their hose, and play on a backstop. The Defender Hose Company of Lynbrook made their run and were directly in front of the stand when Charles Rogers, one of their men, was suddenly stricken with sunstroke and fell. As he fell the hose wagon passed over him. Rogers grasped the axle and was dragged 200 feet until the carriage could be stopped, then he fell unconscious and was taken to the Nassau Hospital.

Several other cases of sunstroke were reported. In the long parade a number of the spectators and one fireman were overcome and taken to the Nassau Hospital, where they stayed all day. The parade was held in the morning and passed through the principal streets, after which the firemen adjourned to the course for the contests.

The steamer contest was going along nicely when a man objected to a decision of Judge James W. Eaton of Babylon. The dispute became warm and the man was pushed aside. Instantly his sister jumped into the fracas, aimed a blow at the Judge which just missed him, and which landed on a local fireman and sent his sprawling to the ground. This was the signal for a general melee, and inside a few minutes firemen and citizens were mixed up in a general brawl. The police finally separated the combatants but no arrests were made.

JOHN E. PARSONS QUITS SUGAR TRUST

NEW TREASURER CHOSEN

Housecleaning Campaign Has Been Under Way Ever Since Thomas Became President.

John E. Parsons, who on Jan. 1 was succeeded as General Counsel of the American Sugar Refining Company by James M. Beck, former Assistant Attorney General of the United States, withdrew yesterday as a Director of the company, and Arthur Donner resigned as Treasurer and was succeeded by Charles H. Allen, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company and formerly Assistant Secretary of the Navy. Their withdrawal removes from the management of the company practically the last of the men high in its counsels in the days when the company was dominated by the late H. O. Havemeyer.

The resignation of Mr. Parsons as a Director bears out reports current soon after the withdrawal of his firm, Parsons, Closson & McIlvaine, from the post of General Counsel for the company. That was preceded by the indictment of Mr. Parsons, along with other Directors of the company, in the Pennsylvania Sugar Company conspiracy cases.

The civil suits against the American Sugar Refining Company in the Pennsylvania Sugar case were settled out of court, but this incident and the successful outcome of the Government exposure of the underweighing of sugar by the American Sugar Refining Company led to a plan for a general reorganization of the management.

This reorganization, so far as the higher officers of the company are concerned, is practically completed with the resignations announced yesterday. Washington B. Thomas, President of the company, was selected at the suggestion of the New England stockholders, and with his election a new order of things was established in the affairs of the company.

Another step in the management's plan was made known in the announcement yesterday that it has been decided to create the office of Assistant Treasurer in the cities of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and New Orleans and that it is intended to appoint in each of these localities men of local standing and acknowledged responsibility. Arthur Adams, First Vice President of the Old Colony Trust Company of Boston, has been selected as Assistant Treasurer of the company in Boston.

While the withdrawals from the management of individuals who formerly held a prominent place in its councils have all been described as voluntary, it has been considered in the financial district that the changes have been brought about in pursuance of a well-defined policy on the part of President Thomas, with the backing of the stockholders in the company.

Mr. Allen, who succeeds Mr. Donner as Treasurer of the company, like President Thomas, is a New England man. He served in both branches of the Massachusetts Legislature, and then for four years was a member of Congress. In 1891 he was the unsuccessful Republican candidate for Governor of his State. From 1898 to 1900 he was Assistant Secretary of the Navy and from 1900 to 1902 Governor of Porto Rico.

44 Public Building Cleaners Dismissed

Forty-four women and eighteen men employed in the cleaning force in the public buildings of Manhattan were dismissed yesterday by Borough President McAneny, Assistant Commissioner of Public Works Patterson reporting that their services were not needed. Both men and women in these places receive small pay, and it was said that where they were found to be dependent entirely upon this work they were retained "as far as possible."
